SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 22ND DAY OF JUNE, 1910.

RAYMAN.

LASHLEY.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who on an interpleader claim made by the respondent against the appellant, execution creditor in Rayman versus Maynard, allowed the same with damages $3 and costs. The Magistrate states that the only point taken before him was that the delivery of the house to the claimant by the judgment debtor Maynard was not proved. He found that there was such a delivery by the vendor and the purchaser going on the land and the vendor telling the tenant to pay rent in future to the purchaser.

It appears that the witness Cobham in her examination in chief stated as alleged by the Magistrate in the reasons for his decision that “on 9th March plaintiff and collector and Maynard came, Maynard told me to pay plaintiff every month, and not to pay him anymore.” But that in cross-examination she said that this took place after the levy which was made on 12th March. The Magistrate formed the opinion that she was confused and that the statement made by her in her examination in chief was the true one. One of the grounds of appeal most strongly urged was that the evidence on this point does not support the Magistrate's finding. Now a reference to the notes of evidence sent to this Court show the witness Cobham to have made in her examination in chief the following statements—

(1) “8th March plaintiff came with a collector.”
(2) “9th plaintiff's collector and Maynard came.”
(3) “Plaintiff came with Maynard 2 weeks ago.”
The Magistrate's impression therefore that the witness had said that the plaintiff herself had come with the other two is not borne out by the notes of evidence. Moreover the plaintiff herself speaks of going to property on 9th March with her agent but makes no allusion to Maynard being there. She speaks later on of going in search of Maynard, but there is no satisfactory evidence as to when this was. Any weight to be attached to her evidence is destroyed by her admission that of her own knowledge she does not know what day she went there (that is on the land) but that Cobham told her it was 8th March.

The only other witness who gives evidence bearing on this point is plaintiff's agent or collector. He speaks of going with plaintiff to the property “1st week March.” He, too, does not refer to Maynard as being present, but, on the contrary, says "I never saw Maynard in that yard" and "I never seen Maynard until to-day." On this evidence the Court is bound to find that there is no evidence to warrant the Magistrate in finding that the purchaser and the vendor ever met on the land in question before the levy was made by the bailiff on the 14th March. The alleged delivery therefore is not proved. This being so it is unnecessary to deal with the other reasons of appeal.

The appeal is allowed and the decision reversed with costs.

RILEY, Appellant,

versus

COCKFIELD, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the East Coast Judicial District who on an interpleader claim made by the plaintiff against the defendant, judgment creditor in Cockfield v. Parria, dismissed the claim.

At the close of the plaintiff's case the Magistrate found that the goods were sold before notice was given to the bailiff and that the plaintiff's claim therefore should have been for the proceeds of the sale (sect. 57 (1) of No. 11 of 1893).

The reasons of appeal are (1) that it having been proved that the plaintiff was in possession of the property the Magistrate was bound to call on the defendant; (2) that the levy having been made on 1st April, 1910, and the claim filed on 2nd April, 1910, it could not be dismissed on the ground that it was not in time or that the property had been sold before the trial of the action, and (3) that the claimant having proved his property in the goods his claim should have been allowed whether the goods had been sold after the filing of his claim or not. With regard to reason one, the case relied on is Latta Persaud versus Ramotar (24. 9. 10 Ap. cases) in which it would seem to have been held that where a case is to be decided on its merits it is the duty of the Magistrate to hear the defendants and his witnesses. Whether this is so when a plaintiff fails to give prima facie evidence of his claim it is unnecessary now to determine as in the present case this point does not arise, the Magistrate having held that the proceeds arising from the sale of the goods and not the goods themselves should have been claimed. Reasons 2 and 3 may be dealt with together.

The copy of the claim forwarded with the proceedings shows that it was filed on 7th April, while the copy in the possession of appellant's counsel shows 2nd April. It was agreed that the Registrar should communicate with the Magistrate and that the Court would satisfy itself as to the correct date before giving its decision. The Magistrate wrote that "2. 4. 10" was made in error by the Assistant Clerk whereupon the Court required an affidavit to be made by this clerk as to the circumstances under which he came to make such an error. This has now been received and states: "I made the alteration from 7. 4. 10 to 2. 4. 10 confusing 'this date with another interpleader claim which 'had been put in on the 2nd day of April, 1910. He further swears that the present claim was received by him on 7th April, 1910, at Vigilance Court Office. The Bailiff's return shows that the goods levied on were sold on 6. 4. 10, a day therefore before the claim was filed. Section 59 of the Ordinance gives the Magistrate large powers as to the amendment of all defects and errors in any proceeding and declares that 'all such amendments as may be necessary' for the purpose of determining the real question 'in controversy between the parties shall be so made 'if duly applied for.' No such application appears to have been made and although this Court would have been disposed to hold that it was incumbent to so amend where the sale of the goods had taken place in the interval between the filing of the claim and the trial of the action yet it cannot so hold where as in this case the claim was filed subsequent to the sale. The claim should have been in respect of 'the proceeds or value thereof' and not in respect of the goods themselves.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 22ND DAY OF JUNE, 1910.

BOODHUNSING.

SHIVSANKER, et al.

In this action plaintiff opposes the sale at execution of the South half of the North half of the abandoned piece of land called Plantation La Jannette situate on the east side of Mahaica Creek in the County of Demerary in this colony levied on at the instance of the first defendant to satisfy a judgment by consent obtained against the other three defendants and one William Argyle. He claims a cancelment of the levy, $250 as damages and the costs of this action.

The defendants are in default, but Mr. G. J. de Freitas, Barrister-at-Law, was allowed in behalf of the first defendant, to draw the attention of the Court to the so-called withdrawal of the levy.

The evidence adduced shows that on 6th January, 1910, the present plaintiff obtained judgment in an opposition suit brought by him against the three last defendants and others whereby they were restrained from passing transport of this same piece of land in favour of Shivsanker, the first defendant, and the defendant Mary Ann Argyle was ordered to reserve the lease entered into between herself and the present plaintiff as to three half beds of her portion of said land while the defendants Henry Melville and Nathaniel Wilson were ordered to pass transports of their respective interests therein in favour of the plaintiff on payment by him to each of them of the sum of $245, being the balance due on account of the purchase money of their respective shares. It further shows that the plaintiff has always been ready and willing to pay these sums, but that on 7th January, the day after the pronouncement of the aforesaid judgment, the last three defendants with one William Argyle gave a promissory note for $1,150 payable on demand to the first defendant to whom by the judgment of 6th January they had been restrained from passing transport. That on 13th January a writ of summons specially indorsed under O. IV. R6. was issued by Mr. M. De Souza, solicitor in behalf of the first defendant claiming this $1,150, that it was served on the defendants in the Marshals' Office on the same day, and a consent to judgment filed by them also on the same day.

That on 14th January judgment was obtained, and on the 3rd February on the written instructions of Mr. M. De Souza, the Marshal levied on the interest of the defendants Henry Melville and Nathaniel Wilson which they had been ordered to transport to the plaintiff by the judgment of this Court of 6th January.

That on the 1st March the writ in the present action was filed and on the 14th of the same month Mr. De Souza in writing begs "to withdraw the levy."

Under O. XXXVI. R. 28 it is provided that a levy may be cancelled by order of the Court or a Judge on the ex parte application of the party at whose instance it was made. No such application has been made, and therefore the levy still exists. On the facts proved the levy must be cancelled as claimed on the writ served on the defendants and with regard to which they are in default. This writ contains no claim for damages and therefore none can be given.

The circumstances attending the making of the promissory note and the obtaining judgment thereon point to collusion between the defendants to carry into effect a threat made by the first defendant to the present plaintiff, that he should never have possession of this land. It is to be regretted that a Solicitor to whom as an officer of the Court this Court looks to assist in and not retard the administration of justice, should be associated with it.

The levy is cancelled with costs.

GEORGETOWN, WEDNESDAY, JULY 6TH, 1910.

Government Notice.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,

5th July, 1910.

7.
THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

THE INDICTABLE OFFENCES (PROCEDURE) ORDINANCE, 1893, AMENDMENT BILL, 1910.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to amend an Ordinance passed last year (No. 20 of 1909) whereby it was enacted that sentence of death should not be passed on any child under the age of fourteen years. Similar legislation exists in England and in many other colonies but the age is in all cases sixteen, and it has been thought desirable that sixteen should be the age here and our legislation on this subject assimilated to that of other parts of the Empire.

As the Ordinance to be amended is very short, the Bill repeals it and re-enacts it as amended, thus avoiding having to refer to two Ordinances for the law on this subject.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE INDICTABLE OFFENCES (PROCEDURE) ORDINANCE, 1893, WITH RESPECT TO SENTENCES OF DEATH."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows:—

1. Sentence of death shall not be pronounced on any child under the age of sixteen years, but in lieu thereof the Court shall sentence such child to be detained during His Majesty's pleasure, and if so sentenced he shall be liable to be detained in such place and under such conditions as the Governor may direct, and whilst so detained shall be deemed to be in lawful custody.

Repeal. 2.--(1.) Section one hundred and ninety-one of the Indictable Offences (Procedure) Ordinance, 1893, is hereby repealed.

(2.) The Indictable Offences (Procedure) Ordinance, 1893, Amendment Ordinance, 1909, is hereby repealed.

Short Title and Construction. 3. This Ordinance may be cited as the Indictable Offences (Procedure) Ordinance, 1893, Amendment Ordinance, 1910, and this Ordinance and the Indictable Offences (Procedure) Ordinance, 1893, shall be read and construed together as one Ordinance.

THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

THE LEPERS ORDINANCE, 1905, AMENDMENT BILL, 1910.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to amend the Lepers Ordinance, 1905, by requiring that all lepers suffering from ulcers shall be sent to the Leper Asylum, as such lepers are a source of danger to the general community, and cannot safely be isolated at their own houses.

Clause 4 makes an amendment to section 6 (2) of the above Ordinance which experience has shown to be desirable. At present the Magistrate cannot make an order sending a poor person to the Asylum who does not beg or otherwise publicly expose his leprosy, except upon his own application. The amendment will enable the Magistrate to make an order in a proper case, whether the leper applies or not.

Clause 5 aims at a more strict enforcement of the Ordinance in the interest of the community generally, by requiring every person who knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that anyone is a leper, to report that fact so that proper steps may be taken for his isolation at home if possible, or if not, his being sent to the Asylum.

LEPERS ORDINANCE, 1905."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

1. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Lepers Ordinance, 1905, no leper who is suffering from ulcers shall be permitted to be isolated and maintained and treated in private, but he shall be removed to the Leper Asylum under the provisions of the said Ordinance. Lepers with ulcers to be sent to Asylum.
2. Sub-section four of section seven, and section thirty-five, of the Lepers Ordinance, 1905, shall not apply in any case in which the Magistrate or the Governor, as the case may be, is satisfied that the leper is suffering from ulcers. Provisions for isolation in private not to apply to lepers with ulcers.
3. It shall be lawful for the Governor on the report of the Surgeon General to order that any leper who has been isolated under section seven, sub-section four, of the Lepers Ordinance, 1905, or who has provided for his own isolation under section thirty-five of the said Ordinance, shall be removed to and detained in the Leper Asylum, if the Governor is satisfied that such leper is suffering from ulcers. Lepers isolated in private to be sent to Asylum if suffering from ulcers.
4. Sub-section two of section six of the Lepers Ordinance, 1905, shall be read and construed as if the word "shall" were inserted in the sixth line thereof instead of the words "may on application by or on behalf of such person." Amendment of section 6 of Ordinance No. 15 of 1905.
5. Section thirty-one of the Lepers Ordinance, 1905, is hereby repealed and the following section shall be deemed to be inserted in the said Ordinance in lieu thereof :— Repeal of section 31 of Ordinance No. 15 of 1905.
 31. Every person who knows or has good reason to suspect that any person is a leper, shall give notice thereof to the Surgeon General or to the nearest Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, or Government Medical Officer, who shall thereupon report the same to the Surgeon General. Duty of certain persons to give notice as to lepers.
6. This Ordinance may be cited as the Lepers Ordinance, 1905, Amendment Ordinance, 1910, and shall be read as one with the Lepers Ordinance, 1905. Short title.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.*APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 3RD DAY OF JUNE, 1910.

NOBIBUX, Appellant.

MEARNS, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate who sentenced the appellant to two months' imprisonment with hard labour on a charge that he being an indentured immigrant absented himself from work without lawful excuse on 12 days in the two consecutive months of December, 1909, and January, 1910, whereby he became an habitual idler.

The reasons for appeal are—

(1) That the decision is erroneous in point of law—
(a.) Because it has not been proved that the defendant was absent from work without lawful excuse or at all.

(b.) Because it has not been proved that the defendant was an indentured immigrant.

(c.) Because it has not been proved that the defendant is an habitual idler.

(d.) Because it has been stated that the defendant became an habitual idler by reason of the fact that being an indentured immigrant he refused to reside on Plantation Hope.

(e.) Because it has not been proved that the defendant refused to work.

2. The decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict ;

(a.) Because of the foregoing reasons :

I will deal with Reason (b) first. By Sec. 186 of 18 of 1891 the indenture of an immigrant shall not determine by effluxion of time unless the immigrant has fulfilled the legal obligation imposed on him by such indenture, it is for a term of actual service, periods of absence from work by reason of imprisonment and desertion are excluded when reckoning the term of service. By sec. 136 a Register of Defaulters has to be kept by the Immigration Agent General or Immigration Agents and by sec. 224 a certified extract from any register kept by the Immigration Agent General shall be received in evidence of any part therein recorded without further proof. Immigration Agent General includes any Immigration Agent acting under the authority of the Immigration Agent General. A certified extract from the Register of Defaulters of Plantation Hope was produced showing that 413 days were recorded against the defendant for desertion and imprisonment and his indenture was extended to 15th January, 1911, so that ample proof was given that the defendant was indentured. See sec. 137 and Morris v. Jugraj, 22. 5. 95.

Reasons (a), (c) and (d) may be taken together.

The complaint as laid was under sec. 134 of 1891 which enacts that if any male indentured immigrant is absent from work without lawful excuse on twelve days in any one month or in any two consecutive months he shall be deemed an habitual idler, etc.

Sec. 109 of the same Ordinance contains in sub-section (1) three different offences by indentured immigrants regarding work.

Every indentured who—

(a) Without lawful excuse absents himself from work ;

(b) Having been directed by some duly authorized person to attend at a specified time and place for the performance of any particular work refuses or neglects so to attend, or

(c) Refuses or neglects to begin or to finish any particular work which he has been directed by some duly authorized person to perform shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding one month. Sub-section 2 defines when the directions referred to may be given, that is, on the afternoon or evening before or on the same day on which the work is required to be performed.

This section becomes important in dealing with this appeal inasmuch as it makes a distinction pointing clearly to the fact that in the ordinary course of things an indentured immigrant has to attend or present himself for work and such work must be given him if he is willing and able to work. If he is not provided with work he shall be entitled to his full day's wages for every day on which work is not so provided. (Sec. 93).

When such work is assigned to an immigrant he must be informed whether it is task or day work and at what rate for the task or day respectively. (Sec. 94).

Sec. 95 provides that every indentured immigrant, subject to the provisions for leave of absence, shall be present at the work assigned to him, etc.

Sec. 96, 97 and 98 regulate the extent of tasks and the rate of wages.

Now the evidence in this case was to the effect that the defendant was absent from work without lawful excuse on 1st, 11th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 24th, 28th and 29th December, 1909, and 5th, 6th, 7th and 15th January, 1910, that is 12 days in two consecutive months. The witness, who gave the evidence, added : “ Defendant is an indentured immigrant but refuses to reside thereon. He has thereby become an habitual idler.” This, of course, was not correct.

In cross-examination he stated that the absent days in the charge were within his own knowledge. In cross-examination the witness said no one obtained leave on 24th December and that he had asked the defendant about not working on the 6th and 7th January.

Defendant worked for $1.36 in that week, for $1.62 in the week ending 24th December and for $2.16 for the week ending 14th January. If he had otherwise complied with the terms of sec. 95 by being present in the field if employed as a field labourer for 42 hours and such had been proved he could not have been compelled to be again present at work during the weeks when he earned $1.50: and any days from which he was so exempted could not have been computed as absence from work, he might have obtained leave of absence from the plantation for the period provided for by sec. 120 had he applied for it. But he refused to reside on the estate, and might have been charged with that offence under sec. 119.

(2) It would seem from the evidence of the driver that the Mohamedans had Church on the 24th December but no Mohamedan came for leave. It may be presumed that the appellant is of that religion.

An attempt was made in cross-examination to show that the appellant was ill but it was not proved.

No evidence was called for the defence and the question in this appeal is was there or was there not sufficient evidence to warrant the Magistrate in convicting.

In the case of Dawson v. Gopaul, 29th September, 1883 (that is before the new Immigration and Summary Conviction Ordinances), Chalmers, C.J., remarked: "The onus of proving the whole ingredients of an offence, where it is not shifted by statute lies on the prosecution. The absence of lawful excuse is the direct description of the offence with which Gopaul was charged and the case for the prosecution was not established without some evidence (although slight evidence might have sufficed) of there being no excuse."

The evidence in that case was that of an overseer who ordered the respondent to throw canes in the cane-carrier and who stated that the defendant did not begin work that day. The charge was "without lawful excuse did neglect to begin certain work." It was held that the evidence did not negative lawful excuse on the part of the respondent (no evidence at all was apparently given on this) and the dismissal of the complaint by the Magistrate was affirmed.

In section 110 it is especially provided that no immigrant shall be convicted for the offences under sec. 109 if he is entitled to the benefit of the proviso of section 95 already referred to. The presence in the field for 42 hours represents six days' work and the statutory wage is $1.44 for time work for six days. By task the rate per task must be 24 cents for an adult able-bodied male (secs. 97 and 98).

Agreements for extra work are provided for by sec. 106.

Every indentured immigrant is bound to reside on the plantation whereon he is under indenture (sec. 118), and if he absents himself without leave during the time in which he is required to be at work or absents himself from the plantation in such a manner and for such time as to constitute a breach of the obligation of residence he is liable to a fine. This is a distinct offence and would not per se be considered on the complaint as laid.

What constituted breach of the obligation of residence is clearly laid down in Dawson v. Nundall, 12th June, 1885.

The argument put forward on reason (c) that a refusal to work must be proved on a charge of being absent from work without lawful excuse is not tenable. Refusing to work is also a distinct offence.

Although the evidence in this case might very well have been stronger there was sufficient to justify a conviction especially as no evidence was offered by the defence of any exception, exemption proviso, condition, excuse or qualification. Although I might not have inflicted such a severe sentence, the appeal is dismissed but without costs, the respondent not having appeared.

12th July, 1910.

THE following Progress Report on the Experimental Agricultural work of the Department of Science and Agriculture during the period 1st April, 1908, to 30th September, 1909, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,

Acting Government Secretary.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENTS.

PROGRESS REPORT FOR THE PERIOD APRIL 1, 1908, TO SEPTEMBER 30, 1909.

1. During the above period the various agricultural experiments have been carried on under the direction of the Director, Science and Agriculture. The experiments at the Botanic Gardens were supervised by Mr. N. R. King, Second Agricultural Instructor, during the month of April, 1908, whilst the Agricultural Superintendent, Mr. R. Ward, was absent on leave. From then the supervision has been exercised by Mr. R. Ward. From his arrival in the colony on February 4, 1909, the Assistant Director and Government Botanist of this Department, Mr. F. A. Stockdale, has taken very marked interest in the experiments and has given much valuable assistance in their direction and control. The Onderneeming School farm has been carried on under the direction of the Department by Mr. S. H. Bayley, the Superintendent of that Institution. The Issorora rubber farm was managed from April 1 to September 15, 1908, by the Senior Agricultural Instructor, Mr. A. L. Mansfield; from September 16 to May 5, 1909, by Mr. Agricultural Instructor Abraham; and from May 6 to June 30, by the Second Agricultural Instructor, Mr. N. R. King. These officers were under the general supervision of the Government Agent of the North Western District, Mr. H. T. King. The rubber and forestry station at Pln. Christianburg, Demerara River, has been installed, its laying out being directed by Mr. A. L. Mansfield, whilst its supervision has been entrusted to Mr. D. J. A. Spence, manager of Pln. Christianburg. A commencement has been made of the Sapium rubber experiment station at Bonasika, where it is intended that studies of the modes of preparation of Sapium rubber shall be carried out; whilst plans for the establishment of an experiment station in the vicinity of Marlborough, Pomeroon river, have been prepared and are now in course of consideration by the Government.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

2. The weather conditions at the Botanic Gardens, Georgetown, were as follows, during the period of the sugar-cane experiments now being reported on:—

During April, 1908, the rainfall was light and enabled such agricultural operations as weeding, etc., to be pushed on, May and June were wet months, but on the whole the weather was very suitable for cultivation especially where the land was well-drained, whilst it proved also very favourable for the growth of weeds. Heavy rains continued during July with the result that the land in several of the fields became quite sodden and about 60 per cent. of the cuttings of canes which had been planted on them in June failed to spring and became rotten. A like difficulty had been experienced in former years when we attempted to plant canes near the middle of the year. Where the drainage was good, canes already established made fair growth. In August the weather continued heavy for the first half of the month but towards the middle the weather commenced to hold up and towards the end of the month became very hot and sultry. The early part of September was hot but its sultriness was relieved by occasional showers that kept plants growing well; the latter part of the month was dry and hot. The earlier part of October was accompanied by heavy showers, but the rest of the month was dry and sultry. There were frequent showers of rain during the month of November. At the commencement of December the weather was hot and dry but soon heavy and frequent showers set in, and most of the month was characterised by showery weather. The month of January, 1909, set in dry, but a change took place about the middle of the month and from then until near the end of February the weather was marked by heavy and constant rains, these bringing the land into a sodden condition unfavourable for tillage and for plant-growth; towards the end of the month the weather was better for these purposes but heavy and persistent rains occurred at short intervals until the middle of March. During the month of April the weather was favourable for agricultural purposes, being hot with a few light showers. About the middle of this month some favourable rains occurred, whilst from then to near the end of May the weather was fairly dry. The end of May was marked by some heavy rainfalls. June was characterised by heavy and persistent rains during its early part, and the weather was fairly seasonable though the rains were somewhat heavy during the whole month.

The rainfall at the Experimental Fields was recorded as under for the period under review :

AGRICULTURAL WORK WITH SUGAR CANE.

3. During April and May, 1908, the canes were weeded and forked. Some new seedling varieties received from Barbados and those raised here in 1907 were planted out, and towards the end of May such of the land as was to be replanted was thoroughly forked.

4. During June the New and Old Manurial plots were weeded and certain parts of them were re-planted with selected varieties of canes for conjoint manurial and variety experiments. This re-planting was completed during the month.

5. A large number (168) of new varieties of canes were forwarded during June and July to the Government Laboratory for analytical examination. It was found necessary in July to carry out very thorough weeding operations and these were pushed on so energetically that the labourers struck work and fresh hands had to be obtained. Towards the end of the month 200 bags of cuttings (containing approximately 20,000 cuttings) of selected varieties of canes were distributed to planters who had applied for them. A further distribution of new kinds, selected by the applicants, amounting to 269 bags or about 25,000 cuttings, took place in August. During the early part of September the various manurial experiment plots received their appropriate dressings. This month was occupied mainly by the routine work of weeding, forking, etc., of the various fields of ratoon canes.

6. The canes commenced to arrow in the second week of September and the earlier seed-sowings were started on October 10. Many of the best varieties were in full arrow between September 16 and October 21. Large numbers of arrows were sown during October, and this was continued during the ensuing month.

7. During October, November and December, agricultural operations proper for this season of the year were carried out. Analyses of selected varieties were made at the Government Laboratory during December.

8. Towards the end of November much trouble was experienced with the seedlings damping-off during the heavy rainy weather. This was largely obviated by special preparation of the soil, the most satisfactory mode found being the thorough watering of the soil in the seed-boxes with water acidulated with nitric acid at the rate of two ozs. of the acid to one gallon of water; the soil being afterwards watered with plain water to get rid of any excessive degree of acidity.

9. December was occupied by routine agricultural work.

10. In January and February, 1909 the various manurial-variety experiments arranged for reaping in January to March were cut and some 55,000 cuttings of the more desirable kinds were distributed to a few planters. Much difficulty was experienced during January and February in agricultural work owing to frequent rainfalls rendering the land sodden. The weather in March, April and the early part of May proving favourable for agricultural work, the fields requiring it were very thoroughly forked and weeded. During May the beds used for manurial experiments where necessary were replanted with new varieties of canes, and a large experiment was planted out to, if possible, ascertain the results on the yields of the Bourbon cane by growing it on land rested from Bourbon canes and which had been planted with other varieties of sugar-cane as compared with its returns on land long and continuously planted with Bourbon.

11. A considerable number of varieties of sugar-canes were examined in the Government Laboratory. A selection of seedling varieties of canes obtained from D 625 was planted in the hybridization plots, the varieties D 625, 73, 93, 108, 123, 348, 394, 405, 418 and 419 being picked for this purpose both by their field characteristics and their sugar contents. The promising varieties Nos. 44, 642, 638, 338, 419 and 167 were planted out on fair-sized plots for manurial-variety experiments in the North-West field. It is intended to test with these the relative merits as nitrogenous manures of the new preparations nitrolim (calcium cyanamide) and lime-nitrogen (calcium nitrate) as compared with those of the older sources of nitrogen, dried blood, sulphate of ammonia, and nitrate of soda.

12. During June the canes intended for distribution at this season of the year were reaped and distributed to the various estates which applied for them. In all 931 bags and 118 small cart-loads of cuttings were distributed. A considerable number of new varieties were also distributed in small quantities of a few cuttings each.

CANE ARROWING AND SEED SOWING 1908.

13. The first variety of cane to arrow was No. 515 which commenced to flower about the middle of July. Early in August, the earlier flowering kinds were arrowing and many varieties arrowed in September, October and November. A few kinds continued to arrow in December and some exceptional canes of D 625, D 145, B 147, B 208, of the Red Ribbon and of White Transparent were in arrow in the second week of January, 1909.

14. Arrows, however, were not fit for seed-sowing until the third week in September and the earlier sowings were unsatisfactory, few of their seeds proving fertile. Arrows which ripened in November and December proved to be of high fertility and large numbers of seedlings were raised from various varieties of canes. Probably the most fertile kind was the Bourbon, the arrows sown having been taken from the few stunted and miserable looking clumps of canes growing on the soil of the Bourbon manurial plots. Of this kind, in round figures, 6,000 seeds germinated and about 4,400 young plants were transferred to baskets. From these 1,400 plants were selected for planting in our fields. The results with other fertile varieties are shown in the following :—

Variety of cane.	Seeds Germinated.	Plants basketted.	Canes selected for planting.
D 109	3,500	3,000	670
D 145	3,250	1,800	520
D 4805	1,020	430	370
D 147	950	800	280
D 2,468	840	410	180
B 208	800	500	220
D 4,399	560	90	..
D 4,397	430	320	240
D 1,087	400	300	120
D 757	400	20	6
D 1,452	240	140	60
D 4,419	240	30	4
Scaly	220	160	80

Seeds were sown in 461 boxes of which those sown in 277 boxes proved to be barren. In round numbers, 20,260 seeds germinated, 13,050 plantlets were transferred to baskets, 4,600 of which were selected for cultivation in the Experimental fields. About 4,000 selected plants were given to various sugar estates, the managers of which desired to experiment with them.

15. In paragraph 6 of the Progress Report for 1907-1908 the continued failure of the cross-fertilization experiments laid down after consultation with Dr. Went in 1901-1902, was reported and in paragraph 7 the steps to be taken in the hope of getting more satisfactory results were outlined. The object sought was to obtain probable hybrids of B 208, D 95, the Red Ribbon and White Transparent varieties which are of high sugar-content with varieties producing heavy field crops. The results are shown in the following :—

Parentage.	Seeds germinated.	Plants basketted.	Canes selected for planting.
D 95 x D 625	97	70	65
D 95 x Red Ribbon	85	80	78
D 366 x	40	23	23
D 625 x	42	39	5

The B 208 canes did not arrow on the cross-fertilization plots, whilst attempts with White Transparent arrows were unsuccessful.

REAPING OF CANES.

16. Canes were reaped in December, 1908, and January, 1909, the following being the varieties cut in the North-East field, the average weight of canes per acre yielded by them, the sugar-contents in pounds of saccharose per gallon of the juices expressed from them by a laboratory mill and their calculated equivalent yields in tons of saccharose per acre :—

5TH RATOONS.—12 MONTHS OLD.
No. of Canes.	Tons of Canes per acre.	Lbs. of Saccharose per gallon in the normal juice.	Tons of Saccharose per acre.
White Transparent ..	21.7	1.875	2.37
147 B	20.6	1.660	2.00
2ND RATOONS.—12 MONTHS OLD.
D 4397	26.2	1.684	2.83
Sealy	23.7	1.829	2.65
208 B	25.2	2.087	3.26

The mean yield of the 5th ratoons was 21.2 tons of canes per acre and that of the 2nd ratoons 25 tons.

The experiments with White Transparent and B 147 are now complete. Their mean returns over six crops have been 2.79 and 2.63 tons of saccharose per acre respectively.

The satisfactory yields given by 208 B as second ratoons are very noticeable. This is the only year we have been successful at the Experimental Fields in getting a fair yield from this variety.

The varieties planted on the South Field which were reaped as 3rd ratoons, gave the following results :—

No. of Canes.	Tons of Canes per acre.	Lbs. of Saccharose per gallon in the normal juice.	Tons of Saccharose per acre.
D 145	22.4	1.899	2.82
D 2468	18.5	1.696	1.96
Bourbon	5.6	1.727	.59

17. It is now difficult to get Bourbon canes to grow at all on the parts of this field which that variety has occupied continuously since 1891. But on parts of the field where the Bourbon was replaced by a seedling variety for five or six years and which were later replanted in Bourbon, the crops were fairly satisfactory. Thus under identical conditions of cultivation and manuring on contiguous plots on four of which Bourbon had been grown continuously since 1892 and on four where it was grown from 1892 to 1898 and was replaced by D 78 for the crops of 1899 to 1904 the mean results obtained were :—

		TONS OF CANES PER ACRE.
		Bourbon after D 78.	Bourbon after Bourbon.
1905	25.1	23.4
1906	23.1	22.0
1907	17.5	13.0
1908	25.2	5.0
Mean yield per crop	22.5	15.8

On most of the plots on the Bourbon field the great majority of the stumps and of the supplies refused either to spring or after springing to grow, and the field has had to be thrown out of cultivation. It will be replanted in Bourbon about the middle of 1909 and so will the adjacent areas on which D 2468 has been growing since 1899, with the hope that some further information may be obtained as to the cause of the failure of the Bourbon to grow on certain lands which have been long under continuous cultivation with it.

MANURIAL EXPERIMENTS.

18. The effects of nitrogenous manurings on the canes were as follows :—

NORTH FIELD.—5TH RATOONS.—TONS OF CANES PER ACRE.
	No Nitrogen.	Low Nitrogen (200 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia per acre.)	High Nitrogen (400 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia per acre.)
White Transparent	17.2	24.8	26.
147 B	14.3	21.5	29.3
2ND RATOONS.—TONS OF CANES PER ACRE.
D 4397	21.1	23.2	30.6
Sealy	15.1	24.1	29.2
SOUTH FIELD.—3RD RATOONS.—TONS OF CANES PER ACRE.
	No Nitrogen	Low Nitrogen (200 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia per acre.)	High Nitrogen (400 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia per acre.)
D 145	12.7	27.4	29.5
D 2468	11.6	19.2	26.7
Bourbon (continuously)	1.3	1.6	4.7

As they have been in every crop since the commencement of these experiments, the yields of the sugar-canes were dependant on the proportion of available nitrogen added in the manures, and this has been as true of the newer varieties as of the Bourbon and the White Transparent.

19. The experiments described in paragraph 10 of the Progress Report for 1906-1907 and in paragraph 12 of that last issued were continued, and the following were the mean results in tons of canes per acre obtained :—

	Not Limed.	Limed.	Mean.
No nitrogen	11.5	12.8	12.1
Sulphate of Ammonia
After Sulphate of Ammonia ..	23.3	27.7	25.5
.. Nitrate of Soda ..	20.5	21.6	21.0
Nitrate of Soda
After Sulphate of Ammonia ..	22.6	19.8	21.2
.. Nitrate of Soda ..	18.5	19.4	19.

These results are in accordance with those of the two preceding crops.

20. The following are the mean results of these comparisons for the three years over which the trials have taken place :—

	Not Limed.	Limed.	Mean.
No Nitrogen	8.6	10.6	9.6
Sulphate of Ammonia
After Sulphate of Ammonia ..	21.7	23.6	22.6
After Nitrate of Soda ..	18.4	18.6	18.5
Nitrate of Soda
After Sulphate of Ammonia ..	17.1	16.7	16.9
After Nitrate of Soda ..	15.5	15.9	15.7

The experiments showed that the substitution of nitrate of soda for sulphate of ammonia on the not limed land which had been continuously manured with the latter from 1891 to 1905 was attended by a reduction of increased yield due to the nitrogenous dressing from 13.1 to 8.5 tons, whilst the substitution of sulphate of ammonia for nitrate of soda on the plots long and continuously manured with nitrate of soda increased the excess yield over the not-manured plots from 6.9 tons to 8.5 tons.

On the limed land the substitution of nitrate of soda for sulphate of ammonia reduced the yields produced by nitrogenous manuring from 13 tons to 6.7 tons per acre, whilst the change from nitrate of soda to sulphate of ammonia on the former nitrate plots increased the yield by 2.7 tons.

The reputed ill-effects of long-continued nitrogenous manurings were far more noticeable where nitrate of soda had been continually used than where sulphate of ammonia had been, the mean increase of nitrogenous manures on the plots long manured with the former being 7.6 tons of canes per acre, whilst it was 10.1 tons where the latter had been similarly applied. On the not-limed land the increases were at the rates of 7.8 and 10.8 tons, respectively, whilst on the limed land they were at the rates of 6.6 and 9.5 tons.

The continuously wet weather experienced in the earlier months of 1907 resulted in abnormally low yields where nitrate of soda was used as a manure. If we eliminate the results of that year we obtain the following mean figures :—

	Mean
No Nitrogen	11.8
Sulphate of Ammonia
After Sulphate of Ammonia ..	24.4
.. Nitrate of Soda ..	20.1
Nitrate of Soda
After Sulphate of Ammonia ..	20.9
.. Nitrate of Soda ..	18.9

There is a mean reduction in the increased yield due to nitrogenous manures of from 12.6 to 9.1 tons of canes per acre by the substitution of nitrate of soda for sulphate of ammonia on land long and continuously manured with the latter and a mean increase of from 7.1 to 9.1 tons of canes per acre by the substitution of sulphate of ammonia for nitrate of soda on land long and continuously manured with nitrate of soda; whilst the mean increases produced by nitrogenous manures were 10.8 tons of canes per acre on land long manured with sulphate of ammonia and 7.7 tons on land which had been similarly manured with nitrate of soda.

The results clearly indicate that on very heavy clay-soils, such as that of the Experimental Field, and under tropical meteorological conditions, the de-flocculation or puddling caused by long-continued dressings of nitrate of soda is likely to prove more injurious to the soil than is the souring action of sulphate of ammonia.

It must be borne in mind that these plots have been continuously manured with sulphate of ammonia or with nitrate of soda for sixteen years only, that the nitrogenous manurings, although high, have not been at all excessive (60 lbs. of nitrogen equivalent to $2\frac{3}{4}$ cwts. of sulphate of ammonia per acre per annum) and that the alternation of the manures has only extended over three crops. Where soils, especially on the lighter lands of the colony, have been manured continuously for from thirty to fifty years with sulphate of ammonia its souring action may have become marked and decreases in the yields may have resulted therefrom; but the numerous examinations recently made with soil-waters from the cultivated lands of this colony showing that the majority of them are of alkaline reaction do not indicate much likelihood of this being the case.

21. The mean yields on the plots in the North-East Field which received dressings of slag phosphates when the canes were first planted, as compared with those that did not, are :—

No Phosphates.	Slag Phosphates.
23.7 tons of canes per acre.	26.2 tons of canes per acre.

The mean results in tons of canes per acre of all trials this year without and with slag-phosphates and without and with nitrogenous manurings were as follows :—

	No Nitrogen.	With Nitrogen.
No Phosphates	18.0	26.5
Slag-Phosphates	18.2	30.2

The mean results of the experiments with 5th ratoons comparing basic superphosphate and slag-phosphate, were as follows :—

	No Nitrogen.	With Nitrogen.
No Phosphates	17.4	26.6
Basic Superphosphates ..	15.7	24.8
Slag-Phosphates	16.9	27.6

The negative results of these trials together with the results of six previous crops indicate that the increased yield obtained with the comparisons between no phosphates and slag-phosphates on the plots which received slag-phosphates are possibly due to experimental error incidental to the comparatively small number (12) of comparisons made. It is evident that to obtain figures at all reliable in trials on the effects, if any, on the yield of the sugarcane on heavy clay soils of manurings of phosphates and of potash salts the comparisons must be numerous, say 100 or more, both with and without the manures under investigation. This is necessary as the soil variations over a few plots are as a rule greater than are the effects of the mineral constituents of manures.

22. The plots which were limed in 1891 gave a mean yield of 16.5 tons of canes per acre as compared with one of 15.9 on the not-limed plots. The mean rate of increase was practically the same on both not-manured and manured plots. The yield on the limed plots were the higher only in 24 out of 42 comparisons thus indicating that the effects of the liming are almost exhausted.

Control series of D 625 were also cultivated in duplicate on each of the fields.

These varieties were planted in the two fields between June 1 and 14, 1908. Unfortunately the heavy rains for some time after the planting of the cuttings proved inimical to their springing and many failed to grow, thus necessitating more or less extensive supplying. The soil which had received thorough tillage became pasty and sodden in the cane rows, so that when drier conditions ensued it was in a most unsatisfactory state of tilth. This difficulty had been experienced in certain earlier years on these fields when attempts had been made at June plantings. Planting in November and December appear to be the more suitable on the heavy soil of the Experimental Fields, but planting during those months militates against the mid-year distribution of cane-plants desired by the members of the Sugar-Cane Experiments Committee.

The varieties are arranged in series of plots with at least duplicate unmanured plots and with others which receive increasing proportions of nitrogenous manure for these experiments, principally sulphate of ammonia. One half of each plot was manured with superphosphate of lime applied at the rate of 300 lbs. per acre.

The canes were reaped in June, 1909, and gave the following mean yields as expressed in tons of canes per acre :—

The yields appear to be in no way connected with the ancestry (female) of the canes.

24. The investigations into the characters of the soil-waters on this field having shown that the soil is uniformly alkaline, it was decided to try the effects of using superphosphate of lime as the source of phosphoric acid in the manure in the place of slag phosphate. One half of each plot received superphosphate of lime at the rate of 300 lbs. per acre, whilst the other was not so treated. Thirty-nine plots received superphosphate but no nitrogen, whilst twenty-three plots received both superphosphate and nitrogen, there being 112 comparisons in all. Of the 39 plots which did not receive nitrogen 25 gave higher results with superphosphate than did those without it, in 12 trials the yields on the plots without superphosphate were the higher whilst on two plots the yields with and without superphosphate were identical. On the plots which received nitrogen, 44 of those which were manured with superphosphate gave higher results than did the corresponding plots without superphosphate, in 25 trials the results were reversed whilst in 4 the yield with and without superphosphate were practically identical.

Although the balance of evidence when deduced as above shows a probable advantage from manuring with superphosphate, the mean excess yields are small being on the North-East field .5 ton of canes per acre and on the South field 1. ton of canes per acre. As the higher of these amounts to less than 5% increase, which is within the limits of experimental error on this field as deduced from earlier experiments, it is not possible to state that any real advantage had resulted from the manuring with superphosphate.

But on the North-East Field eighteen comparative trials were arranged in which basic slag was compared with superphosphate and no phosphate. Here the mean results were as follows :—

No phosphate.	TONS OF CANES PER ACRE.	Slag Phosphate.
18.6	Superphosphate. 20.4	24.0

These were on land not hitherto under cane cultivation and it is possible that the excess yields obtained may have been due in a greater degree to the lime in the phosphatic manures than to their phosphoric acid. Or perhaps some unknown soil-variations may have affected the results.

25. On the South field exigencies of space compelled us to restrict the nitrogenous manurings to dressings of sulphate of ammonia supplying 60 and 90 lbs. of nitrogen per acre. The following are the results recorded from the various manurings :—

26. On the North-East field we were able to make somewhat more extended experiments in eight of the series of trials with various kinds of canes each of which consisted of two plots not manured, three receiving, respectively, sulphate of ammonia supplying 30, 60 and 90 lbs. of nitrogen per acre, and one plot dressed with nitrate of soda in quantity supplying 60 lbs. of nitrogen per acre. This arrangement enabled us to obtain comparisons of the relative effects of sulphate of ammonia and nitrate of soda on the soil of this field which is lighter and more friable than that of the South field on which previous trials with nitrates have taken place. In three cases in this series it was not found feasible to include trials with nitrates.

Means (without and with sulphate of ammonia) ..	15.4	19.3	23.0	23.9	..

The means of the plots in 8 series receiving no nitrogen, dressings of 60 lbs. of nitrogen as sulphate of ammonia, and equivalent manurings of nitrate of soda are as follows :—

	No Nitrogen.	Sulphate of Ammonia.	Nitrate of Soda.
Means ..	14.4	22.7	18.0

The general results show that with all the varieties under trial nitrogen in a readily available form is the manurial constituent that governs their yields. On the less fertile of the two fields, the very heavy dressings of 90 lbs. of nitrogen per acre (450 lbs. of sulphate of ammonia) resulted in marked and profitable increases; but on the more fertile field, on the average, very little increase was occasioned by increasing the nitrogenous dressings above 60 lbs. of nitrogen per acre.

The results show that, as in the majority of the years during which these manurial trials have been in progress, nitrate of soda has not been as satisfactory as a source of nitrogen as sulphate of ammonia has been.

27. As in previous years B 208 did not give high field results on the Brickdam field, whilst its returns on the very heavy clay soil did not compare favourably with those yielded by it on the lighter soil of the North-east field. The juice was, as it practically always is, rich in saccharose and of a high degree of purity.

28. In the Progress report for the period July 1, 1905, to March 31, 1906, is stated :—

"The very low yield of 208 B recorded above, which is in striking contrast to the yields obtained from the varieties when cultivated on very large scales on estates on the Demerara River, is due, in my opinion, to one of two causes—either the unsuitability of 208 B for cultivation on very heavy clay soils or that the cane sent to us from Barbados as 208 B is a different variety to the one grown at Plantations Diamond and Wales under that designation. In its general character, mode of growth and relative yield per acre, 208 B as grown by us resembles, but is inferior to, D102, a variety we have discarded. . . . " whilst in section 17 of the Progress Report for 1907-1908 is recorded the results of a visit of inspection to the Experimental Fields on November 15, 1907, by Sir Daniel Morris, K.C.M.G., then Commissioner of Agriculture for the West Indies, during which he carefully examined the mode of growth of B 208 on the exceptionally heavy clay soils of these fields. Since that date, as arranged with the Commissioner on the occasion of his visit, much attention has been given to the morphological and colour changes which B 208, in common with certain other varieties, exhibits during cultivation on more or less unsuitable soils. Coloured records have been made by Miss van Nooten and a series of drawings has been sent to Sir Daniel Morris which, after he had placed them on show at the West India Committee rooms in London, were sent to the Royal Gardens, Kew, as permanent records. These drawings showed thirty-one variants of B 208, several of which, if they had not been taken from stools of canes which were undoubtedly of that kind, would have been considered as being entirely different kinds. For instance, there are among them canes so closely resembling the White Tanna that a skilled observer would easily have failed to recognise them as B208, whilst many of them showed a reddish tinge similar to that of D102. The importance of these observations, which emphasize the necessity of the utmost caution being used in laying down descriptions of new kinds of canes and show how readily mistakes may be made by observations on a comparatively few canes of a variety, is shown by the following extract from a letter recently received from Sir Daniel Morris.

"The morphological and colour variations shown in these further drawings are of a very remarkable and interesting character. I must frankly say that it is most difficult for any one to recognise any trace of cane B 208 in drawings xxiii and xxiv. . . . There can be no doubt that the series as a whole opens up quite a new field of investigation in regard to the morphological and colour variation of sugar-canes. . . . "

The stunted vinous-purple tinged canes seen by the Commissioner were cut and planted in the fertile friable soils of the nurseries of the Botanic Gardens. They grew into vigorous plants, the majority of the stools of which were distinctly purple-tinged or even blotched with that colour and were more or less covered with cane wax. The stools were cut down and the ratoon canes grown from them still retain a somewhat purplish tinge and show faint stripings although they now have a stronger resemblance to the original B 208 than they exhibited at the time of Sir Daniel Morris' visit. As variants of B 208 are found they are planted in the hopes of ascertaining whether or not they are permanent.

Among the more remarkable variants which have been noticed are D 57 and D 65, seedlings from D 625. These varieties spring and grow to some length as deep purple-claret whole-coloured canes, but as they attain maturity the younger joints change to bright yellow.

The investigation of the colour variants of B 208 led us to examine those of the White Transparent (Yellow violet of Wray, Cheribon, Light Java, Rose Bamboo, Caledonian Queen, White Tanna, Mamuri, Rappoe, La Pice, Crystallina, Hope, Le Loussier, Tibbou Mird, Blue Cane, Light Purple, Piata, or Mont Blanc) and of varieties of canes raised from it by its seeds. It has long been known that the White Transparent and its ally the Purple Transparent (Black Java, Louisiana Purple, Black Tanna, Meera, Dark Purple, Queensland Creole, or Blue Cane) not unfrequently show very faint stripings which mark their origin from the Red Ribbon (Mexican Striped, Batavian Striped, Louisiana Striped, Seete, Striped Singapore, Pitu, Striped Cheribon, Striped Tanna, or Otaheiti Ribbon.) At times "sports" or reversions have been observed in them, not to the Purple or the White Transparent, but to the Red Ribbon cane which was the source of canes of the White Transparent type. In canes raised from seeds yielded by seedlings of the White Transparent this tendency is accentuated and sports towards the Red Ribbon are fairly common. Not unfrequently the canes raised from seed of seedlings of White Transparent show signs on almost all of the younger joints (those still covered by the living leaf-sheath) of the characteristic Red Ribbon striping. Thus there appears to be a series from the Red Ribbon through the White Transparent, its bud variant, and through seedlings of the White Transparent with occasionally but rarely "sports" towards Red Ribbon, to seedlings showing frequently to generally Red Ribbon markings. Several seedling varieties from D 74 and from D 95 show those stripings to a marked extent.

29. A large number of the newer varieties were tested on the Experimental Fields in order to ascertain their probable field yields. The following results were recorded with those of the varieties which were cultivated on areas greater than one-fortieth of an acre each:—

The foregoing indicates that among the new varieties raised several are of considerable potential value. In many cases the yield of saccharose in the expressed juice was not as high as was expected from the yields of canes in the fields; this was due to the relatively high fibre contents of the canes when reaped.

30. The following new varieties were reaped in June, 1908 and appear to be of promise of future value :—

TRIALS WITH NITRO-BACTERINE.

33. In March, 1908, the West India Committee forwarded, with a request that it should be carefully tried, a small quantity of Professor Bottomley's "Nitro-Bacterine" specially prepared for use with sugar-cane. It was hoped that inoculation of the soil with this preparation would enable sugar-canes to directly utilize the nitrogen of the air as plant food. Culture solutions were most carefully prepared by Mr. A.W. Bartlett according to the instructions received from Professor Bottomley and were tried in two series of experiments :—

(a) a triplicate series of pot experiments.

(b) a series of 8 field or plot trials.

The culture solutions were diluted and applied in these experiments in exact accordance with the directions received with the preparations.

(a) In the pot experiments at no period of growth did the canes treated with the Nitro-Bacterine culture show any advantage from the application of the preparation. The canes used in these trials were of the very small variety Brekeret. The canes were cut in December, 1908, and the yield of those grown in the pots treated with Nitro-Bacterine as compared with that of those not so treated was as 97 to 100.

(b) The field trials were made on 8 half plots on the south half of the Experimental Fields, the varieties growing on them being D 145 and D 2468. The yields obtained were at the following rates :—

Description of Plots.	Variety.	PRODUCE IN TONS PER ACRE.
		Without Nitro-Bacterine.	With Nitro-Bacterine.
Plots not manured and not limed 1891-1907	D 145	17.2	17.7
	D 2468	14.3	14.3
Plots not manured 1891-1907	D 145	22.5	20.
Limed in 1891	D 2468	22.5	22.5
Plots manured with Phosphates and Potash 1891-1905	D 145	24.0	20.2
Not limed.	D 2468	16.2	19.5
Plots manured with Phosphates and Potash 1891-1905	D 145	24.5	23.7
Limed 1891	D 2468	20.6	26.2

The means of the above are 20.2 tons per acre on the plots not treated with Nitro-Bacterine and 20.4 tons on the treated plots..

The difference in yield between the treated and not-treated plots is not greater than was to be expected on the very small areas, 150th acre each, which, owing to the paucity of the material supplied to us, we were compelled to use. The mean results are for all practical purposes identical in both series and fully confirm the negative results of the pot experiments.

It was noticed in the pot experiments that the canes in the pots the soil of which had been treated with Professor Bottomley's preparation sprang as ratoons with considerably more vigour than did those in the control pots. The stumps in the field trials were therefore allowed to spring and the young canes reaped when three months old. The mean results were as follows :—

POUNDS OF PRODUCE PER ACRE.

Without Nitro-Bacterine	705
With Nitro-Bacterine	615

Hence no effects whatever were noticeable from the application of the preparation, and we may fairly assume that under the conditions of our experiments it was inert.

SOIL WATERS.

36. Enquiries into the composition of the soil and sub-soil waters of the Experimental fields were continued.

During the dry season of 1908 a series of holes was dug to the ground water. This was done on a bed which, since being in our charge, has never given satisfactory returns whether planted in sugar-cane, in bananas or other products, and which has not been under cane cultivation since 1902 when it was thrown out. Commencing at the northern end of the bed on September 28, a hole was dug each week to below the water-table, the holes being dug in the middle of the bed and at distances of from two to three rods from each other. Samples of soil-water were collected from each hole as soon as sufficient had accumulated in it to allow of this being done. The samples were examined, the contents of chlorine, and of nitrogen present as ammonia, in nitrates and in organic matters, together with the degree of alkalinity being determined in each of them.

The following table shows the samples, the date when each was collected, the rainfall during the week preceding their collections, the depth of the water-table from the surface of the soil, their alkalinity in terms of parts of calcium carbonate per million of water, and their contents of chlorine and of nitrogen in various forms also given in parts per million by volume (Milligrammes per litre) :—

The above figures show that, as were the soil-waters examined previously (West Indian Bulletin Vol. IX, pp. 23-37), the waters were of well-marked alkalinity and of a high degree of salinity. Their examinations confirmed earlier results as regards the complete or almost complete absence during the dry season of nitrogen in the form of ammonia in these waters and the higher proportions present in the form of nitrates. In addition they showed that a very considerable quantity of nitrogen is present in the waters in the form of nitrogenous organic matters. The quantities of nitrogen found in this form were found to differ in the various samples taken varying from .066 to .527 parts per million, the mean contents being .2216 parts. The mean contents of the various constituents in the samples taken during the dry season and in a sample taken almost immediately on the setting in of the December rains were as follows :—

Alkalinity as Calcium carbonate.	PARTS PER MILLION.				Total Nitrogen.
	Chlorine.	Ammonium.	Nitrate ion.	Nitrogen in Organic Matters.
971	3,804	.00081	1.687	.2178	.5473

Samples taken on December 24th, 1908, and on January 13th, 1909, after the rainy season had well set in, showed the following mean results :—

Alkalinity as Calcium carbonate.	Chlorine.	Ammonium.	Nitrate ion.	Nitrogen in Organic matters.	Total Nitrogen.
940	3,184	.4654	.569	.2425	.633

These results fully confirm those obtained in 1907-08 as regards the great increase in ammoniacal nitrogen and decrease in nitric nitrogen in the soil-water of the wet season as compared with the relative amounts of those present in the soil-waters during the dry season.

37. The general characters of the sub-soil waters at the water-table being established by the 1907-08 investigations and by those now reported, it became of interest to ascertain the composition of the waters at greater depths. The hole from which the sample was obtained on January 13 was therefore deepened. It was found that at between 8 and 9 feet the heavy clay rested on a bed of dark-coloured, almost black, exceedingly fine grained sand, locally so-called "Caddy." The hole was deepened to 12 feet and the water, which came in quickly, was sampled. The sample gave the following results.—

Alkalinity as Calcium carbonate.	Chlorine.	PARTS PER MILLION.			Total Nitrogen.
		Ammonium.	Nitrate ion.	Nitrogen in Organic Matters.
1236	4237	1.0504	.6677	1.587	2.555

The most noticeable point in the composition of the sample is the relatively high proportion of nitrogen present in it in the form of ammonia and of organic matters, with the relatively low proportion present as nitrates.

38. With the object of obtaining if possible, some indications why the soil on the bed in which these series of samples were taken has always been of low fertility, full analyses were made of the water collected from the upper clay and from the underlying sands with the following results :—

PARTS PER MILLION.
			Water from Clay. 3 to 6 feet.	Water from Sand. 8 to 12 feet.
Chlorine	3502	4238
Sulphate ion	203	56

Sodium	2086	2623
Ammonium395	.817
Nitrogen in Organic matter264	1.587

The most important points shown in the above are the high proportions of magnesium to calcium in both samples, the molecular ratios being

	Calcium.	Magnesium.
Water from clay, 3 to 6 ft. . .	1	6.60
Water from sand, 8 to 12 ft. .	1	7.08

A noteworthy point is the very low proportion of sulphate present in the deeper water when compared with that contained in the shallower one. To ascertain if these points characterised the deeper waters of our fields generally another series of samples was taken from the north-east field, which has the most fertile soil of our experimental fields. The samples being collected at depths of $6\frac{1}{2}$ feet near the bottom of the clay, from $9\frac{1}{2}$ feet near the top of the dark-coloured sands and from a depth of $12\frac{1}{2}$ feet in the sands. These samples were obtained on November 22, 1909. The analytical results were as follows :—

PARTS PER MILLION.
		Water from Clay. $6\frac{1}{2}$ feet.	Water from Sand. $9\frac{1}{2}$ feet.	Water from Sand. $12\frac{1}{2}$ feet.
Chlorine	..	3334	3866	4682

Nitrogen in Organic matters	..	.196	.220	.2746
Total Nitrogen	..	.2978	.2870	.5033

These confirm the results obtained with the water collected in January, the molecular ratios of calcium to magnesium being :—

	Calcium.	Magnesium.
Water from Clay, $6\frac{1}{2}$ feet	1	6.46
Water from Sand $9\frac{1}{2}$ feet	1	7.29
Water from Sand, $12\frac{1}{2}$ feet	1	8.15

Taking also into consideration the results obtained in 1907-1908, we obtain the following comparisons of the molecular ratios of calcium and magnesium in the soil-waters :—

	Calcium.	Magnesium.
S.E. Old field, fertile, (limed in part in 1891)	1	2.40
N.E. New field, fertile (not limed)	1	3.26
S.W. Old field, not fertile	1	6.60
S.W. " " " " deep seated water 12 feet	1	7.08
S.E. New field, deep seated water 12½ feet	1	8.15

The comparisons are suggestive. The soil-waters from the not fertile field have a far higher molecular ratio of magnesium to calcium than is desirable; they correspond in this respect with deep waters and it is possible that the low fertility of the field is due to this.

The decrease in the proportions of sulphates as the depth from which the water was obtained increased was more clearly shown in the second series than it was in the first. It is evident that the sulphates in the alkaline water undergo deoxidation in the deeper layers of the soil, the sulphur being deposited as free sulphur or as sulphide of iron in the dark-coloured argillaceous sands.

The proportions of total nitrogen present in the waters of the south-west field were much lower than were found in the waters from the other fields.

39. The following shows the proportions of the ions found in the deep water from the two fields when the chlorine is taken as 100 as compared with those present in normal sea-water calculated similarly :—

	Old Field. (a)	New Field. (b)	Mean.	Sea-water.
Chlorine	100	100	100	100
Sulphate ion	1.3	1.1	1.2	13.8
Carbonate ion	17.1	19.4	18.2	4
Calcium	1.6	1.8	1.7	2.1
Magnesium	7.8	8.1	8.0	6.7
Potassium	2.7	1.7	2.2	2.0
Sodium	66.1	66.3	66.2	55.3

The changes which have taken place in the waters are as follows :—The sulphate ion present in the sea-water, from which the majority of the salts were doubtless directly or indirectly derived, has been replaced by the carbonate ion, the proportion of calcium has been somewhat reduced, that of the potash somewhat increased, whilst the proportions of magnesium and of sodium have been increased at rates of nearly 20 per cent., the additions, probably derived from the land, being in the form of carbonates.

THE QUANTITIES OF SALTS, ETC., CONTAINED IN THE LOWER LAYER OF THE SOIL AND IN THE SUBSOIL.

40. The clay-soil of these fields as removed from the field just below the water-table was found to contain 42.8% of water. In this condition as taken from the field its specific gravity was 1.57, and its weight per cubic foot was 98 lbs., so that the weight of an English acre of the soil one foot in thickness is about 4,273,360 lbs.

Using the figures determined in 1907-1908 which were published on pages 24, 25 and 26 of the West Indian Bulletin, Vol. IX, we get the following as the weights in pounds of the solid constituents of the water present in an acre-foot of the soil :—

Assuming that the argillaceous sand of the "caddy" underlying the clay soil contained a similar proportion of water to that found in the clay, its contents in pounds per acre-foot will be as follows :—

	Old Cane Field.	New Cane Field.
Chlorine	7,784	7,784

These figures give some idea of the relatively enormous quantities of soluble salts, some of which are practically useless as plant-foods whilst others are more or less inimical to plant growth, that are present in the lower layer of the soil and in the subsoil of the Experimental fields.

41. The following show, in round figures, the weights of the constituents of the soil waters, on the assumption that they are conventionally combined, which are present in the soil and subsoil between the depths of three feet—the average level of the water-table—and of twelve :—

The soil-waters in the fertile parts to a depth of twelve feet from the surface contain in one acre about 43 tons of sodium chloride (common salt), $3\frac{1}{2}$ tons of magnesium carbonate, $3\frac{1}{2}$ tons of magnesium sulphate, 2 tons of magnesium chloride, 1 ton of potassium chloride, 1½ tons of sodium carbonate and nearly 3 tons of calcium carbonate.

On the non-productive section the quantities of sodium chloride, and potassium chloride are similar in amount to those on the fertile parts, but the total magnesium salts which are a little less than in the fertile land—9 tons as compared with 9.3 tons—contain, in round figures, 6 tons of magnesium carbonate in place of $3\frac{1}{2}$ tons, whilst only about half as much ($1\frac{1}{2}$ tons) of calcium carbonate is present in it as there is in the fertile land.

THE EFFECTS OF GRADUAL EVAPORATION ON THE COMPOSITION OF THE SOIL WATERS.

42. The soil-water brought to the upper layers of the soil may evaporate under two conditions during periods of prolonged dry weather, the first existent in the upper layer of soil either naturally deficient in organic or humus matters or rendered so by injudicious cultivation where the evaporation takes place into air containing relatively little carbonic acid gas; the second existent in the upper layers of soil naturally rich in organic or humus matters, and which have not been materially decreased by cultivation where the evaporation takes place into air surcharged with carbonic acid gas produced by the gradual oxidation of the carbonaceous organic matter.

Two series of trials were arranged, in the first of which soil-water was allowed to evaporate into the air, whilst in the second it was caused to evaporate into an atmosphere consisting almost entirely of dry carbonic acid gas.

43. During the evaporation of the sample exposed to free air after the lapse of nearly seven weeks (June 1st to July 17th), small colourless spherules were deposited which on examination were found to consist mainly of calcium carbonate in the form of aragonite. Analysis showed that the spherules were composed of 91% of calcium carbonate and 9% of magnesium carbonate. Analysis of the liquid remaining—which now was about one-third of its original bulk—showed that it contained very little lime in solution. Between July 17th and August 31st the water deposited a flocculent substance which consisted of hydrated magnesium carbonate with some calcium sulphate and a very little calcium carbonate. After dehydration, 100 parts of this substance was found to consist of:—

Calcium sulphate	.36
Calcium carbonate	.8
Magnesium carbonate	99.46
	100.00

At this stage it was found that the liquid contained 34,309 parts of chlorine per million as compared with 3,710 parts in the water when first submitted to evaporation, its concentration by evaporation thus being to about $\frac{1}{9}$ th of its original bulk. The concentrated liquid was now found to be practically free from calcium salts.

From August 31st to September 15th the liquid became concentrated to a little less than $\frac{1}{2}$ of its original bulk and contained chlorine at the rate of 80,000 parts per million. During this period it deposited small quantities of hydrated magnesium carbonate. From September 15th to October 1st the evaporation continued, the liquid depositing crystals principally of sodium chloride with a little magnesium sulphate and some amorphous silica. The evaporation terminated on October 1st when the solid constituents of the small quantity of mother-liquor left had the following comparison in parts per million (milligrammes per litre) of liquid.

Chlorine	..	152,918
Sulphate ion	..	35,523
Carbonate ion	..	1,024
Calcium	..	30
Magnesium	..	20,231
Potassium	..	10,842
Sodium	..	77,468

It is of course not possible to state positively the state of combination of the constituent elements in the original water nor whilst it is undergoing concentration by evaporation. But advantage was taken of the fact that the double carbonate of magnesium and sodium which is soluble in water is nearly insoluble in alcohol saturated with carbonic acid to estimate the proportion of this substance that might be present in the water during the gradual concentration by evaporation in free air.

Samples of 25 cc. each of the water were taken, cooled to about 10° C. and saturated with carbonic acid. Absolute alcohol was similarly saturated with the gas, and mixed with the water until it ceased to produce a flocculent precipitation, the mixture being kept at a temperature of about 10° C. The precipitate was separated by filtration from the liquid and washed repeatedly with the absolute alcohol saturated with carbonic acid gas. When free from adherent salts the precipitate was treated with water in which it was readily soluble, and titrated with standard acid to determine its degree of alkalinity. Qualitative analysis of the precipitate showed it to consist of a double carbonate of magnesium and sodium. Not sufficient of the precipitate was obtained to enable its composition to be determined quantitatively.

The following tables show the effects of the gradual evaporation of the soil-water on its contents of chlorine, and on its degrees in terms of calcium carbonate of total alkalinity, permanent alkalinity and of the alkalinity of the precipitate obtained from it as above described:—

Date when sample was examined	Analytical determinations. Parts per million by volume.				Alkalinity of precipitate by Alcohol.

August 30th ..		5.1	5.0		4.8
September 15th		1.5	1.4		1.4
October 1st ..		1.1	1.1		Not determined

These figures show the rapid decrease of the total alkalinity due to the early deposition of the calcium carbonate and the gradual decrease of the permanent alkalinity—alkalinity not removable by boiling without reduction of volume by evaporation—during the later stages of the evaporation by the deposition of magnesium carbonate. They also indicate that if present the double carbonate of sodium and magnesium is not permanent during concentration by evaporation in the presence of excess of salts of magnesium such as the chlorides and sulphates.

44. The water which was caused to evaporate in an atmosphere of carbonic acid gas contained at the commencement of the evaporation on July 24th, 1908, 3,767 parts of chlorine per million by volume. It evaporated steadily without depositing any of its constituents until October 20th when a few minute spherules of arragonite were deposited. It then contained 65,080 parts of chlorine per million having become concentrated to about one seventeenth of its original bulk. Depositions of a mixture of minute spherules of arragonite, scales of hydrated magnesium carbonate, specks of silica and abundance of crystals of sodium chloride, with some of magnesium sulphate and of potassium chloride took place during the next seven days at the end of which it had become practically a crystalline paste with a little mother-liquor. The mother-liquor contained 154,000 parts of chlorine per million and the composition of its solid constituents in parts per million of the liquid was :—

Sulphate ion	28,967
Carbonate ion	4,604
Calcium	23
Magnesium	13,105
Potassium	926
Sodium	92,400

The course of the evaporation in the carbonic acid gas is shown by the following analytical determinations :—

Date when sample was examined.	Parts per million by volume.		Permanent Alkalinity.
	Chlorine.	Total Alkalinity.
July 24th ..	3,767	800	450
September 3rd ..	6,367	1,350	775
October 20th ..	50,800	10,860	6,400
October 24th ..	65,000	8,400	4,000
October 30th ..	154,000	7,680	5,810

Chlorine taken as 100
Date when sample was examined	Chlorine.	Total Alkalinity.
		Permanent Alkalinity.
July 4th ..	100	21.2	11.9
September 3rd ..		21.2	12.1
October 20th ..		21.1	12.4
October 24th ..		13.	6.3
October 30th ..		5.1	3.8

These show that the alkalinity, whether total or permanent, was not affected during the early stages of the evaporation and remained constant until calcium carbonate commenced to be deposited, and that later both decreased, the total alkalinity somewhat more rapidly than the permanent alkalinity.

45. The important points in the evaporation in air and in carbonic acid gas are as follows :—

Where the evaporation takes place in air nearly free from carbonic acid gas, practically the whole of the calcium salts are deposited as calcium carbonate whilst the water is being concentrated to about one-third of its original bulk, and the remaining water becomes a highly saline one containing large proportions of magnesium salts—the chloride, sulphate and carbonate—in solution. The calcium salts, which are well known to exercise a profound influence in reducing the highly toxic action of the magnesium chloride and carbonate on plants, are almost completely removed from solution and the soil-water becomes in a condition which is poisonous to vegetation. This is what probably takes place during periods of prolonged dry weather on more or less worn-out sugar-cane soils in which by injudicious cultivation and especially by long-continued destruction of the trash by burning the normal proportions of organic matter have been largely reduced. Where, on the other hand, the evaporation takes place in an atmosphere heavily charged with carbonic acid gas as is the air present in soils containing the proportion of organic matter normal to good soils, the lime-salts remain in solution until the liquid commences to become a saturated brine and thus for a prolonged period continue to modify the toxic action of the magnesium salts. It is possible on such land that the soil-water during droughts may become concentrated in the upper layer of the soil without very material injury to the plants until, by concentration of the soil-water, the toxic action of the sodium chloride exerts itself.

These trials therefore accentuate the importance of the conservation and if feasible the increase of the organic or humus matter present in tropical soils, a point which is far too often overlooked by intensive cultivators of tropical products. They further accentuate the importance of the addition of more or less soluble salts of lime—the nitrate, sulphate or superphosphate—to soils containing excesses of soluble or actively poisonous salts of magnesia.

EXPERIMENTS WITH RICE.

46. As in preceding years these were carried on only at the Botanic Gardens. For the Autumn crop of 1908 the young rice plants were planted on the Experimental Field during the week ended May 20th, 1908. It was considered desirable to make trial with the more promising varieties with mineral manurings of lime and sulphate of potash. The lime was applied at the rates of one and of two tons of Barbados air-slaked lime to the acre, the potash in quantities of one and of two hundredweights to the acre. It was noticed when the rice plants were about a month old from their planting that the lime appeared to be exerting a somewhat retarding influence on their growth. But the weeds growing on the limed beds were markedly fewer than were those on the beds either not manured or manured with potash salts. This resulted in the end favourably for the yields of the limed plots.

On June 29th, six samples, said to be of the best Rangoon varieties, were received from Burmah by parcel post. The names of the rices were: Byat, Kauk-san-gui, Kji-in-yaung, Lay-manaig, Nya-sein and Sa-pa-uit. These rices were planted in seed beds soon after their receipt and the young plants were transferred to the field in the week ended August 19th.

47. Towards the end of July, 2 lbs. of seed-paddy were received through the Imperial Department of Agriculture for the West Indies from British Honduras. The rice was stated to be superior in quality and in yielding power to the Creole rices of British Guiana. The sample was found to consist of six varieties of rice each of which was sown separately.

Mr. Ward described these varieties as:—

- (a) Long blackish grain.
- (b) Barley-shaped grain.
- (c) Long light-coloured grain.
- (d) Reddish grain. (This variety failed to grow).
- (e) Medium light-coloured grain.
- (f) Ordinary long grain.

48. The earlier planted rices ripened early in October and the main crop was reaped from October 13th to October 21st.

The rice straw from the plots was used for mulching the fruit-walk on the Experimental field, the cacao and coffee beds on the Brickdam field, and parts of the Nursery. In round figures the rice straw contained the following manurial constituents per cent.:

Nitrogen ..	.70
Phosphoric anhydride ..	.20
Potash ..	.40

49. The mean yields of the varieties were as follows, in bags of 120 lbs. of paddy per acre:—

No. 3 ..	40.1
No. 75 (Suthrà dhín) ..	39.4
No. 6 ..	33.8
Creole ..	32.9
No. 4 ..	27.4
No. 18 ..	27.0
No. 17 ..	24.7
No. 34 ..	21.7
Carolina ..	16.

50. The possible error shown in a series of twelve not-manured plots was $\pm 7\%$, whilst the mean probable error on the determinations of the yield of unmanured land was $\pm 1.6\%$. The mean probable error on the duplicate plots of Creole rice was $\pm 4.3\%$. The following shows the mean yields of the varieties compared with that of the Creole taken as 100 and the probable soil errors of each series of experiments:—

Variety.	Bags per acre.	Probable soil error.
No. 3	122.	± 1.5 per cent
No. 75 (Suthrà dhín)	119.7	± 1.5
No. 6	102.7	± 9
Creole	100.	± 4.3
No. 4	83.3	± 2.7
No. 18	82.1	± 2.7

These justify us in considering that during the crop of 1908-1909 the varieties Nos. 3 and 75 proved themselves to be heavier yielders than the Creole, that there was no reliable difference between the yields of the Creole and that of No. 6, whilst Nos. 4 and 18 and those giving lower yields proved themselves to be inferior to the Creole.

51. The experiments were so arranged as to supply two series of manurial trials. In the first, the more extensive series, the following were the mean results obtained:—

	Bags of 120 lbs. per acre.	No Manure.	Probable soil error.
No manure ..	33.2	100	$\pm 1.8\%$
Phosphates in former years, no manure in 1908 ..	36.1	108.7	$\pm 1.8\%$
Sulphate of Potash in 1908 ..	37.6	113.3	$\pm 3.3\%$
Lime in 1908 ..	39.5	119.	$\pm 3.3\%$
Sulphate of Potash in 1908 after Phosphates in former years ..	38.9	117.1	$\pm 3.3\%$
Lime in 1908 after Phosphates in former years ..	38.8	116.8	$\pm 3.3\%$

The increases apparently arising from the application of the manures were well-marked and when the highest probable errors due to soil and other differences beyond our control are deducted from them, the percentages of increases on the not manured plots work out as follows :—

Phosphates in former years	5.1 per cent.
Sulphate of Potash in 1908 ..	8.2 " "
Lime in 1908 ..	13.9 " "
Sulphate of Potash in 1908 after
Phosphates in former years	12.0 " "
lime in 1908 after Phosphates
in former years ..	11.5 " "

The mean increases per cent. in yields apparently due to dressings with one and with two hundredweights of sulphate of potash are shown as follows :—

No Sulphate of Potash.	1 cwt. Sulphate of Potash per acre.	2 cwt. Sulphate of Potash per acre.
100 ± 3.5	104.7 ± 3.2	126.6 ± 5.6

whilst those due to lime are shown below :

No Lime.	1 ton Lime.	2 tons Lime.
100 ± 3.5	113.0 ± 4.8	130 ± 5.5.

These indicate that whilst no certain increase arose from the application of one hundredweight of sulphate of potash per acre, an increase of at least 17.5 per cent. appeared to be due to the higher application of two hundredweights of this substance ; and that an increase of at least 4.7 per cent. appeared to be due to the application of one ton of lime, whilst an increase of at least 21 per cent. seems to be due to that of two tons.

Hence we may safely conclude that during the crop of 1908 the applications of sulphate of potash and of lime to the rice fields were followed by increases due to them.

52. The second series of the experiments resulted as follows :—

No manure	Bags per acre.	No manure.	Probable soil error.
Sulphate of potash 1908	28.1	100	± 1.8 per cent.
Lime, 1908	29.5	105	± 3.3 " "
	31.4	111.7	± 3.3 " "

These trials were made on part of the field which has not been so long under cultivation of rice as was that on which the first series was carried on. No reliable increases were obtained by the application of sulphate of potash, whilst advantage accrued from the dressing with lime.

53. The new varieties of rice received from Burmah were reaped towards the end of the year and yielded at the following rates :—

Variety	Bags of 120 lbs. per acre,
Nya-sein	18
Lay-ma-naig	16
Sa-pa-uit	12
Kji-in-yaung	11
Kauk-san-gui	9
Byat	9

There does not appear to be a rice of high promise as regards either yields or quality among them.

RICE EXPERIMENTS IN 1909.

54. The paddy of the various kinds which were to be sown in 1909 was most carefully picked through in order, if possible, to eliminate the stray variants which either from recent cross-fertilization or as reversions due to former hybridizations frequently appear in rice. This with some sorts proved a long task as in certain varieties the paddy appears to consist to a greater extent of variants than of rice true to type. The apparently pure seed-paddy thus obtained was sown early in May and the plantlets were transferred to the beds on the Experimental fields during the week ended June 23. Only twelve kinds were planted in the Experimental field, the majority of the varieties experimented with in earlier years being discarded either from the quality of their grain not being satisfactory or their field yield being deficient. Over two-thirds of the field were devoted to comparative trials with the varieties Nos. 3, 6, 75 and Creole, the remaining kinds being tried on lesser areas.

55. Preparations were made for a series of experiments to be carried out by the Government Botanist to decide if it is possible to obtain an artificial or controlled hybridization of rice, whilst a commencement was made in the direction of obtaining pure and improved strains by single-seed-head selections. As indicative of the profusion of variants amongst carefully grown rice the following record may be of interest :—

Variety	Number of variants from type detected
Creole	3
No. 3	2
No. 6	3
No. 75	10
No. 4	2

Variety.	Number of variants from type detected.
No. 34 ..	5
Carolina ordinary ..	7
Carolina Golden Grain ..	9
Honduras ..	11
Berbice Creole ..	11
No. 18 ..	9
No. 17 ..	10
No. 43 ..	4

Full descriptions of the types and of their variants have been recorded for future reference.

It is of interest to state that with the exception of No. 75 or Suthrà dhán our more promising varieties Nos. 6 and 3 and the Creole kind seem freer from variants than do the less valuable kinds. The so-called barley rices appear to be far more subject to variations than do the long-grain varieties resembling in type the Creole.

56. The rices made very satisfactory growth and ripened early in October. They were reaped during the week ended October 20, 1909.

The yields of the varieties of rice in bags of 120 lbs. of paddy per acre were as follows :—

No. 3 ..	42.4
No. 75 (Suthrà dhán) ..	39.2
No. 6 ..	35.8
Creole ..	34.5
No. 4 ..	31.2
No. 18 ..	30.9
No. 17 ..	26.7
No. 43 ..	20.6
Berbice Creole ..	20.5
Carolina ..	19.2
Honduras ..	15.
No. 34 ..	13.6
Carolina Golden Grain ..	10.

The yields on nine unmanured plots gave us indications of the errors due to the soil and other conditions which are beyond our control. These show a maximum error of -8 per cent. on a single plot with a mean probable error of ± 1.1 per cent. on the average yield of nine plots.

The yields of the more promising varieties when compared with the Creole rices taken as 100 were as follows :—

Variety.	Yields.	Probable error of mean.
No. 3	122.9	± 1.1
No. 75	113.6	± 1.1
No. 6	103.7	± 1.1
Creole	100.	± 3.9
No. 4	90.4	± 3.9
No. 18	89.8	± 3.9
No. 17	77.3	± 3.9

Hence in the crop of 1909 the varieties Nos. 3 and 75 as in that of the preceding year proved of higher yielding power than did the Creole; and the yield of No. 6 was practically the same as that of the Creole. Nos. 4, 18 and other kinds giving still lower yields proved unsatisfactory.

57. The mean yield of the five varieties separated from the rice-paddy received in 1908 from British Honduras was 20.7 bags of paddy per acre. The yields of the varieties were as follows :—

Variety.	Bags of 120lbs. per acre.
F. ..	35.6
A. ..	25.0
C. ..	16.8
B. ..	14.7
E. ..	11.2

This is a striking instance of the necessity for planting selected pure seed-paddy if it is desired to obtain the maximum crop of any type of rice. As we were unable to obtain information as to which of the kinds is the variety so favourably reported on at British Honduras we assume that variety F. is the one. Its satisfactory yield of 35.6 bags per acre was reduced to one of 20.7 bags by the admixture with it of rice of very inferior types.

58. The following shows in bags of 120 lbs. per acre the results of our trials, during the years 1905 to 1909, inclusive, with the more promising varieties of rice :—

Variety.	Crops of					Mean Yields
	1905.	1906.	1907.	1908.	1909.	1905-1909.
No. 3 ..	31.5	45.	32.5	40.1	42.4	38.3
No. 6 ..	42.5	42.5	32.	33.8	35.8	37.2
No. 75, Suthrà dhán ..	34.	34.	35.	38.4	39.2	36.3
Creole ..	34.	42.	33.	32.9	34.5	35.3
No. 18	41.	26.	27.	30.9	31.2
No. 4 ..	27.5	34.	32.	27.4	31.2	30.5
No. 17 ..	38.0	28.	15.	24.7	26.7	26.5
Berbice Creole ..	23.0	22.5	18.	..	20.9	21.1
No. 34	32.5	15.	21.7	15.	21.0
Carolina ..	22.5	19.	17.	16.	19.2	18.7

In these experiments carefully selected paddy has always been used for seed. Hence we are justified in attaching considerable weight to the indications of our trials.

59. The following are descriptions of the Creole and of the three rices which over the whole period of our experiments have shown themselves of equal or of higher value than the Creole. They are all of the best type and apparently are closely allied to the Creole rice of the colony :—

Creole.—Grain long, very slightly tipped at apex with red spot, light green, awns absent.

Stalk dark green, very slightly tinged with purple. Growth medium to vigorous.

No. 3.—Grain long, light green, ends tipped, awns absent. Stalk green with a faintest touch of purple. Growth vigorous.

No. 6.—Grain slightly tipped at apex, light green colour, awns absent. Stalk dark green very slightly touched with purple. Growth medium to strong.

No. 15. Sulhrahán.—Grain long, light green with red tips, awns absent. Stalk dark green tinged with purple. Growth medium to vigorous.

60. In 1909, as in 1908, the experiments supplied two series of manurial trials. In the more extensive series the following were the mean results recorded :—

	Bags of 120 lbs. per acre.	No Manure=100.	Probable soil error.
No manure	39.5	100	± 1.5 per cent.
Phosphates in former years	39.4	99.7	± 1.5
Sulphate of Potash 1908 and 1909	38.3	97	± 2.7
Lime in 1908	39.8	100.7	± 2.7
Sulphate of Potash 1908-1909 after Phosphates in former years ..	39.4	99.7	± 2.7
Lime in 1908 after Phosphates in former years ..	39.7	100.5	± 2.7

Hence in 1909 no advantage accrued either from manurings in previous years or from the application of sulphate of potash to the crop.

In the succeeding series only the addition of sulphate of potash was tested, and the mean results were as follows :—

	Bags of 120 lbs. per acre.	No Manure=100.	Probable soil error.
Nil	31.3	100	± 2.7 per cent.
Sulphate of Potash ..	32.3	103.2	± 2.7

Here again no advantage accrued from the manuring.

The results of 1908 and of 1909, taken with those of earlier years indicate that on well cultivated rice land properly drained and satisfactorily irrigated with creek water, little advantage is likely to be gained by manuring with the mineral constituents of manures. In no case has any profit accrued from their application. We hope to extend our enquiries in succeeding years to the action of nitrogenous manures.

SINGLE AND MULTIPLE PLANTING.

61. The question of single versus ordinary or multiple planting was further enquired into during 1908 and 1909. In the former year Creole rice where planted singly gave a yield of 37.2 bags of rice per acre, and where planted in the ordinary way one of 28.7 bags.

In 1909, Creole rice planted singly gave 34.8 bags per acre against 34.2 when planted in the ordinary way, whilst a similar trial with Berbice Creole resulted in identical yields of 20.9 bags per acre being obtained in both manners.

The deviation from the mean yield of the variety in 1908 was ± 13 per cent. as in that year the possible error of a single experiment on not manured land was ± 9 per cent. no deduction could have been safely drawn from the results, and that this was the case has been shown by the negative results of 1909. But the trials indicate that on soils such as those of the Experimental field the number of plants in a bunch may be reduced to, say, not more than two or three without endangering the production of a maximum crop.

EARLY RIPENING VARIETIES.

62. When first grown in the colony, several of the imported rices showed a well-marked tendency to early maturity, some ripening in less than four months from seed-planting, as compared with from five to six months required by the Creole kind. This tendency has gradually disappeared, and the rices no longer show any power of maturing appreciably earlier than does the Creole.

63. In round figures about five tons of seed-paddy of the best kinds have been obtained for distribution in 1910.

The expenditure on the experiments with rice during the financial years 1908-1909 was $116 and during the period April 1 to October 30, 1909, it amounted to $283.

COTTON.

64. During the period under review the experiments with cotton were continued but were accompanied by little success. The weather conditions towards the end of 1908 were favourable to the growth of the sugar-cane but proved disastrous to the production of cotton. The yield from the varieties under trial in 1907 and in 1908 were as follows :—

	Lbs. of seed cotton per acre.
	1907	1908.
Caravonica Silk Cotton	1400	283
Caravonica Silk Cotton, 2nd selection	120
Metafi Egyptian Cotton	230	not planted.
Metafi Egyptian Cotton, 1st selection	340	"
Metafi Egyptian Cotton 2nd selection	550	171
Metafi Egyptian Cotton, 3rd selection	100
Caravonica Wool Cotton	520	nil
Buck Cotton	450	280
Caravonica Kidney Cotton	385	235
Joanovitch Egyptian Cotton	380	100
Sea Island Cotton	270	not planted.

As in no year, with the possible exception of 1907 in the case of Caravonica Silk Cotton, has the yield of any variety of cotton been high enough to cover the costs of cultivation, which are necessarily exceptionally high on heavy clay soils, it is not considered advisable to continue comparative experiments with introduced varieties. They have therefore been abandoned.

65. Samples of six varieties of cottons which are practically indigenous on the lands of the interior of the colony contiguous to its frontier with Brazil were sent to the Imperial Institute, and the following are the salient parts in the reports received from Professor Wyndham R. Dunstan, F. R. S. :—

Sample.—"Kineabu, the common cotton of the country."

Variety.—Brazilian "Kidney."

Description.—Cotton-bolls of average size, three-lobed.

Lint.—Rather 'woolly', lustrous, pale cream colour with a small quantity of yellowish brown stain. Yield on ginning only 23 per cent., easily separated from the seed.

Seed.—"Kidney" variety in clusters of 6 to 9 seeds. Generally smooth and dark brown in colour, occasional clusters, thickly invested with a bright green down. All the seeds examined were healthy.

Commercial value.—About 7d. per lb. with 'fair' Pernam at 6.53d. per lb. and 'good fair' moderately rough Peruvian at 8.50d. per lb.

Remarks.—The cotton is of good quality, but slightly depreciated in value by the presence of stained portions; it would be readily saleable.

Sample.—"Suwad."

Variety.—Probably 'improved' American.

Description.—Unginned cotton.

Lint.—Soft, lustrous, even cream colour, generally free from stains. Yield on ginning 29 per cent.; not easily separated from the seed.

Seed.—Rather large, and generally closely invested with a brownish-green or green down. All the seeds examined were healthy and there were no signs of the attack of insect pests.

Commercial value.—About 8d. per lb. with "middling" American at 5.68d. per lb. and "good" Abassi at 10½d. per lb.

Remarks.—This cotton had probably been grown from 'improved' American Upland seed. It is of excellent quality and almost approaches Egyptian Abassi cotton in character.

Sample.—"Awintearda."

Variety.—Probably Brazilian.

Description.—Unginned cotton.

Lint.—Rather harsh, lustrous, fairly even cream colour, generally free from stains. Yield on ginning 31.5 per cent.; very easily separated from the seed.

Seed.—Occasionally adhering together in twos and threes, large, generally smooth and dark reddish-brown in colour, a few partially covered with a light brown down. Six per cent. of the seeds examined were withered, but there were no signs of the attack of insect pests.

Commercial value.—About 7½d. per lb. with 'fair' Pernam at 6.53d. per lb. and 'good fair' moderately rough Peruvian at 8.50d. per lb.

Remarks.—This cotton is similar in character to "Kineabu," but is of better colour and free from stains; it is of very good quality.

Sample.—"Wisadie."

Variety.—Probably Brazilian.

Description.—Unginned Cotton.

Lint.—Rather harsh, lustrous, even cream colour, generally free from stains. Yield on ginning 31 per cent.; fairly easily separated from the seed.

Seed.—About one-third were of the 'kidney' variety, occurring in clusters of six to eight smooth seeds; the remainder were single, and covered with a light reddish-brown down. All the seeds examined were healthy.

Commercial value.—About 7½d. per lb. with 'fair' Pernam at 6.53d. per lb. and 'good fair' moderately rough Peruvian at 8.50d. per lb.

Remarks.—This cotton is slightly darker in colour than "Awintearda," but is of very similar quality.

Sample.—“Bisa Tail.”

Variety.—Probably Brazilian.

Description.—Unginned cotton.

Lint.—Rather harsh, even cream colour, entirely free from stains. Yield on ginning 35 per cent.; fairly easily separated from the seed.

Seed.—Of medium size and generally covered with a short, light-brown down; some seeds only partially covered. 8 per cent. of the seeds examined were withered, but there were no signs of the attack of insect pests.

Commercial value.— $7\frac{1}{2}$ to 8d. per lb. with ‘fair Pernam’ at 6.53d. per lb. and ‘good fair’ moderately rough Peruvian at 8.50d. per lb.

Remarks.—This cotton is similar to “Wisadie.”

Sample.—“Purume.”

Variety.—Brazilian “Kidney.”

Description.—Unginned cotton.

Lint.—Rather harsh, lustrous, even pale cream colour, entirely free from stains. Yield on ginning 25 per cent.; easily separated from the seeds.

Seed.—“Kidney” variety in clusters of 5 to 9 seeds; generally smooth and dark brown in colour. 8 per cent. of the seeds examined were withered.

Commercial value.—About 8d. per lb. with ‘fair’ Pernam at 6.53d. per lb. and ‘good fair’ moderately rough Peruvian at 8.50d. per lb.

Remarks.—This cotton is of excellent quality, similar to “Kineabu,” but of better colour.

CONCLUSIONS.

“These samples of cotton compare favourably with standard specimens of similar varieties and all of them would be readily saleable in this country. The “Suwad” cotton, which appears to have been grown from American seed, is of very superior quality and would probably be in greater demand in the English market than the rougher Brazilian types, which although of excellent character would be somewhat more limited in their commercial applications.

The yield of lint from the “Kineabu” and “Purume” cottons (23 and 25 per cent. respectively) is lower than usual for ‘kidney’ cotton, which generally furnishes about 28 per cent. All the cottons had been well grown and there were no signs of the attack of insect pests.

It was pointed out to Professor Dunstan that the Suwad lint sent for examination was the product of a practically indigenous tree cotton, and in a further communication he wrote:—“The sample of Suwad cotton closely resembles a cotton of the ‘Improved’ American type and there is no doubt that it would be classified as such in the market.

“I am interested to learn that this cotton is regarded as an indigenous tree cotton and it shall be so described in our Collections.”

The experiments with the artificially produced hybrids of Sea Island cotton and Buck cotton have been continued and selections are being made on modern principles from the hybrids and their progeny. It is yet too early to make any forecast as to results that may accrue from these trials.

BANANAS.

66. The trials of the imported varieties of bananas made in earlier progress reports have been continued. None of them have proved superior to the varieties already under cultivation in the colony with regard to either the quality and flavour of their fruits, their productivity, or their general robustness and vigour of growth.

FRUIT TREES.

67. The beds on the sides of the road in the middle of the Experimental Fields along which fruit trees are planted, were heavily mulched with rice straw in October, 1907, in the same month of 1908 and in November, 1909. The rice straw applied contained approximately per 100 parts:—

Nitrogen7
Phosphoric anhydride2
Potash4

The results which have followed on these dressings have been most satisfactory. The trees now pass through the long dry season without wilting or otherwise showing injury. Since the system of mulching was started in October, 1907, they have made excellent growth. The use of heavy mulchings of rice straw has been followed by a change from conditions which, at times, appeared almost hopeless of success to conditions full of promise for future results.

CACAO.

68. Experiments with Cacao are confined to Onderneeming School farm. The crops of the calendar years 1908 and 1909 were by far the heaviest recorded at Onderneeming School, their yields being, in round figures, 3,860 and 4,760 lbs. of cured cacao, respectively, as compared with a mean annual yield of 1,060 during the five years prior to the reduction of the shade trees and with an annual yield of 1,870 lbs. during the six years immediately succeeding that reduction.

69. A series of experiments under a system of strict soil control has been started at Onderneeming School, one of the objects of which is to test the applicability of the method of cultivation advocated in certain of the West Indian Islands on what appears to us to be the results of experiments conducted without any adequate system of control, by which the cacao trees receive from time to time heavy mulchings of green manures in place of manuring with farmyard or artificial manures. If this method proves successful this colony should in time become a place of importance in relation to the production of cacao. We have at present only the results of the first year's reapings which, in round figures, are as follows :—

			Wet Cacao per acre.
Manurings.	No. of plots.	Mean Yields.	Apparent probable error.
No manure	5	1,320 lbs.	± 50 lbs.
Mulchings	3	1,530 ..	± 110 ..
Nitrogen only	2	1,230 ..	+ 20 ..
Potash and phosphates ..	2	1,470 ..	± 50 ..
Nitrogen and phosphates ..	3	1,410 ..	± 110 ..
Nitrogen, phosphates and potash	2	1,260 ..	± 60 ..

The heavily mulched plots have given the best results but, having regard to the probable errors of the experiments, only to a slight extent. The actions of the artificial manures during the first year of their application have been negligible.

No increased return resulted from the application of lime to the land, the trees on 17 not-limed plots, yielding 1,410 lbs. of pulp per acre, those on a similar number of limed plots 1287 lbs. per acre.

The following account of other cultivations at Onderneeming School Farm has been condensed from notes by Mr. S. H. Bayley, the Superintendent :—

COFFEE.

70. Save for a comparatively few trees of various varieties at the Botanic Gardens, Georgetown, trials with coffee are confined to the Farm at Onderneeming School. The cultivation is in a very satisfactory condition, the trees having a very healthy appearance whilst no signs of disease are in evidence. The results of this are seen in the consistent increase of the crops. Early in 1904, the Director of Science and Agriculture considered that the area under cultivation was too extensive for the available labour and that better results would be obtained by abandoning certain fields and thoroughly cultivating a smaller area on an intensive system. The cultivation was reduced by one-third and the remaining two-thirds were drastically pruned, most of the trees of Liberian coffee, some of which had reached a height of nearly twenty feet, being cut back to four or five feet.

The average annual yield for the five years preceding 1904, was 3,800 lbs. of cured coffee while the crop for the present year, from two-thirds of the area then in cultivation, is, in round figures, 6,000 lbs. The limit of increase due to the intensive cultivation has not yet been reached. The yields since 1904 have been as follows :—

1904-05 ..	1,800 lbs.
1905-06 ..	2,500 ..
1906-07 ..	3,250 ..
1907-08 ..	5,350 ..
1908-09 ..	5,500 ..
1909-10 ..	6,000 ..

In addition to Liberian and Arabian coffee, the following varieties are under trial :— Stenophylla, Stenophylla Hybrid, Robusta, Zanzibarensis and Maragogipe. The three first named have all fruited; the yield of berries of the Stenophylla comparing favourably numerically with that of the Arabian but the berry is much smaller. The flavour of the beverage made from this variety of coffee has been described by connoisseurs as excellent. The yield from Robusta cannot yet be stated with any certainty as the trees of this variety are only now producing their first crop.

The Zanzibarensis and Maragogipe have not yet fruited.

LIMES.

71. The cultivation of limes has received attention during the period under review and considerable progress has been made. The small area planted about twenty months ago, with plantains and cassava growing between the trees, is now thoroughly established and the catch crops have been discontinued. A further area of about ten acres has been successfully planted and the cultivation is still being extended. Where the cultivation crosses sand reefs, coconut palms have been planted between the limes.

Experiments in the different methods of raising seedlings have been pursued on an extensive scale and the best results have been obtained from planting in nursery beds. These beds which are located in sheltered but not shaded spots, are 25 feet in length and 5 feet in breadth, the soil, a sandy loam, is forked and broken up, a high degree of tilth being obtained. The seeds are then planted six inches apart in rows ten inches from one another. Three seeds are planted in each hole and if more than one germinate the smaller plants are removed when three or four inches high. Prior to planting, the seeds—which should be fresh—are washed to remove the mucilage, which if left offers a strong attraction for rats and mice.

The seedlings are allowed to remain in these beds until they have attained a height of twenty-four to thirty inches when they are carefully lifted and planted out in the fields, their tap-roots being cut back before planting.

Better results have been obtained by planting out seedlings when two to three feet high than by moving them when about twelve to eighteen inches.

Trials have also been made by germinating seeds in boxes and transplanting the plantlets when two or three inches high into baskets and pots, but in comparison with the system of nursery beds this method has proved unnecessarily expensive, difficult, and generally unsatisfactory. The nursery bed system detailed above is simple and inexpensive and is strongly recommended as within the power of every cultivator who wishes to plant limes.

FRUIT AND MISCELLANEOUS PRODUCTS BELT.

72. Not the least interesting part of the cultivation at Onderneeming is a belt or dam 123 roods by 3 roods planted up in 1902 by the order of the Director of Science and Agriculture to form a wind break for the cacao cultivation. The following are some of the trees growing on this dam :—

Grafted Mangoes—13 varieties
Nutmegs
Oranges, sweet
Oranges, Tangerine
Oranges, Navel
Limes
Durian
Brazil nut
Jack Fruit
Cinnamon
Pimento
Sapodilla
Guava
Star Apple
Plum Rose
Genip
Tonca Bean
Candle nut Native Cedar Bullet Tree
Jambolan Plum
Goosecherry
Chili Plum
Sapum Jeninani
Hevea brasiliensis
Castilloa elastica
Funtumia elastica.

The nutmegs have fruited profusely and are vigorously growing plants. The fruit however is easily affected by drought and shrivels in a remarkable manner, but fills out again when the rains come.

The Navel orange tree has fruited sparingly. The fruit is of good quality.

The two Durian trees are making satisfactory growth and keeping healthy.

The Brazil nut grows very slowly, but is nevertheless a healthy plant.

One of the Tonca Bean trees has flowered a second time but no fruit has formed.

Jack fruit, Cinnamon and Pimento are all making excellent growth. Of the other fruit trees growing in other parts of the cultivation special mention should be made of the Souari nut—one tree planted in February, 1906, has flowered but not fruited while another planted in August, 1905, has between twenty and thirty fruit and some have already been gathered. The nuts are being planted at the Botanic Gardens and at Onderneeming. It is interesting to note that this tree is only twenty feet high with a stem girth of twenty inches. The early age at which it has fruited is at striking variance with generally received ideas of the great length of time this tree takes to reach the bearing stage.

The grafted oranges from Trinidad, planted out in February, 1906, are making good growth and one of them has produced a few fruits.

RUBBER.

73. As a great deal of attention is being directed at present towards this product we have considered it desirable to bring our account of the trials in progress up to March 31, 1910.

With the exception of a few plants at the Botanic Gardens, Georgetown, the earliest trials established were on Onderneeming School Farm, these were followed by some plantings on a restricted scale at Christianburg, Demerara river, then by the establishment of the Isorora Station in the North West District, by the extension of the trials at Christianburg and of the plantings at the Botanic Gardens and, lastly, by the starting of the Sapium rubber reserve at Bonasika River. The results will be considered in the order of the installation of the trials.

TRIALS AT THE BOTANIC GARDENS, GEORGETOWN.

74. Hevea brasiliensis is being experimented with in the Shelter belt, in the friable soils of the Nursery at the Botanic Gardens, in the very heavy soils in the Brickdam field, and on the eastern side of the rice field where the conditions resemble closely those of abandoned sugar-cane fields. The growth of Hevea brasiliensis in the nursery beds has been fair where the trees are sheltered from wind; those in the rice field, well sheltered from wind by the belt of secondary growth trees, are much more vigorous than those more exposed; whilst those in the Brickdam field, fully exposed to wind, have made very slow progress. All the trees, whether sheltered or not, present an appearance of retarded growth, for the bark is of a dull grey colour and of that peculiar 'hard' appearance which is commonly noticed in permanent crops that are not growing vigorously. The effect of the sea breezes has been closely watched throughout the year and it is obvious that where Hevea brasiliensis is exposed to strong winds on the coastal lands of the colony, a marked dry spell of weather results in a general shedding of the leaves. It has been observed that some trees in the Brickdam field have shed their leaves three or four times during the past year, and consequently their growth has been very slow. In the rice field a large number of the plants are branching naturally at about 12 to 15 feet, while it has been necessary to top some of the tallest trees. The plants which were under heavy shade in the Shelter belt have practically all died.

75. The Sapium Jenmani plants in the Brickdam field and in the eastern portion of the rice field have grown but little during the past year. They are affected constantly with scale insects which often cause many of their branches to die back. The trees grow in a very shrubby manner and their general appearance is most unsatisfactory, and there seems little hope of this kind being of value for wind-swept coastal lands of the colony abandoned from sugar-cane. The original plant of Sapium Jenmani planted in the central Avenue of the Botanic Gardens by the late Mr. Jenman some twenty-six years ago fully bears out what might be expected of this kind of rubber-producing tree on the heavy clay lands of the coast. It is a shrubby plant that every year loses a considerable number of branches from attacks of scale insects, and it is never without some dead twigs. The Sapium plants on the friable soil in the nursery continue to grow fairly satisfactorily. They are here well sheltered from wind and the soil is practically a 'made-up' nursery soil. They have been tapped slightly in order to ascertain how wounds caused by tapping may be expected to heal in cultivations, as certain points in regard to the trees grown on the Reserve at Bonasika, where tapping experiments are being carried on, require solution. The cuts are healing quite satisfactorily. Nearly all the Sapiums growing in the Botanic Gardens and the Brickdam field have fruited during the past year and a large number of young seedlings has been raised.

76. Castilloa elastica planted in the Brickdam field is making no growth at all. The trees in the nursery have not grown much during the year, but they look healthy and vigorous. The akee-fringed scale affects them somewhat, but this is kept in control by constant spraying.

Euntomia elastica is making practically no growth in the nursery and some of the trees have been badly infected with scales; those in the Brickdam field are not growing satisfactorily, while those planted in the rice field have almost entirely died out.

Manihot glaziovii has been planted in the nursery, Brickdam field, and the Rice field. The trees in the nursery are the best, and produce seed regularly. Their growth, however, has been poor and does not in any way warrant their being planted on the coast-lands, and they drop their leaves very frequently. The large trees situated in the nursery are apparently self-rooted from the baskets that originally contained them.

Manihot ramanso has been planted out in the Rice field. Most of the plants have died and those that do remain are exceedingly poor.

Among other rubber-producing plants that have from time to time been planted out in the nursery and the Botanic Gardens are:—Hevea guianensis, Ficus elastica, Landolphia spp., Forsteronia gracilis, Cryptostegia grandiflora, C. Madagascariensis, Plumeria saccubus, Tabernaemontana sp., and the local hatties, Hevea Spruceana, H. pauciflora and H. confusa.

ONDERNEEMING.

77. The following are abstracts from reports of the Superintendent who is in charge of the trials at Onderneeming School farm:—

The rubber experiments are making satisfactory progress.

The Hevea brasiliensis (Para rubber) trees appear to be very hardy. Some were planted in undrained swamp and some in sand. Experience has shown that these conditions are unsuitable for their cultivation. The plants have kept alive although the rate of growth has been less than half that of other seedlings planted at the same time on well-drained clay soils. Several of the Hevea trees have flowered during the period under review, and one tree 26 feet high with a girth of 26 inches which was planted in December, 1903, has borne fruit. Some of the seeds were sent to the Botanic Gardens in Georgetown, whilst ninety-eight seeds were set in our own nursery and produced eighty-seven young plants. The Hevea trees at this Farm have shown a greater tendency to increase in their trunk measurements during the past year than in the earlier years.

The trees of Sapium Jenmani are making excellent growth: one planted in February, 1907, having reached a height of 25 feet with a girth of 23 inches while another planted at the same time measures 19 feet with a girth of 21 inches.

The Castilloa elastica (Central American rubber) trees have with few exceptions done badly. The most promising tree of this variety is one planted on a sand reef.

The Funtumia elastica (West African rubber) trees are healthy and the majority are making fair growth. There are over two hundred trees of this variety at Onderneeming. Some of them have been tapped and definite and reliable information as to the quality and quantity of the rubber yielded by them will, in the course of a few years, be obtained.

78. Trial tapplings of a few trees were made in July, 1909, by Mr. C. W. Anderson, I. S. O., Forestry Officer. The following are abstracts from his reports to the Director, Science and Agriculture :—

Hevea brasiliensis.—Of the Hevea brasiliensis trees only one was found to be of sufficient size for tapping, the girth, three feet from the ground, being 21 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches, and the age 7 years.

The object of the tapplings of this tree was to determine the occurrence of "wound response," which forms so important a feature in this species. This was fully established.

African Rubber Trees.—The five African rubber trees (Funtumia elastica), which were chosen for tapping were planted, according to the Onderneeming records, on the 31st of December, 1905, and were therefore about 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ years of age. Their average girth was only 14 inches, the largest not being more than 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in girth, and their length of trunk did not permit of the tapping cuts being carried beyond an average height of not quite six feet above the ground.

The Funtumia rubber trees at Onderneeming appear to be of very small growth for their age, and as the size of the tree, both with respect to girth and height, is an important factor which determines the yield, it is therefore not surprising to find that very poor results were obtained from tapping them—one ounce of rubber from five trees.

CHRISTIANBURG, DEMERARA RIVER.

79. The trials at Christianburg were started with the view of ascertaining the suitability of the soils at that place, which are representative of the soils of a great area of the upper parts of the Demerara River district, for rubber cultivation. There are now two small areas of less than an acre each which were planted early in 1906, and one of nearly fifteen acres planted in 1908 and 1909.

The following are extracts from a report by the Agricultural Superintendent on a recent visit to Christianburg :—

The Rubber cultivation, started in 1906 is beginning to reveal something of the suitability or non-suitability of the soil for its successful culture. Although the trees are still in their infancy they are yielding some useful information, especially the ones planted in 1906, which are now nearly four years old.

A careful inspection of the cultivation was made where rubber trees of the following kinds were planted:—Hevea spp.,* Sapium, Manihot, and Funtumia. The two last named have practically died out, only one or two half-dead plants still remaining; while the Hevea spp. and Sapium have done much better, but the growth of even these cannot be looked upon as satisfactory.

Some trees are growing on low-lying land by the side of the creek and here the Heveas have done rather better than the Sapiums. On the other hand among the trees growing on the slope of the rising land the Sapiums have done the better.

The soil in both places varies somewhat. It is however generally the heavier in the low ground. It varies from a friable, clayey loam to a soil of lighter nature. The land on the low ground is flooded at times while the other has satisfactory natural drainage. The soil appears to be the cause of the unsatisfactory growth.

80. Two years ago eight Sapiums were planted on the "Mora reef" soil on the river bank. This is very different soil to that of the experimental plots, and here they have made remarkably fine growth for two years. Unfortunately no Heveas were planted there and it is not possible to say what they would have done in this soil, but judging from the growth that the eight Sapiums have made they would have done well. There is an unlimited area of this soil available in this and other districts but it is difficult at present to know how to utilize it and it is of importance to arrange for trials with Para rubber on it.

The measurements of the two-year old Sapium trees growing on the "Mora reef" soil on the river bank are as follows :—

Girth at base	14 inches
Girth, 3 feet from ground	10 ..
Largest tree, girth at base	16 ..
Largest tree, girth at 3 feet from ground	10 ..

81. The area planted with Heveas, Sapiums, Castilloas, etc. early last year is on light soil. The Hevea trees are very promising. Special mention should be made of the Castilloas planted in this field, for many of them have made fairly satisfactory growth.

The last new field taken in and planted in December is of a more sandy nature and I am of opinion it is too sandy to be of much use for rubber cultivation; but trials on it will supply a very useful lesson as to the probability of successful rubber growing on such soils.

* The Heveas planted at Christianburg for the purposes of comparative trials were Hevea brasiliensis, H. Spruceana, H. pauciflora, and H. confusa. These have recently been inspected by us, and the growth of the three last-mentioned species, the native kinds, has been slow and unsatisfactory.

ISSORORA STATION, ARUKA RIVER, NORTH WESTERN DISTRICT.

82. The rubber experiments at the Experiment Station, Issorora, may be divided under two heads :—(1) the examination of various kinds of rubber-producing trees under varying conditions of planting and cultivation to ascertain which are the most suited to the condition of soil and climate prevailing in that part of the colony, and (2) the critical examination of the conditions necessary for the most successful growth of the indigenous rubber tree (Sapium Jenmani) and of the Para rubber tree (Hevea brasiliensis). The general arrangement of the trials is due to Mr. E. W. F. English whilst acting as Director, Science and Agriculture, in 1907, but it has since been added to and modified in many ways.

83. The several kinds of rubber-producing plants are being experimented with under the following conditions :—

A. On the flat—the land consists of a mixture of clay and pegass.

1. Hevea and Sapium planted in the forest without any clearing or drainage.

2. Hevea, Sapium, and Funtumia planted in the forest which has been cleared of the smaller under bush and some of the larger trees, so that the plants get top-light. This section has been drained.

3. Hevea, Sapium, and Funtumia planted in three rood lines cleared through the forest with drains on either side of them. Three rood belts of forest trees have been left in between the several clearings.

4. Hevea, Sapium, Castilloa, and Funtumia planted in well-drained, empoldered and thoroughly cleared land, the weeds being kept down by the temporary growth of provision crops such as cassava, tannias, bananas, etc.

B.—On hill slopes—the land consists of a reddish laterite, a ferruginous clay derived from an epidiorite.

Beds of Hevea, Funtumia, and Castilloa planted as above in three rood lines through the forest.

84. The experiments obtained to date have given information that cannot fail to be of value to prospective rubber planters and are here briefly indicated :

A. 1.—Only those plants which happened to be growing in spaces where they could obtain a fair amount of light have grown at all. Many others are still alive but have made practically no growth, while a very large number have died out entirely.

A. 2.—The Funtumias in this section have died out within two years from date of planting, the majority having died during the second year after planting out. A certain number of the Sapiums have died, while the others have made little or no progress, the majority of them only averaging about 3 to 4 feet at 2 years old. Some of the Heveas have grown to a height of 12 feet and to 3 to 5 inches in girth, but most of the trees average about 6 to 8 feet in height and 3 inches in girth. The best trees are always to be found in places that are fairly open, where the overhead shade from the forest trees is practically nil.

A. 3.—The Funtumias have died out entirely and have been replaced by Heveas. Some of the Heveas and Sapiums in these lines are looking fairly satisfactory especially in the centre rows where they obtain sufficient light and air. Where the forest belts have grown out, as they have done in some instances, and shaded the trees to a certain extent they have not grown at all satisfactorily. The Sapiums in these lines are uneven, those in one having made good progress while those in another have grown very slowly. Heveas planted in this section tend to grow very tall and have not made such satisfactory girth as where they have been planted in fully cleared areas.

A. 4.—Some of the Funtumias have grown considerably during the past year but a large number of the plants that were originally planted have died out. Funtumias have a tendency to become bushy, and they need constant attention in regard to pruning. The growth made by the best of the Funtumias does not warrant this plant being recommended for planting, as its growth compares most unfavourably with that of either Hevea or Sapium. The Sapium have grown vigorously. The early rate of growth has been maintained and the girth measurements are very satisfactory. The girth of the largest tree at 3 feet from the ground is 21½ inches at two years and one month from planting out. Sapium requires careful attention during the earlier stages of its growth if the best results are to be expected. Pruning must be carefully carried out. The lower branches should be pruned back from the beginning in the manner recommended by the Department of Science and Agriculture if a clean stem is to be obtained. This plant has a tendency to send out a large number of side branches, which if left to become large, leave, when removed, scars that make the stem uneven. Smaller branches also die back, leaving depressions in the stem that take some time to fill in. By careful pruning, however, even, clean stems can readily be obtained and therefore pruning should be carried out from the earliest stages until a length of stem of at least 8 feet has been reached. Many of the older trees at the Experiment Station have sent out two or more large branches at their tops which eventually produce a branched spreading head to the trees. The Sapium is somewhat brittle and some of these larger limbs have been broken with the wind. It is probable that if these larger branches were carefully pruned this damage might be averted. Our experience seems to indicate that when two or three branches are thrown out at the top to eventually 'starve out' the central stem, it may be advantageous to prune them back in such a way that only one is left to form a central stem. Scale insects (Lecanium nigrum and Lecanium hemisphaericum) have affected a few of the trees, but these can effectually be kept in check with rosin compound, as they do not appear to have spread on the Station during the year. Grant-holders should be advised to carefully search their trees, and if scales are found, spraying with a good insecticide should be resorted to. The Heveas are growing quite satisfactorily, several of them having attained a girth measurement of from 9 to 11½ inches at 3 feet from the ground in two years. Many have branched naturally, while others have been topped. Where they have branched naturally the first branching has been observed to consist of a single outstanding side-branch, and later the general branching takes place. It has been debated whether it may not be advisable to remove these single side-branches, especially in situations exposed to wind. It is becoming obvious that those trees that have good whorls of branches are almost without exception of a greater girth measurement than those which have not branched at all, and it would appear desirable for a uniform stand to top all the trees as they reach 12 to 15 feet in height, by thumb-nail pruning, rather than to allow them to branch naturally, especially when some of the trees may reach a height of 20 to 25 feet before such branching takes place. In wind-swept situations it may be found to be advisable to top the Heveas at 10 feet, as by thickening up they will thereby be better able to stand the force of the wind. A comparison of the growth of the Heveas at this Station with figures available from the East indicate that the growth for the past two years has been quite satisfactory and compares very favourably with that reported elsewhere.

B.—The Funtumias in one of the hill beds have grown fairly well during the past year and seem to be promising. They are better than those growing on the flat, and the loss has not been as great. They have grown very bushy and will need thorough pruning. The Heveas have grown much slower than on the flat, those on the very steep slopes recently planted up having made little or no growth. It is evident that these trees, planted on hills such as that at the Station, will take much longer to reach maturity than those planted on the pegassy flat lands, but when greater attention is given to systematic weeding of these hill slope beds it is possible that better results will be obtained, as the bush grows very rapidly. The majority of the Castilloa plants have either died out or are infested with the akee-fringed scale, (Asterolecanium pustulans) and are consequently making little or no growth. It is evident from the experiments already conducted, that Castilloa cannot be expected to thrive under the conditions prevailing at this Station, there being only two trees of the variety on the whole station that have made any progress.

BONASIKA RESERVE.

85. At the Bonasika reserve in the Essequibo, tapping experiments have been carried on at more or less short intervals throughout the year. On this reserve 41 trees of Sapium Jenmani are growing naturally and of these ten have been regularly tapped.

From the latex some very fair samples of biscuit-rubber and a certain quantity of scrap has been obtained. Some of the rubber obtained in the later tappings has shown a tendency to be 'tacky.' The cause of this defect is being sought for.

86. It has been observed that with the Bonasika trees, which apparently are of many years' growth, the lower edges of the cuts in the bark have a tendency, if left for any length of time before being pared for re-tapping, to die back and become very hard. This makes re-tapping difficult and a large amount of bark is lost. With shorter intervals of time between successive tappings, less dying back is noticed and it is most probable that if the successive tappings were carried out on, say every other day, no dying back of the lower edges of the cuts would result. It is possible that this defect may not characterise trees of young and vigorous growth; and this has been indicated in experimental tappings of some trees in the nursery of the Botanic Gardens, Georgetown. The tapping experiments, so far, emphasize the great importance of avoiding any damage to the cambial layers. If the cambium is cut, a gaping wound results and the wood becomes exposed. The wood of Sapium Jenmani is relatively soft and rots quickly if exposed to the effects of weather, while it is far from immune to attacks of wood ants and boring insects. The pricker has been experimented with and has been discarded as it causes an undesirable degree of injury to the cambium.

87. Careful records are being kept of all the rubber obtained, with a view to ascertaining at an early date what yields may be expected from this rubber-producing tree and to finding out what is the best time of the day and of the year for tapping to be carried on. It is yet too early to make definite statements regarding these points but the latest tappings have not been giving such good results as the earlier ones did.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

88. The results of all our trials may be summarized as follows:—

1. Castilloa elastica, the Central American rubber tree, has failed at all stations.
2. Funtumia elastica, the West African rubber, is making some growth on the sandy loam at Onderneeming School farm, and tappings have been commenced. This kind has entirely failed on the heavy clay lands at the Botanic Gardens while at the Issorora Station it is thriving much better on the laterite hill slopes than on the mixed clay and pegass flat lands of the river bank. On the flat a very large number of plants have died out, but the general appearance on the hill slopes would appear to warrant further experimentation on a limited scale.

3. Hevea brasiliensis has not grown at all well on the heavy clay lands at the Botanic Gardens which are typical of the front lands of the coastal district of the colony, abandoned from sugar cultivation. It is doing fairly well on the clayey-loams at Onderneeming, and is growing very satisfactorily on the pegassy-clay bottom lands at the Issorora Station, but not so well on the laterite hill slopes. Some young plants on some of the clay soils at Christianburg are decidedly promising at the present time, although older trees have not grown so satisfactorily.

4. Hevea requires to be thoroughly protected from the wind if the best results are to be expected. The strong and constant winds of the coast land produce a reddish shrivelled appearance of the leaves and frequent leaf fall. This retards greatly the growth of the plants.

5. Hevea in some localities branches naturally at from 12 to 20 feet, but our experience indicates that topping at 12 to 15 feet in sheltered favourable places and at 10 feet in wind-swept situations is to be recommended if a uniform stand is required. After branching, a relatively greater increase of girth takes place than previously, and therefore the obtaining of as early branching as possible should be aimed at. If planted 20 feet by 20 feet, a height of 12 to 15 feet would be sufficient before topping, but in closer planted cultivations the trees should be allowed to grow to a greater height.

6. Hevea grows slowly under shade, but in the open it has made at Issorora growth that compares favourably with growth reported from the East and other countries, when it has been planted in well-drained, fully cleared land or fairly well protected from wind. When planted in cleared lines through the forest the growth has been irregular.

7. Sapium has grown vigorously on the pegassy clay lands of the Issorora Station. Some good trees are also growing on 'Mora-reef' soil at Christianburg. On the coastal lands, constantly swept by wind, as exemplified by the experiments at the Botanic Gardens, it has practically failed, small bushy plants, liable to scale attacks, only resulting. When planted in fully cleared land, well drained, it has made excellent grow in the point of girth and appears to be promising for growth on such types of soil as that at the Issorora Station.

8. Sapium, similarly to Hevea, will not grow at all satisfactorily under shade or in undrained land.

9. Sapium requires very careful attention in regard to pruning from its earliest stages if well formed trees are desired. A clean, even stem of at least 8 feet should be aimed at, and big branches should be removed from the tops of the trees in windy situations.

10. Scale insects affect Sapium to some extent but they can be controlled by spraying with suitable insecticides. This liability to scale should induce cultivators of this tree to plant in 50 to 100 acre sections with good forest belts between the different sections.

11. Tapping experiments with Sapium have not yet been carried on for a sufficient length of time to warrant expressions of opinion as to possible returns from this tree. Systematic experiments are in hand and definite information should soon be available.

12. The detrimental effect that constant winds have on both Hevea and Sapium indicate that in laying out large plantations, cultivators should lay them out in sections with good protective forest belts in between the different sections, and on no occasion should the tops of the hills be bared. A well-laid out plantation should have protective forest belts as wind breaks in order to keep wind out of the cultivation. This policy is also most desirable from an estate plant-sanitation point of view.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,

15th July, 1910.

THE Deputy Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following Report by Professor J. B. Harrison, C.M.G., M.A., Director of Science and Agriculture, on an examination of specimens of rock obtained from the low hills at Christianburg and Akyma on the Demerara River.

By Command,

J. DRYSDALE,
Acting Assistant Government Secretary.

SCIENCE AND AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT,
Georgetown, Demerara,
27th May, 1910.

SIR,—I have the honour to report for the information of the Governor that I have examined specimens of rocks obtained from the low hills at Christianburg and at Akyma, Demerara River and have found them to largely consist of free alumina in the state of hydrate. A specimen obtained from a shoal in the bed of the Demerara River at a distance of about half a mile above Christianburg was found to be of similar nature and to contain over 41 per cent. of free alumina in the form of hydrate.

2. The rocks are hard, earthy looking, cream-coloured masses with here and there red ochreous patches. Their compositions are shown in the following :—

	Christian- burg.	Wismar in River.	Akyma.
Quartz42	4.74	.67
Colloid silica14	.62	.12
Combined silica	2.29	3.58	1.92
Aluminum oxide	67.28	45.14	64.86
Iron peroxide	1.53	23.03	.85
Magnesium oxide07	.31	.31
Calcium oxide02	trace	.03
Sodium oxide	Nil	Nil	Nil
Potassium oxide08	.15	.15
Combined water	27.46	21.68	30.47
Titanium oxide	1.07	1.12	.75
Phosphoric anhydride	Trace	trace	trace
Manganese oxide	Nil	Nil	Nil
	100.36	100.37	100.13

3. Microscopical examinations of thin slices show that these rocks have a more or less well-marked concretionary structure and that they consist essentially of amorphous aluminum hydrate traversed by thin veins of silica in the forms of quartz and of tridymite; in places they are tinged with iron peroxide and they contain scattered through their mass an abundance of exceedingly minute grains of ilmenite.

4. Taking the Christianburg and the Akyma specimens as the typical ones, their mean mineralogical composition may be represented as follows :—

Quartz, tridymite and colloid silica7
Feldspar7
Kaolinite ($\text{Al}_2\text{Si}_2\text{O}_7, 2\text{H}_2\text{O}$)	2.6
Talc6
Diaspore ($\text{Al}_2\text{O}_3, \text{H}_2\text{O}$)	19.1
Gibbsite ($\text{Al}_2\text{O}_3, 3\text{H}_2\text{O}$)	74.4
Ilmenite	1.7
Hematite3
									100.1

5. After ignition at a red heat the residue has the following composition :—

Silica and silicates	6.4
Iron peroxide	1.7
Titanium oxide	1.3
Alumina	90.6
									100.0

6. The specimens examined are typical examples of cream-coloured laterites which resemble in properties and composition the laterite-nodules from the Central Provinces of India described in the Bulletin of the Imperial Institute No. 3 of Vol. VII. 1909. But the Indian laterites contain only from 52 to 59 per cent. of alumina with from 2.7 to 10.6 per cent. of iron peroxide and from 6.2 to 13.7 per cent. of titanium oxide as compared with 64 to 65 per cent. alumina, .8 to 1.5 per cent. of iron peroxide and .7 to 1.1 per cent. of titanium oxide in the Christianburg and Akyma samples.

7. At present probably these deposits are of too low commercial value to warrant their exploitation for export as sources of aluminum but their exceptional purity renders it desirable for their occurrence to be placed on record. In the future they may be of use as sources of aluminum or of alumina and its salts, whilst the calcined product by its infusibility may prove of use for furnace-linings, etc.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

J. B. HARRISON,

Director.

The Honourable,
The Government Secretary.

32.

15th July, 1910.

THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. DRYSDALE,
Acting Assistant Government Secretary.

THE POLDEKS BILL, 1910.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to enable the proprietors of any area of land in the colony to have it empoldered and to provide for its irrigation and drainage.

2. The Bill provides (clause 1) that on the application of the proprietors of at least one-third of the land, the Governor-in-Council may enquire into the proposal, and have the land surveyed, plans prepared for the scheme, and an estimate of the cost made. Opportunity will be given for all persons interested to oppose (clause 4), and after fully considering the scheme and hearing any opposition to it, the Governor-in-Council will either approve or reject the scheme, and in the former case will declare the land a polder under the Bill (clause 5). These provisions will prevent a satisfactory scheme of irrigation and drainage, beneficial to the bulk of the proprietors, from being wrecked by the refusal of a minority to join in it, and at the same time ensure that no scheme which is not beneficial to the majority will be carried out.

3. It will be observed that the provisions as to the proprietors of one-third of the land, apply only to the initiation of the scheme: one-third can apply to have the machinery of the Bill put in motion, but after that the matter is in the hands of the Governor-in-Council, who will act in the interests of the proprietors as a whole, and may reject the scheme almost at the outset, without waiting for opposition, if the scheme does not appear a suitable one (clause 3), but in no case will a scheme be approved without hearing everyone who has a right to oppose it.

4. When the scheme is approved, it may be carried out either at the cost of the proprietors themselves, or out of moneys provided by the Combined Court, if that Court advances it, in which case the works will be executed by the Public Works Department (clause 5 (3)) and provision is made for the re-payment of such money (clauses 18-21).

5. The Polder Authority is to be elected by the proprietors of the land in the polder (clause 8), but where the Combined Court has advanced the money for the construction of the polder, the Governor-in-Council appoints the Chairman until the money has been repaid (clause 9.)

6. Power is given to the Polder Authority to manage the affairs of the polder, and to assess upon all land in the polder the cost of its maintenance and the re-payment of loans (clauses 14-17).

7. Provision is made that where any Crown or colony land forms part of any polder the Commissioner of Lands and Mines, or any other person appointed by the Governor, shall act as proprietor of such land on behalf of the Crown or colony (clause 23).

8. Provision is also made that the existing polder on the West Bank of the Demerara River shall on the passing of the Bill come under its operation (clause 24), and the Polder Ordinance, 1886, is repealed (clause 26.).

9. Provision is also made to enable a polder or any part of one, to become a district under the Local Government Ordinance, 1907, should that course be considered desirable.

10. The real object of the Bill is to enable the proprietors of land as far as possible to act for themselves, and be subject to a minimum of government control, and to be under such control only so far as is necessary to secure the due consideration of the rights of all parties, and to secure the due re-payment of public moneys when advanced for the purposes of constructing a polder.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE FORMATION AND REGULATION OF POLDERS AND FOR THE IRRIGATION AND DRAINAGE THEREOF."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows:—

Creation of Polders.

Proprietors of land may petition to have it declared a polder.

1.—(1.) The proprietors of any land in the colony may apply by petition to the Governor-in-Council to have any area of land comprising their own and any adjacent land declared a polder under this Ordinance.

(2.) Such petition shall not be considered unless it appears to the Governor-in-Council to have been signed by the proprietors of not less than one-third of the said area of land.

(3.) Upon receipt of the said petition the Governor-in-Council may order that the said area of land be surveyed and an estimate made of the cost of the works necessary to provide adequate irrigation and drainage for such land.

(4.) The Governor-in-Council may also order that any land adjacent to the said area of land shall be included in such survey, if in his opinion it is necessary for the purpose of preparing the scheme for the construction of the proposed polder.

(5.) The cost of such survey and estimate may be defrayed out of such moneys as may be voted for the purpose by the Combined Court.

2.—(1.) When the Governor-in-Council orders that any land shall be surveyed under the last preceding section, and the cost defrayed out of moneys provided by the Combined Court, the Commissioner of Lands and Mines shall cause a plan of such land, drawn to a scale of not less than one inch to twenty Rhymland roods to be prepared, and shall cause to be delineated thereon, the land held by each proprietor of land in the area proposed to be empoldered and the number of acres held by each.

Survey of land for proposed polder.

(2.) The said plan shall be transmitted to the Colonial Civil Engineer, who shall then cause a scheme to be prepared for the irrigation and drainage of the said land, with a statement of the estimated cost of the necessary works, and shall cause to be delineated on the said plan the dams, fresh water supply trenches, main draining trenches, outfalls, kokers, sluices, and locks which is it proposed to make or maintain, and where it is expedient to change the position of the public road, shall delineate on the plan the best position and line for the new public roads and bridges, and the Colonial Civil Engineer shall transmit the said scheme, estimate of cost and plans together with a full report thereon, to the Government Secretary.

3.—The Governor-in-Council shall consider the said scheme together with the estimate and plan and the report thereon, and may in his discretion either refuse the petition or may direct that it shall be proceeded with.

Governor-in-Council to consider scheme.

4.—(1.) If the Governor-in-Council direct that the petition shall be proceeded with a copy of the scheme, together with the estimate of the cost of the necessary works, and of the plan of the land, with the proper delineations thereon, shall be lodged at the office of the Public Works Department in Georgetown, and, if any portion of the land is in the County of Berbice or Essequibo, another copy shall be lodged at the office of the Department in New Amsterdam or Suddie as the case may be.

Copy of scheme and plan of polder to be made public.

(2.) Notice that the documents and plan have been lodged and are open for inspection shall be given by public advertisement in the Gazette and at least one other newspaper published in the colony.

(3.) The documents and plan shall remain open for the inspection of every person desiring to see the same on every day, not being a Sunday or public holiday, during office hours, for one month after the date of the first publication of the notice.

(4.) Any person who considers that his property would be injured by the carrying out of the scheme shall, within such period of one month, lodge with the Public Works Department his objections in writing, and shall state to what amount he considers he would suffer loss if the scheme were carried out, and shall furnish full particulars of such estimated loss.

(5.) After the expiration of such period, of one month, the Public Works Department shall forward any objections made to the scheme, with a full report thereon, to the Government Secretary.

Power to declare land a polder.

5.—(1.) The Governor-in-Council after further considering the scheme referred to in the last preceding section, with all the objections thereto, and after hearing, if he considers it necessary to do so, either before the Council itself or any Committee thereof, any of the persons interested, may make an order declaring the said area of land or any part thereof to be a polder under this Ordinance, and may direct any works to be carried out for the irrigation and drainage of such polder, and may appoint some person to summon a meeting of the proprietors of the land in such polder for the purpose of electing a polder authority as hereinafter provided.

(2.) The order and direction of the Governor-in-Council shall be published in the Gazette.

(3.) If the Combined Court provides the necessary funds for executing the works ordered and directed by the Governor-in-Council to be carried out for the irrigation and drainage of the said polder, the Public Works Department shall carry out and execute the said works for and on behalf of the polder authority.

Compensation to be made for injury in certain cases.

6.—No person shall be entitled to claim compensation for any alleged loss or injury in consequence of the carrying out of any works directed by the Governor-in-Council to be carried out under this Ordinance: Provided that if any building is, or any growing crops are, damaged by reason of any such works being carried out, any person entitled to such building or growing crops may apply to the Stipendiary Magistrate of the District within which the land is situated to have the amount of his claim for the damage ascertained and certified, and the Stipendiary Magistrate shall inquire what is the amount of damage occasioned or estimated to be occasioned by such works, and shall have the same power to inquire into the claim as if the claim were a complaint of petty debt and the polder authority were the defendant, and shall, after investigation, certify, under his hand, what is the estimated amount of damage which the person so entitled may have suffered or will suffer by the carrying out of the works, and the amount certified shall be deemed part of the cost of the construction of the works and shall be paid in the same manner.

Power to alter limits of polder.

7.—(1.) The Governor-in-Council may from time to time at the request of the Polder Authority, hereinafter established, alter or amend any such order, and may alter the limits of any polder.

(2.) The Governor-in-Council, on the petition of the proprietors of any land adjacent to any polder, and after notice thereof has been given by advertisement in the Gazette and in at least one newspaper, and after hearing any person who desires to be heard in opposition thereto and the Polder Authority may order that such land be included in and form part of such polder.

The Polder Authority.

8.—(1.) The Polder Authority shall consist of five persons elected by the proprietors of the land situated in the polder, in the manner hereinafter provided. Constitution of Polder Authority.

(2.) Every member of such Authority shall, except as hereinafter provided, hold office for three years and shall then vacate the same, but shall be eligible for re-election.

half of the north half of the abandoned piece of land called Plantation La Janette, situate at Mahaica creek, to and in favour of Sewinkler, of De Hooa, Mahaica. The plaintiff claims from the defendant Jacob Von Hermanstein, payment of the sum of $110.08 due on certain promissory notes and an order directing the passing of transport in his favour of 40 undivided acres of the said plantation by the defendants Jacob Von Hermanstein, Nathaniel Wilson and Henry Melville on the payment by the plaintiff of $1,000.—as purchase money—in the alternative $500—was claimed as damages. The defendant Von Hermanstein was in default and with regard to him and the defendant Mary Ann Argyle the Court finds that they leased certain undivided portions of their interests in the estate to the plaintiff and that those leases were unexpired and further that the other owners were well aware of those leases and of the portions occupied by the plaintiff, and gave tacit consent thereto; also that the defendant Von Hermanstein was indebted to the plaintiff on three promissory notes in the sum of $110.08.

The Court also finds that an agreement to sell their respective interests was entered into by the defendant Von Hermanstein for $500, and Nathaniel Wilson and Henry Melville for a further sum of $500, the share of those two being equal to that of Von Hermanstein and that $5 was paid to each of those defendants on account of the purchase money. With regard to the evidence of Wilson, Melville and S. Shivasanker they were all interested parties and from their demeanour and the nature of their evidence the Court does not regard them as reliable. The Court holds the opposition to be just, legal and well founded and orders that the defendants be restrained from passing the said transport; and also orders the defendants Von Hermanstein, Nathaniel Wilson and Henry Melville to pass transport of their respective interests being two undivided fourths parts or share of and in La Janette to the Plaintiff on the payment by him to the defendant Von Hermanstein of $384.92 being the balance due after deducting $110.08 the amount due by Von Hermanstein on the promissory notes and $5 paid as earnest money and also on the payment by the Plaintiff to the defendants Wilson and Melville of $490: the balance due after deducting the amount of $10: paid on account of the purchase money. The Court also orders the defendants to pay the costs of the proceedings.

My original judgment is lost after being handed to Registrar as alleged in the Printer's Office. The Solicitors for both parties have initialled this as embodying the Court's judgment in my presence and is therefore signed by me.

THIS 29TH DAY OF JUNE, 1910.

BINDA
HIGGINS.

The plaintiff in this action seeks to recover damages $250 for wrongs sustained under a lease made between himself and Udit Maradge of the one part and the defendant with others of the other part.

The Court is asked to give credence to three witnesses—who can all read and write—that a certain cancellation of the lease made by them and others was only believed by them to be a removal of the name of Udit Maradge from the lease. The Court holds that the parties to this cancellation, of whom the plaintiff was one, knew perfectly well the contents of the document they so signed.

Action dismissed with costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 2ND DAY OF JULY, 1910.

BROWNE et al, Appellants,

versus

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who on a claim made by the respondent against the appellants for $10 06 due under a bond entered into by them on 23rd August, 1905, as sureties in behalf of Evaline De Souza therein described as representing the estate of Mathias de Souza, deceased, gave judgment for the respondent with costs.

A licence to cut wood on Crown land was issued to the said Evaline de Souza as such representative on 14th November, 1905, for and during the term of 5 years from 19th August, 1903, and the bond by appellants was given to ensure the payment of the royalty under the licence and the carrying out and observance of the Regulations. It was further declared and agreed that the "bond shall continue in full force and effect as well during any term for which the said licence may be renewed as during the term for which it may be originally granted." This term expired on 18th August, 1908, and was extended on 23rd September, 1908, for one year from 19th August, 1908, on the written application of "Fitz B. Edwards, attorney of Mrs. E. de Souza in this colony" and it was during this year that the amount claimed in this action accrued.

Among the reasons of appeal it is alleged that the appellants never agreed to continue as sureties if the licence was extended. It is admitted in behalf of the respondent that an extension cannot be regarded as a renewal of the licence under Regulation 8 but it is argued that inasmuch as the Commissioner has the power of extension under Regulation 9 it is an implied condition of the bond which is intended to be binding during the continuance of the licence. This Court cannot import any such implied condition and just as it was found necessary to introduce into the bond the renewal of a licence under Regulation 8 so it would be necessary to introduce the extension of a licence under Regulation 9 in order to render the sureties liable under such extension. It is to be observed that the power of extension can only be exercised before the expiration of the licence and in the present case it was not extended until after such expiration. This appeal must succeed on this ground and therefore it is unnecessary to deal with any of the other reasons of appeal.

Appeal allowed. Decision of Magistrate reversed with costs.

M. J. BERKELEY, J.

THIS 6TH DAY OF JULY, 1910.

SUNNICHARRY,

versus

RAMYARD.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the West Coast Judicial District, who in an action brought by the appellant against the respondent claiming the possession of a certain cow wrongfully detained by him, and in the alternative claiming $50 as its value, gave judgment for the respondent.

The reasons of appeal are that the decision was not warranted by the evidence and that legal evidence had been rejected.

This second reason is not argued on appeal.

The question is one purely of fact, and the Magistrate having come to a conclusion warranted by the evidence, this Court will not interfere with his decision and must express its disapproval of appeals being brought on questions of fact, where on the evidence there can be no reasonable expectation of the Court reversing the Magistrate's decision.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

Government Notice.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,

26th July, 1910.

54. THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

THE ELEMENTARY EDUCATION BILL, 1910.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to amend the Elementary Education Ordinance, 1876, by giving the Inspector of Schools wider powers of cancelling the certificates of teachers guilty of improper conduct. At present a certificate can be suspended only after a teacher has been proved guilty of a specific charge of misconduct. But it may happen (and has happened) that though the specific charge is not made out, yet the enquiry shows that the teacher has been guilty of conduct rendering him quite unfit to have the education and care of children. In such a case at present nothing can be done, and the teacher can remain in charge of a school. The Bill enables the certificate to be cancelled in such cases subject to an appeal to the Governor-in-Council.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE ELEMENTARY EDUCATION ORDINANCE, 1876."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

1. If in any case where proceedings have been taken against any teacher under section seven of the Elementary Education Ordinance, 1876, the Inspector of Schools is of opinion that though the specific duct.

charge made against such teacher has not been proved, yet that the evidence proves that such teacher has been guilty of conduct showing him to be unfit to have charge of or to teach in a school, the Inspector of Schools may cancel the certificate of such teacher or suspend the operation thereof for such time as to him may seem fit.

No. 3 of 1876.

2. No teacher whose certificate shall have been cancelled or suspended shall be employed in any aided school, until, in the case of suspension, the period for which it was suspended has expired, and no school whether an aided school or not, in which any teacher, whose certificate has been cancelled or suspended as aforesaid, is employed shall be deemed to provide efficient elementary education within the meaning of the Elementary Education Ordinance, 1876.

Appeal.

3. Any teacher whose certificate is cancelled or suspended under this Ordinance, shall have the right to appeal to the Governor-in-Council against such cancellation or suspension.

struction.

4. This Ordinance may be cited as the Elementary Education Ordinance, 1910, and shall be construed as one with the Elementary Education Ordinance, 1876.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 25TH DAY OF JUNE, 1910.

SOOMARIA & RHODIA

versus

PITAMSING.

The plaintiffs claim that the defendant be condemned to pass transport of lots 183 & 184, part of that portion of Plantation Kitty, situate on the East Coast of the county of Demerara and colony of British Guiana known as the village of Alexander-ville on payment to him of the sum of $225.98, and the sum of $10 as fair and reasonable sum by way of interest as proved by the plaintiff.

The facts are as follows:—

That one Badhai, the reputed husband of the plaintiff, was the owner of this property which was leased on by one Ledoux. Badhai approached the defendant for a loan for the purposes of paying on the judgment creditors and that Pitamsing referred him to Mr. E. G. Woolford. It was ultimately arranged between Mr. Woolford and Pitamsing that he Pitamsing should buy the property at execution sale in his own name and that on the payment to him of the purchase money and something extra for his trouble that he Pitamsing should retransport the same to the plaintiffs, the reputed wives of Badhai, on the 14th February, 1910. Pitamsing attended the sale and Mr. Woolford made an arrangement with the judgment creditors in consequence of which the property was sold to Pitamsing for $300 a sum less than its value. Arrangements were also made by Mr. Woolford with Mr. Ledoux for a mortgage and transport by the defendant to the plaintiff and also the mortgage to Ledoux were advertised. Pitamsing on more than one occasion visited Mr. Ledoux's office as to the passing of the mortgage. Pitamsing obtained letters of decree on his paying to the Registrar the sum of $225.98 the balance of the purchase money, Mr. Woolford having already paid on behalf of the plaintiffs the sum of $75, being 25% of the purchase money.

The defence is that Pitamsing had no dealings with Badhai or Mr. Woolford or the plaintiffs as to this property but that he bought for himself.

From the evidence given and from the documents produced in evidence it is clear that the plaintiff's story is the true one.

I therefore condemn the defendant to pass transport on or before the 1st day of July, 1910, of the said property to the plaintiffs on the payment to him of the sum of $225.98 with the sum of $10 which I estimate as being a reasonable sum by way of interest, and on his failing to do so within such time that the Registrar pass transport of the said property to plaintiffs on the plaintiffs depositing in the Registry of Court the said sum of $235.98 less the costs actually incurred in depositing the same which amount may be uplifted on passing of transport by the defendant.

I grant the plaintiffs costs.

MACDAVID BENJAMIN, otherwise called MARK DAVID BENJAMIN or MACBENJAMIN in his own right and as executor under the last will and Testament of DAVID CANTERBURY SAMUELS, deceased, Plaintiff,

versus

ELIZABETH SAMUELS, Widow, Defendant.

This is an opposition to the transport by the defendant of the east half of lot number 27 section B, east half lot of number 64 section D and east half of lot number 99, section E, in the Village of Beterverwagting, East Coast, Demerara, with the building and erections thereon save and except one building thereon belonging to MacBenjamin of Beterverwagting aforesaid by herself in her own right as having been married in community of property to David Canterbury Samuels, now deceased, and as sole heir as ab intestato of the said deceased to and in favour of Henrietta Smith, the wife of Theophilus Smith, of Plaisance, East Coast, Demerara.

It appears from the evidence that David Canterbury Samuels and the defendant were married in community of goods in October, 1884. That shortly after marriage the said David Canterbury Samuels acquired the east half of lot 27, B, East of half lot 64, section D, east half of lot 99, section E, in the village of Beterverwagting, East Coast, Demerara. The said David Canterbury Samuels died on the 14th day of March, 1909.

The plaintiff claims that in February, 1906, Samuels sold him the eastern half of the eastern half of lot 27 B, with the back lands being section D, and E. In support of this he produces a receipt dated 17th February, 1906, which receipt is said to have been written by Samuel himself in the shop of one Moses Harvey, who says he saw Samuel write the receipt which he witnessed and which he now identifies, exhibit "D," and that he also saw the plaintiff pay Samuels the purchase money $10. From the evidence of the village overseer and from the minute book of the Village Council Samuels applied on June 30, 1906, for the transfer to the plaintiff of half share of section B, lot 27. Nothing seems to have been done with this application and Samuels again wrote on 17th March, 1907, renewing his application. The eastern half of lot B, together with the back lands in section D and

E. was then entered in the assessment book as the property of Samuels and the plaintiff, an entry being made showing Samuels as holding the western portion of the half lot, and the following year the books show that the property was again assessed, the western portion of the half lot as the property of Samuel and the Eastern portion as the property of Benjamin.

I am satisfied from the evidence that Samuels sold and delivered possession of the eastern portion of half of lot 27, B, E. and D. to the plaintiff and that he is still in possession of the same. The defendant claims to be the sole heiress ab intestato of the said Samuels.

The witness Rodney had proved to my satisfaction that the said Samuels died testate, that Samuels dictated his will to him Rodney and that he signed it in Rodney's presence and in the presence plaintiff's wife.

No attempt whatever has been made by the defendant to show that this will was a forgery or invalid in any way.

I therefore declare the opposition to be good and well founded.

I grant the plaintiff costs but award no damages.

MAHAICA TRADING COMPANY, LTD., Plaintiff,

The plaintiff claims the sum of $192.40 for goods sold and delivered to defendant at Mahaica. I am satisfied from the evidence that he is indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of $191.92.

Judgment for the plaintiff on the claim for $191.92 and also on the counter-claim with costs.

JOHN DOWNER.

The plaintiffs claim (a) possession of the portion of the N $\frac{1}{2}$ of Mud lot number 12 in the Town of New Amsterdam, in the parish of All Saints, measuring 6 ft 6 inches in facade near the street coming to a point 40 feet English west thereof and 5 feet 6 in. x 62 ft. 7 in. x 9 feet respectively—wrongfully, unlawfully and illegally occupied by the defendant, both shown in certain plans dated 11th December, 1908 and, 3rd December 1909 made by E. C. H. Klautky, Sworn Land Surveyor, and deposited in the Registrar's Office of British Guiana on the 14th day of December, 1909, (b) an order restraining the defendant from entering upon the said portion of land.

The plaintiffs also claim damages $900. as special damage and $600 as general damages.

The N $\frac{1}{2}$ of Mud lot number 12 was held by Wieting & Richter under a grant of occupancy from the Crown, the Crown reserving a strip of land between each lot or grant. In 1902 the Government had the Mud lots surveyed including the strips reserved, and granted such lots including the strips so reserved as shown and delineated on the plan of L. S. Hohenkerk, Government Surveyor, dated the 21st day of May, 1902, and deposited in the Office of the Registrar of British Guiana at New Amsterdam on the 11th day of June, 1903, to such occupiers absolutely and for ever.

On 12th day of March, 1906, Wieting & Richter transported to the plaintiffs N $\frac{1}{2}$ of Mud lot 12 as shown on the above mentioned plan of Hohenkerk.

The defendant is owner by transport of Mud lots S $\frac{1}{2}$ of 12 and lot 13—as shown on the same plan of Hohenkerk.

Both the plaintiffs and defendant accepted their transports in accordance with Hohenkerk's plan.

Subsequently, separate surveys were made by Klautky on the 11th December, 1908, and 3rd December, 1909, in behalf of plaintiffs, and by Seymour: Sworn Land Surveyor, for the 17th May, 1910, on behalf of the defendants. These surveys show the subdivision of lot 12 as delineated on the plan of Hohenkerk. Seymour in his evidence stated that if the original reserved spaces were taken in by Hohenkerk when surveying the broken line as showing the subdivision of the lot on his Hohenkerk's plan would be the correct subdivision of that lot. It is clear that these reserved spaces were taken in by Hohenkerk in his survey as that was the object of his survey. The grant absolute and for ever to Wieting & Richter of N $\frac{1}{2}$ of lot 12 recites: "Whereas it has been brought to the notice of the Governor that the Licensers and occupiers of the Mudlots in the Town of New Amsterdam have been for some time encroaching on the strips of land reserved by the Crown, between each of the aforesaid lots or Grants under Section 6. of Ordinance 1, of 1837; and,

"Whereas it is now deemed, expedient to issue to the Licensees or occupiers of the Mud lots aforesaid absolute grants of the Mud lots occupied by them including such portions of the spaces originally reserved between such Mud lot or grant, as have been encroached upon by the Licensers or occupiers thereof" therefore it is clear that the defendant has encroached on the plaintiffs land by 6ft. 6 in. in facade near the street coming to a point 40 feet English West, and also by 5 ft. 6 in by 62 ft 7 in. by 9 feet at the back part of the lot and it is also clear and in fact it is not denied that he has been and is still occupying the same.

The defendant claims that he has a prescriptive right to these portions of N¹/₂ of lot 12. As already stated the occupiers and licensees only held these lands under grants or licenses from the Crown up to 1902 and therefore any rights as by way of prescriptive title could only accrue as from that date.

I therefore declare the plaintiffs to be the rightful owners of the portions of land in dispute and I order that the defendant be restrained from entering upon the said portions of land save and except for the purpose of removing any buildings which he may have thereon and be entitled to remove.

I award no damages. I grant costs to plaintiffs.

THIS 2ND DAY OF JULY, 1910.

GEORGE WONG SANG

versus

THOMAS HERCULES.

The sole question in this case is whether the purchase money of a certain property sold by the plaintiff to the defendant has or has not been paid.

The parties agree that $130 was paid when the bargain was made and that a cheque was given by the British Guiana Building Society for $107 22, part of the amount for which the property was mortgaged to the defendant. It was endorsed by him and handed to the plaintiff on the day the transport and mortgage were passed.

The plaintiff says he gave the cheque back as it was not the full balance due and that the defendant promised to settle the next day but has not done so.

The defendant denies getting the cheque back and says he paid the balance of $22 78 by handing to the plaintiff $16 28 in cash which with $6 50 paid for taxes made up the required amount; he is supported by a witness.

From the evidence placed before me I believe the defendant and give judgment for the defendant with costs.

versus

S. DAVSON & CO., LTD.

This is an opposition to the sale at execution of certain property levied on at the instance of the defendants by virtue of a judgment against the plaintiff in her capacity as executrix under the last will and testament of Pedro D'Ornellas, deceased.

The grounds of opposition as entered are practically that the defendant Company levied on the property for a debt due by the estate of D'Ornellas and that the said property is not attachable for the debts of Jugdiah as it was vested in his minor daughter Nanky who inherited it under the will of D'Ornellas and that even if the estate of D'Ornellas be liable for any claims it can only be so up to the time of his death; also that it was not competent for the executrix to burthen the minor Nanky's property by carrying on business or incurring liability to the detriment of the minor.

The defence is that sentence was obtained against the plaintiff as executrix under the last will and testament of D'Ornellas and that it is not competent for the plaintiff to question the validity of the sentence obtained against the estate. The facts are not questioned. The minor is the residuary legatee under the will; and the testator appointed Jugdiah executrix and guardian.

From the arguments adduced to the Court and from the documents put in it appears that at the time of D'Ornellas's death, 26th May, 1907, he owed a larger sum than that for which judgment was obtained.

Jugdiah continued to carry on D'Ornellas's shop after his death obtaining goods and making payments eventually owing $38 77 for which sentence was obtained against the estate of D'Ornellas. The executrix apparently never wound up the estate and until the debts and legacies were paid the residue could not be ascertained. There is no specific bequest of the property in question.

By the will it would seem Jugdiah, who D'Ornellas termed his reputed wife, had a husband; for the testator's will recites "and it is my special wish that Jugdiah's husband, should I predecease him, shall not interfere with or participate in any benefits from said estate."

This however need not be considered. As the sentence which is in force was against the estate and the executrix was on the property of the estate the opposition is dismissed with costs.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 29TH DAY OF JUNE, 1910.

BHOODANSING, Appellant.

MARIA RAMSAY, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of Mr. E. A. Bugle, Magistrate, East Coast Judicial District, in which he gave decision for the plaintiff, the present respondent, in the sum of $70 and costs and fee to Counsel $7, on a claim for the sum of $70 being balance of a certain overdue promissory note, the property of the plaintiff, made by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff or her order at Mahaica Village in the East Coast Judicial District for the sum of $160 dated 31st May, 1904, and payable 2 years after date for value received, $80 of which has been paid and the plaintiff whilst she was the holder thereof lost the said promissory note out of her possession and control, and the same thence has been lost and still remains so. The plaintiff is ready and willing to give an indemnity to the satisfaction of the Court against the claims of any other person upon the instrument in question.

The Magistrate's reasons for decision are as follows: I am fully satisfied that the plaintiff on the evidence adduced on her behalf in this case has fully proved her claim to the balance, she seeks to recover from the defendant on the lost promissory note. I am further of opinion that the loss of the same has been established and that the indemnity against the claim of any other person is proved, and that there was a good and valid consideration given for such note. I give judgment for plaintiff for $70 the amount sued for with costs and fee, $7.

The reason for appeal are—

(1) That the decision is erroneous in point of law inasmuch as—

(a) Total failure of consideration for the alleged promissory note was proved.

(b) The plaintiff had no title in the Bill when the action was instituted.

(c) That provisions of Section 70 of the Bills of Exchange Ordinance, 1891, was not complied with and the proceedings are therefore nugatory.

(d) No indemnity was given before or at the trial by the plaintiff to the defendant against the claims of any other person upon the instrument in question or at all.

(e) There was no evidence that the promissory note was lost before or after it was overdue.

(f) The plaintiff was not legally entitled to costs.

(g) There was no evidence that the alleged promissory note is lost.

(2.) The Magistrate's Court exceeded its jurisdiction in the case inasmuch as (a) it was not legally competent for the said Court to hear the case or take secondary evidence of the alleged promissory note unless and until an indemnity had been given to the defendant by the plaintiff.

(3) That illegal evidence was admitted by the Magistrate's Court, and without such illegal evidence there was not sufficient legal evidence to sustain the verdict. The said illegal evidence being—

(a) The alleged copy of the promissory note exhibited "A."

(b) The evidence of the contents of the promissory note given by the witness William Roberts, Samuel Laycock, Gardina Paul, Isaac Miller and A. B. Brown.

(c) The following statement of Isaac Miller, "The original note was given Mr. A. B. Brown for suit."

4. The decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

(a) Because it was not proved that the promissory note, the subject matter of the action, was lost.

The Magistrate finds that there was a good and full consideration for such note but it is evident from the evidence of the plaintiff that the consideration for such note afterwards totally failed. Ramsay herself admits that the defendant is in possession of the land and holds a legal title for the same, viz., Letters of Decree, and that she never gave him such title. If the defendant was compelled to pay the sum sued for Ramsay could not fulfil her part of the agreement. It is therefore not necessary to decide the other reasons raised.

The appeal is allowed and the Magistrate's decision reversed with costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

THIS 30TH DAY OF JUNE, 1910.

DUBLIN
versus
MCLEAN.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $300 as damages for the wrongful entry by the defendant on the land of the plaintiff, viz., a portion of lot 46, section B, situate at Buxton village on the east sea coast of the county of Demerara, and erecting on and over the said land and over a growing coconut tree a building used as a shop and dwelling house.

(b) The removal of the said building which encroaches on the plaintiff's land and which is also projecting over his said lands.

(c) An injunction to restrain the defendants, his agents and servants from "repeating, continuing or repeating the acts complained of." The whole essence of the plaintiff's claim is contained in paragraph 4 of the statement of claim which is as follows: "That during the year 1909, the defendant occupied the said piece of land on which there was an old one-storey building which defendant caused to be enlarged and caused another storey to be added upon the one-storey aforesaid, thereby encroaching 7 feet to the west on the plaintiff's land and rendering his house uninhabitable by obstructing the light and air from the said house."

On the evidence adduced I am perfectly satisfied that there is not and never has been any such encroachment as alleged.

I am not satisfied that any damage has been done to the coconut tree referred to in the claim. This being so, it is unnecessary to decide the questions as to any obstruction as regards light and air or as to the plaintiff's title to the property in question.

There will be judgment for defendant on the plaintiff's claim with costs and judgment for the plaintiff for such costs as were occasioned by the defendant's counter-claim.

LIONEL E. HAWTAYNE, Acting J.

SEEGOBIN
versus
PAUL.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $350, being (a) special damage to loss of the use of $336.16 for the improvement of plaintiff's property for four years—$200; (b) to loss on rental of portion of plaintiff's land, 2 years, $72 00; and as general damage, $78 00.

From the evidence it appears that the plaintiff was indebted to one Surajmoney in the sum of $336.16 and that he arranged with the said Surajmoney to pass a mortgage in her favour on certain lands at DeKindere, Mahaica, for a period of four years, and during that period he could repay her the said sum in equal yearly instalments with interest at 10% per annum.

This mortgage was advertised but was never passed. The defendant sought to lease a piece of this land so advertised to be mortgaged and approached the plaintiff. The plaintiff, Surajmoney, and the defendant met and it was agreed between the plaintiff and the defendant that he, the defendant, should pay off Surajmoney, and that the plaintiff should mortgage the said land to the defendant on the same terms as arranged with Surajmoney. Surajmoney agreeing, and also grant him a lease of the portion of such lands for 15 years at the rental of $36 per annum with the right of renewal for 10 years.

The defendant paid off Surajmoney and he and the plaintiff in the month of April, 1909, went to the Chambers of Mr. de Freitas and instructed him as to advertising the mortgage and preparing the lease, both of which were to be executed after the third advertisement of the mortgage

At the same time plaintiff gave defendant a promissory note on demand for $350, being the amount advanced by him, the understanding being that such note would be returned on passing of mortgage and the lease being executed.

The mortgage was duly advertised in the month of May, 1909, but has never been passed, and in January, 1910, the defendant obtained judgment on the said promissory note. From the evidence I am satisfied that up to now the plaintiff has not acquired title to the said lands and was and still is unable to pass such mortgage to the defendant, although the defendant has been ready and willing to accept such mortgage and lease.

I consider that the defendant gave the plaintiff a reasonable time to acquire his title and carry out his agreement with the defendant and that he not having done so, the defendant was entitled to recover on the promissory note. Any damage the plaintiff may have sustained is due to his own neglect in carrying out the original arrangement.

Judgment for the defendant with costs.

LIONEL E. HAWTAYNE, Acting J.

No addition of any material shall be made after burning, except when desired by the Manufacturer and if not prohibited in writing by the Consumer, in which case calcium sulphate or water may be used. The cement, if watered, shall contain not more than two per cent. of water, whether that water has been added or has been naturally absorbed from the air. If calcium sulphate is used, not more than 2 per cent. calculated as anhydrous calcium sulphate of the weight of the cement shall be added.

Testing at P.W.D. or sampling at Manufacturer's
Works.

2. Cement will be tested ordinarily at the Public Works Department, but should it be deemed more convenient that the samples for testing should be taken at the Manufacturer's works before delivery, the latter shall, in that event, afford full facilities to the Inspector appointed by the Government to sample the cement as he may desire at the said works, and subsequently to identify each parcel, as it may be despatched, with that sample by him. No parcel shall be sent away unless a written order has been previously received by the Manufacturer from the Inspector, to the effect that the material in question has been approved.

3. The cement shall be ground to comply with the following degrees of fineness, viz :— Fineness and Sieves.

The residue on a sieve $76 \times 76 = 5,776$ meshes per square inch, shall not exceed 3 per cent.

The residue on a sieve $180 \times 180 = 32,400$ meshes per square inch, shall not exceed $22\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

The sieves shall be prepared from standard wire, and the size of the wire for the 5,776 mesh shall be .0044 inch, and for the 32,400 mesh, .002 inch. The wire shall be woven (not twilled), the cloth being carefully mounted on the frames without distortion.

4. The specific gravity of the cement shall be not less than 3.10 when sampled after delivery. Specific gravity.

5. The cement shall comply with the following conditions as to its chemical composition. There shall be no excess of lime, that is to say, the proportion of lime shall be not greater than is necessary to saturate the silica and alumina present. The percentage of insoluble residue shall not exceed 1.5 per cent.; that of magnesia shall not exceed 3 per cent.; and that of sulphuric anhydride shall not exceed 2.5 per cent. Chemical Composition.

6. The quantity of water used in gauging shall be appropriate to the quality of the cement, and shall be so proportioned that when the cement is gauged it shall form a smooth, easily worked paste, that will leave the trowel cleanly in a compact mass. Fresh water shall be used for gauging. The cement gauged as above shall be filled, without mechanical ramming, into moulds of the form approved by the British Engineering Standards Committee, each mould resting upon an iron plate until the cement has set. Mode of gauging.

When the cement has set sufficiently to enable the mould to be removed without injury to the briquette, such removal is to be effected. The said briquette shall be kept in a damp atmosphere for 24 hours after gauging, when it shall be placed in fresh water and allowed to remain there until required for breaking, the water in which the test briquettes are submerged being renewed every seven days.

7. Briquettes of neat cement shall be gauged for breaking at 7 and 28 days, respectively. For breaking, the briquette shall be held in strong metal jaws. The briquettes shall bear on the average not less than the following tensile stresses before breaking :— Neat test.

7 days from gauging—400 lbs. per square inch of section.

28 " " " —500 lbs. per square inch of section.

The increase from 7 to 28 days shall not be less than:—
25 % when the 7 day test falls between 400 lbs. to 450 lbs. per square inch of section.

20 % when the 7 day test falls between 450 lbs. to 500 lbs. per square inch of section.

15 % when the 7 day test falls between 500 lbs. to 550 lbs. per square inch of section.

10 % when the 7 day test is 550 lbs. per square inch or upwards.

8. The cement shall also be tested by means of briquettes prepared from one part of cement to three parts by weight of dry sand, the said briquettes being of the shape described for the neat cement tests; the mode of gauging and the filling of the moulds shall also be similar. The proportion of water used shall be such that the mixture is thoroughly wetted, and there shall be no superfluous water when the briquettes are formed. The cement and sand briquettes shall bear the following tensile stresses :— Sand Test.

7 days from gauging—120 lbs. per square inch of section.

28 " " " —225 lbs. per square inch of section.

The increase from 7 to 28 days shall not be less than 20 per cent.
 Acceptance. 9. No cement shall be approved or accepted unless it fully complies with the foregoing conditions.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 23RD DAY OF JULY, 1910.

HARADAN

versus

NELSON.

This is an appeal from the Magistrate of the South Essequibo Judicial District who on a complaint made by the respondent against the appellant for unlawfully having in his possession certain spirit, to wit, bush rum, convicted the appellant and ordered him to pay a fine of $250 and in default to be imprisoned for three months with hard labour and a further fine of $2 and in default 7 days hard labour.

The reasons of appeal argued before this Court are (1) that the evidence does not establish that the appellant had in his possession spirits, (2) that if the appellant did have in his possession spirits there is no evidence that he knew that such spirits was bush rum, (3) that appellant was never given the opportunity of proving that the liquid in question was not Bush Rum as required by the Ordinance, and (4) that the appellant was precluded from availing himself of the defence mentioned in section 93 of the Ordinance because after the Government Analyst had completed his test there only remained about a tea spoon of liquid which quantity it was impossible to test.

With regard to reasons (1) and (2) in the opinion of the Court the cases relied on by counsel for the appellant do not apply. In Meerza v. Harding (16. 12. 1905, App. cases) the rum was found in a room in which no one lived—on the second floor of a building of which second floor Meerza was sole tenant but there were two other inmates of this second floor either of whom could have had access to the unlocked room in question and not only was the appellant absent from home on the day previous to the alleged offence but he offered no opposition to the search by the police and disclaimed all knowledge of the rum found. On these facts the Court held that there was not sufficient evidence to establish that it was placed there by appellant or with his knowledge and therefore not proved that it was in his possession. In the present case the appellant keeps a shop and the spirit in question is found under a table—in his presence. He having rushed out of the shop on the police entering by the window owing to the door not having been opened after knocking thereat although a bright light was in the shop. Moreover he admits his knowledge of the presence of the bottle by saying to his wife "what trouble you have brought upon me by buying the bottle from the man" and according to the evidence of Corporal Nelson he not only gave the name of the man from whom his wife purchased it but mentioned the amount paid for it. On this evidence the Magistrate was justified in finding that the spirit was in the possession of the appellant and that he knew such spirit to be bush rum. His conduct was not consistent with that of a man who believed the spirit in his possession to be only 3½ ounces of ordinary rum—the possession of which is no offence under the Ordinance.

Reasons (3) and (4) were dealt with together by counsel and it is argued that the Legislature having enacted that the onus of proving that such substance is not "bush rum" shall lie on the defendant "and no procedure having been laid down so as to enable appellant to avail himself of this defence—as is done in cases under the adulteration of Food and Drugs Ordinance and other similar Ordinances under which the complainant is required to offer a sample to a possible defendant this Court will hold that the Ordinance is defective and allow the appeal. It would certainly seem that the Legislature having introduced the words "prima facie" and then having placed the onus of proving the negative on a defendant may have unwittingly omitted the means by which he could have obtained the best evidence for his defence. But does the fact that they have not done so render inoperative the earlier part of the section which provides that every person possessing any quantity of bush rum shall be deemed to be a person unlawfully possessing spirits under the section. This is a penal statute and must be construed strictly and it is the duty of the Court to be satisfied that the offence charged is both within the words and within the spirit of the Ordinance. This being so it is not the duty of the Court to deal with what may or may not be defects in the Ordinance.

It must be observed that a case might arise as alleged in the present case when owing to the small quantity of fluid seized there could not be a division with a view of analysis.

The appeal is dismissed and the decision of the Magistrate confirmed with costs.

HUNTLEY
versus
HAZEL.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who on a complaint made by the respondent against the appellant for having in her possession 3 pieces of bread, 2 pieces of meat, a quantity of sugar, a quantity of starch, and a quantity of plantains, reasonably suspected of having been unlawfully obtained, convicted the appellant as to the sugar and starch and ordered her to pay a fine of $15 and in default of payment to be imprisoned for 1 month with hard labour.

The reasons of appeal are (1) the decision is erroneous in point of law inasmuch as (a) there was no evidence before the Magistrate's Court of any reasonable suspicion that the goods in question were unlawfully obtained, (b) it was proved that the goods in question were lawfully obtained, (c) the defendant gave a satisfactory account of her possession of the goods in question. (2) The Magistrate had no jurisdiction in the case. (3) The decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict, the evidence proving that the goods were lawfully obtained; and even if the goods came from the Alms House, the defendant had only committed a breach of private Regulations not having the force of law.

Reason 2 is abandoned by counsel for the appellant while the other reasons are dealt with together. The evidence shews that the appellant was watched by the police on leaving the Alms House where she was employed as laundress and that they saw her drop 2 plantains from a parcel she carried, and subsequently some beef. It was also noticed that her pocket was bulky. On arrival at the Brickdam Police Station she was searched with the result that the other articles mentioned in the complaint were found on her person, the sugar being in the pocket of her dress and the starch in a towel apparently next to her skin. The Assistant Superintendent at the Alms House who issues these articles states that on the day in question starch was issued to the appellant for the use of the institution but that no sugar was issued to her. He further stated that her rations on that day included plantains and bread. The Magistrate properly held that although it might be a breach of the rules to take rations out of the institution yet they were not unlawfully obtained and further he believed the appellant when she stated that she had exchanged her salt fish with an inmate for his meat, holding that this too was lawfully obtained.

It is submitted by counsel that in order to convict there must be a reasonable suspicion that the sugar and starch were unlawfully obtained whereas the evidence shows that they came into appellant's possession lawfully and this being so if she could be reasonably suspected of any offence it would be of stealing and not that charged against her. If the Magistrate believed the evidence of the Superintendent—as he apparently did—that no sugar was issued to appellant on that day this, coupled with the fact that she must have left the institution with the sugar found on her, is sufficient for reasonably suspecting that it was unlawfully obtained. With regard to the starch, the Magistrate evidently was of opinion that it formed part of the pound issued to appellant as laundress. The statement of the Assistant Superintendent "what is not consumed by the inmates is put in barrels and sold" can hardly refer to starch for laundry purposes. This being so the appellant can only be said to have unlawfully obtained it if at the time it was issued to her she meant to appropriate it. The position on her body of this starch made it reasonably suspicious that she had not obtained it lawfully and the condition of the starch which was produced before the Magistrate would tend to show the intention of the appellant when she received it. This being so there was evidence on which the Magistrate could find as he did. The mere fact that in respect to the starch she might have been convicted of some other offence would not justify the Magistrate in refusing to convict for the offence charged if the evidence warranted him in so doing.

The appeal is dismissed and the decision of the Magistrate is confirmed with costs.

M. J. BERKELEY, Acting C.J.

THIS 30TH DAY OF JULY, 1910.

ALEXANDER
versus
CRANE.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who upon an Interpleader Claim made by the respondent against the appellant, Judgment Creditor in Alexander v. Goring—claiming (1) a board and shingle cottage value $180 wrongfully and unlawfully levied on, and (2) the sum of $10 as damages and pecuniary compensation, and (3) costs upheld the claim and ordered the cottage to be returned allowing $10 as damages with costs.

Counsel for the appellant was debarred from arguing some of his reasons of appeal inasmuch as sections 9 (7) and 10 had not been fully complied with. The only other reason argued in this Court was 1 (2) that the evidence adduced showed that the ownership of the board and shingle house was in the judgment creditor or her husband or both but not in claimant.

Under the law of this colony the sale is not completed—that is, the ownership does not pass to the purchaser until possession has been delivered, usually spoken of as delivery. It is contended in behalf of the appellant that the evidence does not establish delivery and it is submitted in behalf of the respondent that payment of rent which is found by the Magistrate to have been made by the late owner to the respondent shows that delivery was made. This payment was spoken to by Goring as having been made on the day of sale but it is not mentioned by the purchaser nor by Hall, the witness to the receipt, who says: "Crane told Goring he must pay rent from that day Goring made no reply." The Magistrate, however, had the witnesses before him and this Court will not say that he was wrong in thus finding. It remains to be considered whether the payment of one month's rent in advance on the day of the sale to the purchaser by the vendor who remained in occupation of the house is sufficient to satisfy the Court that transference of possession had been effected. According to Nathan (volume 1, p. 331) this delivery may be actual (real) that is where it is transferred from hand to hand or by induction into possession, or it may be fictitious. This is divided into three species (1) breve manu where a thing previously transferred is feigned to have been again transferred for a new cause, (2) symbolical which takes place by means of an external sign, e.g., the delivery of keys, and (3) longae manus where the thing to be acquired is placed in sight of the purchaser which is equal to placing him in actual custody. The Magistrate has not specifically found that delivery was effected and it is conceivable that he did not bring his mind to bear on the necessity of this being proved under the Roman-Dutch Law. This Court is of opinion that the mere payment of one month's rent in advance at the time of the sale by the vendor who remained in possession is not of itself sufficient to establish delivery and that the levy for rent due being made subsequent to the levy by appellant carries the case no further. The appeal is allowed and the decision of the Magistrate reversed with costs. This decision is not to be regarded as declaratory of the ownership of the cottage in the judgment debtor but only that the present claimant has not proved ownership.

No vehicle will be allowed to remain on the Backdam road during the races. Vehicles must form up on the Backdam facing north awaiting their passengers, but not until 5 o'clock, and they must be south of St. Ann's Street, keeping to the west side of the road; in succession they will come to the gates for their passengers, and then depart north turning west into Essex or Vryheid Streets.

WARNING.

LABOURERS FOR RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION
IN BRAZIL.

ALL Persons are warned against leaving the colony for employment in connection with railway construction in Brazil without an agreement duly signed before a Magistrate of the colony containing in full detail the terms of employment, namely, wages, house accommodation, arrangements in time of sickness, food supply and return passages.

Persons who leave the colony without such an agreement and only on the specious and unsupported promises of unauthorized agents will very possibly never get back again. British Consuls are unlikely to be able to act in behalf of stranded British subjects without the production of agreements.

At the present time no authority has been issued by this Government to any person under the provisions of the Emigration Regulation Ordinance, 1864, to act as an agent for the collection of labourers for work in Brazil, and persons who leave the colony without proper arrangements being made in their behalf do so at their own risk and peril.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,

81.
THE following Reports on the Government and Post Office Savings Banks for the year 1909, and Joint Report of Receipts, Payments and Investments of the Banks are hereby published in terms of Section 35, Sub-section 3, of the Savings Banks Ordinance, 1889.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

TREASURY,
Georgetown, Demerara,
30th June, 1910.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit my Report on the accounts of the Government Savings Bank for the year 1909, together with the following statements :—

- I.—Balance Sheet at 31st December, 1909.
- II.—Statement showing financial results on the year's working.
- III.—Statement of Investments to 31st December, 1909.
- IV.—Analysis of Depositors and Amounts at their credit on 31st December, 1909.
 - (a) Georgetown.
 - (b) New Amsterdam.
 - (c) Summary.
- V.—Amount at credit of Indentured and Unindentured Immigrants, 1909.
- VI.—Amounts and classification of Deposits and Withdrawals, 1909.
- VIA.—Number of Depositors with amounts at their credit, etc., in sterling.
- VII.—Number of accounts, opened and closed, 1905-1909.
- VIII.—Number of Deposits and Withdrawals, 1904-1909.
- IX.—Comparative Statement of 15 years of Depositors, and amounts at their credit at the end of each year, in sterling.
- X.—Table showing proportion of Depositors to the population, at decennial periods from 1871, and to estimated population from 1903 to 1909.
- XI.—Average amount at credit of different classes of Depositors, 1909.
- XII.—Unclaimed Balances paid into the Treasury, 1909.

APPENDICES I. AND II.

2. In my report on the accounts of the year 1908, I stated that I had recommended the separation of the Government Savings Bank and Common Fund accounts, which were then being kept as a single set of accounts. During the year under review this recommendation was adopted and the financial statements now submitted relate exclusively to the Government Savings Bank.

3. The only account on the statement of assets and liabilities which calls for special remark is the "Colony Loan Account." The balance on this account represents the amount due to the Colony by the Government Savings Bank at 31st December, 1909, in respect of loans made to the Bank from time to time during the year. In order to avoid the keeping of large surplus balances in the Colony, both the Government Savings Bank and the Post Office Savings Bank are allowed to borrow money temporarily from the Treasury, the rate of interest charged on such borrowings being based on the average rate of interest received on the Colony's investments.

4. The net gain on the year's transactions was $309.13.

APPENDIX III.

5. The face value of the investments held by the Bank at 31st

December, 1909, was	$1,050,696 77
The actual cost was	$1,007,867 08
The market value of the investments less brokerage at 31st December was	$ 970,165 76

or $ 37,701 32

less than the Bank paid for them.

6. No change of investments took place during 1909. The market value of the stock at 31st December, 1909, showed an improvement over the previous year's figures of $4,056.88.

APPENDICES IVa., IVb., AND IVc.

7. These statements show that there was a decrease of 273 at the end of the year in the number of Depositors in Georgetown, and an increase of 85 in New Amsterdam. As regards the amounts at credit, there was a decrease in Georgetown of $13,105.05, and in New Amsterdam of $1,680.34. The following table shows the increases and decreases under each class of Depositor :—

Class.	Increase in number.	Decrease in number.	Increase in Amount.	Decrease in Amount.
East Indians	24	$ 12,955 22
Chinese	7	$ 687 93
Portuguese	11	...	9,728 41
Creoles and others	160	...	17,324 27
	7	195	$ 12,955 22	$ 27,740 61
		7	...	12,955 22
Net Total	188	...	$ 14,785 39

APPENDIX V.

8. Of the $415,832.93 at the credit of East Indians $14,160.36 belonged to Indentured and $401,672.57 to Unindentured Immigrants.

APPENDIX VI.

9. This statement shows that the interest allowed Depositors during the year amounted to $26,918.30, and that the withdrawals exceeded the deposits and interest allowed by $14,785.39.

APPENDIX IX.

10. From this Appendix it will be seen that the amount at the credit of Depositors has steadily decreased since the year 1903. The balance at the end of 1909—$1,006,176—was the smallest recorded in the statement.

11. In my last annual report I drew attention to the fact that the amount to the credit of East Indians at the close of 1908 was smaller than in either of the 15 years then under review. The credit balance went up in 1909 by $12,955.22 and exceeded that of several previous years. The number of East Indian Depositors and the amount at their credit has varied little compared with other classes of Depositors during the last 15 years.

12. The number of Chinese Depositors shows a small increase, the total for 1909 being 172 as compared with 165 in 1908. Their credit balance, however,—$38,212.17 was less by $687.93 than at the end of 1908. This class of Depositors has steadily increased since 1898, when they numbered 30 with a credit balance of $9,796.80.

13. The amount at credit of Portuguese Depositors was $9,728.41 less than in 1908, but the number of Depositors at the end of 1909 was only 11 less than at the close of the previous year. In 1895, the first of the 15 years referred to in the statement, the number of Depositors was 282 less, but the amount at credit was $9,090.20 more than in 1909.

14. The credit balance of Creole and Other Depositors shows a reduction of $17,324.27 as compared with the balance of the previous year, while the number of Depositors was reduced by 160. The amount at credit is very much smaller and the number of Depositors considerably larger than in the earlier years shown in the statement.

APPENDIX XI.

15. The average at the credit of Chinese Depositors far exceeded that of any other class, being $222.16 as compared with $156.96 for Portuguese, $83.70 for East Indians and $45.31 for Creoles and Other Depositors.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

CLIFTON GRANNUM,
Receiver General.

The Honourable,
THE GOVERNMENT SECRETARY.

3. Transactions.—On the 1st January, 1909, there were 13,606 accounts on the books of the Bank, with $405,743.88 at the credit of depositors. During the year 5,692 new accounts were opened, while 4,067 accounts were closed, 350 accounts being transferred to the Dormant Ledger. The sum remaining at credit of the 14,881 depositors on the 31st December, 1909, amounted to $428,513.84, an increase of 1,275 depositors and a sum of $22,769.96 on the year's work.

The deposits made during the year totalled 30,084, representing a sum of $377,339.05, an increase of $29,523.99 over the year 1908.

There were 22,469 withdrawals made during the same period amounting to $364,012.01, as against $342,871.13 in 1908, or $21,140.88 in excess of the previous year.

4. Withdrawals by Telegraph.—A sum of $14,888.00 was withdrawn by telegraph, as against $12,777.84 in 1908. The number of transactions involved in this service totalled 153.

5. Interest.—The sum received during the year as interest on investments amounted to $12,986.56.

The Receiver General was paid $460.79 on loans from the Treasury.

The interest paid out on closed accounts, together with that capitalized on current accounts, amounted to $10,436.25. The surplus of $2,089.52 was carried to Profit and Loss Account.

6. Investments.—The investment account shows that $10,000.00 was added during the year, making the total sum now invested $400,074.80. (See Table III.) A further sum of $22,000.00 was in the hands of the Receiver General at the 31st December, 1909, for investment. (See Table X.)

7. Nationality of Depositors.—The following are the sums at credit of the different classes of depositors at the 31st December, 1909. (See Table VII.)

East Indians	... $199,917.55
Portuguese	... 34,228.05
Chinese	... 5,404.99
Creoles and Others	... 187,512.62

The East Indians show a marked increase in the amount at their credit, no less a sum than $19,591.93 being added during the year.

8. Distribution of Business.—Table VI shows the actual business done at the Savings Banks throughout the colony. The business at "Cornhill" is increasing daily, withdrawals amounting in the aggregate to $112,722.04 having been paid during the year. The deposits at this office totalled $26,341.80. A marked increase in business is also shown as having taken place at Anna Regina, Ann's Grove, Wakenaam, Morawhanna, Buxton, Nigg and Danielstown.

9. Examination of Pass Books.—The Pass Books examined and compared with the Ledgers by an Officer of the Audit Department numbered 3,771.

10. Transfers Abroad.—There were six transfers from this colony to the United Kingdom during the year, amounting to £429 18s. 2d. ($2,063.56). The transfers from the United Kingdom to the colony numbered two, and amounted to £126 18s. 10d. ($609.32.)

11. Analysis of Accounts.—On reference to Table IV it will be seen that of the 14,881 accounts on the books at the 31st December, 1909, no fewer than 8,386 are for credit balances under $5, whilst 14,748 are for credit balances up to $500.

12. Cost of Management.—The cost of management amounted to $4,495.41, as against $4,156.70 in 1908.

13. Discipline.—It is with regret that I have to report the absconding of C. A. Heyliger, late Postmaster in charge of the Beterverwagting Post Office, with defalcations amounting to $630.12. At the date of this report $500 of the above sum has been recovered from the Public Officers' Guarantee Fund, being the amount of security given by this officer. A further sum of $95.01, due as salary at the date of his absconding, has been received and applied towards the deficiency, thus leaving a sum of $35.11 as a charge against the Profit and Loss Account for the year 1910.

This is the second case of fraud on the part of a Postmaster in connection with the Savings Banks, after 20 years' working.

14. Staff.—I was absent on leave from the 1st April to 31st December, 1909, and my duties in relation to the management and control of the Post Office Savings Banks devolved on Mr. A. Evelyn, Chief Clerk, acting as Postmaster General. The staff at the Head and District Offices have, under the able superintendence of Mr. F. Agard, 2nd Class Clerk, discharged their duties in a most creditable manner.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

A. W. SWAIN,
Postmaster General.

The Honourable
THE GOVERNMENT SECRETARY,

Portland Cement.

1. The cement shall be prepared by intimately mixing together calcareous and argillaceous materials, burning them at a clinkering temperature and grinding the resulting clinker. No addition of any material shall be made after burning, except when desired by the Manufacturer and if not prohibited in writing by the Consumer, in which case calcium sulphate or water may be used. The cement, if watered, shall contain not more than two per cent. of water, whether that water has been added or has been naturally absorbed from the air. If calcium sulphate is used, not more than 2 per cent. calculated as anhydrous calcium sulphate of the weight of the cement shall be added.

Testing at P.W.D. or sampling at Manufacturer's
Works.

2. Cement will be tested ordinarily at the Public Works Department, but should it be deemed more convenient that the samples for testing should be taken at the Manufacturer's works before delivery, the latter shall, in that event, afford full facilities to the Inspector appointed by the Government to sample the cement as he may desire at the said works, and subsequently to identify each parcel, as it may be despatched, with that sample by him. No parcel shall be sent away unless a written order has been previously received by the Manufacturer from the Inspector, to the effect that the material in question has been approved.

3. The cement shall be ground to comply with the following degrees of fineness, viz :— Fineness and Sieves.

The residue on a sieve $76 \times 76 = 5,776$ meshes per square inch, shall not exceed 3 per cent.

The residue on a sieve $180 \times 180 = 32,400$ meshes per square inch, shall not exceed $22\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

The sieves shall be prepared from standard wire, and the size of the wire for the 5,776 mesh shall be .0044 inch, and for the 32,400 mesh, .002 inch. The wire shall be woven (not twilled), the cloth being carefully mounted on the frames without distortion.

4. The specific gravity of the cement shall be not less than 3.10 when sampled after delivery. Specific gravity.

5. The cement shall comply with the following conditions as to its chemical composition. There shall be no excess of lime, that is to say, the proportion of lime shall be not greater than is necessary to saturate the silica and alumina present. The percentage of insoluble residue shall not exceed 1.5 per cent.; that of magnesia shall not exceed 3 per cent.; and that of sulphuric anhydride shall not exceed 2.5 per cent. Chemical Composition.

6. The quantity of water used in gauging shall be appropriate to the quality of the cement, and shall be so proportioned that when the cement is gauged it shall form a smooth, easily worked paste, that will leave the trowel cleanly in a compact mass. Fresh water shall be used for gauging. The cement gauged as above shall be filled, without mechanical ramming, into moulds of the form approved by the British Engineering Standards Committee, each mould resting upon an iron plate until the cement has set. Mode of gauging.

When the cement has set sufficiently to enable the mould to be removed without injury to the briquette, such removal is to be effected. The said briquette shall be kept in a damp atmosphere for 24 hours after gauging, when it shall be placed in fresh water and allowed to remain there until required for breaking, the water in which the test briquettes are submerged being renewed every seven days.

7. Briquettes of neat cement shall be gauged for breaking at 7 and 28 days, respectively. For breaking, the briquette shall be held in strong metal jaws. The briquettes shall bear on the average not less than the following tensile stresses before breaking :— Neat test.

7 days from gauging—400 lbs. per square inch of section.

28 " " " —500 lbs. per square inch of section.

The increase from 7 to 28 days shall not be less than:—

25 % when the 7 day test falls between 400 lbs. to 450 lbs. per square inch of section.

20 % when the 7 day test falls between 450 lbs. to 500 lbs. per square inch of section.

15 % when the 7 day test falls between 500 lbs. to 550 lbs. per square inch of section.

10 % when the 7 day test is 550 lbs. per square inch or upwards.

8. The cement shall also be tested by means of briquettes prepared from one part of cement to three parts by weight of dry sand, the said briquettes being of the shape described for the neat cement tests; the mode of gauging and the filling of the moulds shall also be similar. The proportion of water used shall be such that the mixture is thoroughly wetted, and there shall be no superfluous water when the briquettes are formed. The cement and sand briquettes shall bear the following tensile stresses :— Sand Test.

7 days from gauging—120 lbs. per square inch of section.

28 " " " —225 lbs. per square inch of section.

	The increase from 7 to 28 days shall not be less than 20 per cent.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

REGULATIONS DEFINING THE PRIVILEGES AND RIGHTS OF ABORIGINAL INDIANS UNDER THE CROWN LANDS ORDINANCE, RELATING TO ABORIGINAL INDIANS.

1. These Regulations may be cited for all purposes as the Indian Regulations, 1910.

2.—(1.) For the purpose of these regulations and subject to the special provisions hereinafter contained, the term Aboriginal Indian means a person whose parents are both of pure Indian blood and belong to the Aboriginal tribes of this colony.

(2.) The term half-caste shall mean the child of an Aboriginal Indian whose other parent is not an Aboriginal Indian. Half-castes shall, save in the exceptional cases mentioned hereafter, forfeit all the privileges of an Aboriginal Indian.

3.—(1.) A female Aboriginal Indian who is married to or living as the reputed wife of any person other than an Aboriginal Indian shall forfeit all the privileges of an Aboriginal Indian, as defined in these regulations. Provided that after the death of the husband this regulation shall not apply nor in the case of a reputed wife after cohabitation ceases.

(2.) Any half-caste who has been duly registered under the Indian Regulations, 1890, shall be personally entitled during his life-time to all the privileges of an Aboriginal Indian, but his descendants shall not be considered Aboriginal Indians.

4. If any question arises at any time as to whether any person is an Aboriginal Indian, the onus of proof shall rest on such person.

5. Any Aboriginal Indian may occupy a portion of the ungranted and unlicensed Crown lands in any part of the colony for the purpose of residence only, but may not clear the forest from and cultivate any ungranted Crown lands other than those specified in these regulations.

6. No Aboriginal Indian shall be at liberty to clear any forest land belonging to the Crown for the purpose of cultivation, unless such land has been previously in the occupation of a licensed wood-cutter and worked out, or previously cleared and cultivated. The localities on the several rivers within which this restriction is to be in force, are as follows :—

For the Essequibo River Watershed—

From the foot of the Aretaka Rapids, downwards.

For the Mazaruni River Watershed—

From the foot of the Waramambo Falls, downwards.

For the Cuyuni River Watershed—

From the foot of the Acayu Falls, downwards.

For the Demerara, Berbice, and Corentyne Rivers Watershed—

From the foot of the Great Falls of each of these Rivers, downwards.

For the other rivers of the Colony in which there are no falls or other obstructions to free navigation or the transportation of timber, the limits shall be on the main rivers and on their respective creeks and their tributaries, as far inland as they may be navigable for the transportation of timber in ordinary weather.

7. Any Aboriginal Indian may without permission cut, dig or remove from the ungranted and unlicensed Crown Lands any substance or thing which he may require for putting up any building or shed for the purpose of residence.

8. Any Aboriginal Indian may without permission cut or gather any troolie or other palm leaves, posts, spars, or wattles, or make kokers from hollow trees, and may cut to make buckshells or canoes trees of any size, and dispose of all such articles as he may think fit. Provided that no Greenheart, Wallaba, Bullet tree, Rubber tree or Letter Wood tree shall be cut for the making of posts, spars, wattles or rollers.

9.—(1.) Any Aboriginal Indian who may at any time desire to cut any timber, or to make any shingles or staves, or to burn any charcoal, or to dig, remove and carry away any substance or thing allowed by these regulations save and except those mentioned in Regulation 8. shall first personally apply to any Officer of the Department of Lands and Mines or other person appointed for the purpose in the district in which he may reside, or in which the timber is to be cut, the shingles or staves to be made, the charcoal burned, or the substance or thing to be dug, removed or carried away, for permission to do so, and the Officer or person appointed for the purpose, shall, on being satisfied that the person applying is an Aboriginal Indian grant such permission in writing.

(2.) No Greenheart tree shall be cut that squares less than twelve inches or any other hardwood that will square less than six inches and no Bullet tree or Rubber-bearing tree shall be felled for any purpose whatsoever.

(3.) No tree shall be bled for Balata or Rubber except under a special permit in writing from the Commissioner of Lands and Mines.

(4.) The permission shall state the name of the applicant, his tribe, the approximate quantity of timber to be cut, of the shingles or staves or charcoal to be made, or of the substance or thing to be dug, removed, or carried away, and the time required for the procuring and removing of the same, as also the locality within which the articles mentioned in the permission are to be cut, made, dug, removed, or carried away, and the permission shall be signed and dated by the person granting it.

(5.) Nothing in the Regulations shall authorize any Aboriginal Indian to dig for, or remove from any part of the Crown lands of the colony any gold or mineral, except under the Mining Regulations then in force.

(6.) The permission may be granted for a term of three months, and may, on personal application, be extended, from time to time, by the person granting it, or, in case of his absence or removal, by his substitute or successor in office.

(7.) The Officer or person appointed for the purpose shall keep a record of all permissions so granted in a book to be provided for that purpose at the public expense, and a copy of such record shall, within seven days after the expiration of every month, be forwarded by the Officer or person as aforesaid to the Commissioner of Lands and Mines.

10.—(1.) Any Aboriginal Indian who has obtained the permission in writing as required by the foregoing regulation, and who is desirous of disposing of the articles mentioned in such permission shall apply to the nearest Officer or Sub-Protector of Indians to the place where his sales are to be effected for his aid and assistance in their disposal, and the Officer may dispose of the same to any person soever, and shall hand the proceeds of the sale, in money, to the Aboriginal Indian entitled thereto without any deduction whatsoever.

(2.) The Officer disposing of the articles mentioned in any permission shall endorse on the back thereof the quantities purchased and the price paid for them, and shall, when the sales are completed, forward the Permission to the Commissioner of Lands and Mines.

(3.) No Aboriginal Indian shall cut or remove any timber, shingles, staves, charcoal, substance or other thing for which a permission is required by these regulations from any part of the ungranted Crown lands, unless he shall have previously obtained such permission, and any timber, shingles, staves, charcoal, substance or thing so cut or removed may be seized and dealt with as having been illegally cut or removed from the ungranted Crown lands.

(4.) No person shall purchase from any Aboriginal Indian any timber, shingles, staves, charcoal, or other substance or thing for which a permission is required by these regulations except in accordance with Regulation No. 10, and any timber, shingles, staves, charcoal or other substance or thing so purchased shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture as though illegally cut on the ungranted Crown Lands.

11.—(1.) When an Aboriginal Indian contravenes these Regulations he may, in the first instance, be summoned before the Magistrate of the District within which the contravention has been committed, and such Magistrate shall reprimand such Aboriginal Indian if he finds that he has wilfully committed a breach of the Regulations, or may explain or cause to be explained to him the provisions of the Regulations if he is ignorant of them.

(2.) In the case of a second contravention, the privileges of such Aboriginal Indian under these Regulations may be suspended by such Magistrate for any time not exceeding six months, and such Aboriginal Indian may also be ordered to pay the cost of the process against him, and the amount thereof may be recovered by distress under the Summary Jurisdiction Ordinances for the time being in force.

(3.) In case of a third contravention the privileges of such Aboriginal Indian under these Regulations shall cease and determine. Provided that the Governor may, if he thinks fit, at any time, make an order for the restoration of such privileges.

12. No Aboriginal Indian employed under contract of service by a person not an Aboriginal Indian, shall be entitled, while so employed, to any immunity from taxation or licence duties in respect of so much of his property as may be carried or taken to the land or premises on which he is so employed.

13. The Indian Regulations of 1904 are hereby revoked.

Made by the Governor under Section 41 of the Crown Lands Ordinance, 1903, this 10th day of August, 1910.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.
PREVENTION OF ACCIDENTS.—LOAD LINE.

ORDER IN COUNCIL EXEMPTING NETHERLANDS SHIPS, COMPLYING WITH NETHERLANDS REGULATIONS, FROM DETENTION FOR NON-COMPLIANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF THE MERCHANT SHIPPING ACTS AS TO OVERLOADING.

At the Court at St. James's, the 11th day of June, 1910.

PRESENT,

The King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

WHEREAS by section 445 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, it is enacted that where the Board of Trade certify that the laws and regulations for the time being in force in any foreign country and relating to overloading and improper loading are equally effective with the provisions of that Act relating thereto, His Majesty in Council may direct that on proof of a ship of that country having complied with those laws and regulations, she shall not, when in a port of the United Kingdom, be liable to detention for non-compliance with the said provisions of that Act, nor shall there arise any liability to any fine or penalty which would otherwise arise for non-compliance with those provisions:

And whereas by section 1 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1906, provision, as is more particularly therein mentioned, is made for applying to foreign ships when in ports in the United Kingdom certain sections of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, which relate to loadline, without prejudice to any direction of His Majesty in Council given under the said section 445 of the last-mentioned Act:

And whereas the Board of Trade have certified that certain statutory regulations which have been approved by the Government of the Netherlands relating to overloading, so far as regards the assignment of loadlines to ships belonging to the Netherlands on and after the 1st January, 1909, are equally effective with the corresponding regulations in force in this country respecting the assignment of loadlines to British merchant ships:

Now therefore, His Majesty in Council doth direct that on proof that ships belonging to the Netherlands have complied with the aforesaid regulations of the Government of the Netherlands, such ships shall not, when in ports of the United Kingdom, be liable to detention for non-compliance with the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts relating to overloading, nor shall there arise any liability to any fine or penalty which would otherwise arise for non-compliance with those provisions.

ORDER IN COUNCIL EXEMPTING NETHERLANDS SHIPS, COMPLYING WITH NETHERLANDS PROVISIONS, FROM THE PROVISIONS OF SECTIONS 427-431 OF THE MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT, 1894 (57-58 VICT. C. 60), AS TO LIFE-SAVING APPLIANCES.

At the Court at St. James's, the 11th day of June, 1910.

PRESENT,

The King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

WHEREAS by section 4 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1906, it is provided that Sections 427 to 431 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (hereinafter called the Principal Act), relating to life-saving appliances shall, after the appointed day, apply to all foreign ships while they are within any port of the United Kingdom as they apply to British ships. Provided that His Majesty may by Order in Council direct that those provisions shall not apply to any ship of a foreign country in which the provisions in force relating to life-saving appliances appear to His Majesty to be as effective as the provisions of Part V of the Principal Act, on proof that those provisions are complied with in the case of that ship:

And whereas by section 5 of the said Act it is provided that the said appointed day shall be the first day of January, 1909, or such other day not being more than twelve months later, as the Board of Trade may appoint:

And whereas the Board of Trade have appointed the first day of October, 1909, to be the day after which the provisions of the Principal Act relating to life-saving appliances should apply to all foreign ships while they are within any port of the United Kingdom as they apply to British ships:

And whereas it appears to His Majesty that the provisions in force in the Netherlands relating to life-saving appliances are as effective as the provisions of Part V. of the Principal Act:

Now therefore, His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, is pleased to direct that the provisions of Sections 427 to 431 of the Principal Act shall not apply to any ship of the Netherlands while within any port of the United Kingdom, if it is proved that the aforesaid provisions in force in the Netherlands relating to life-saving appliances are complied with in the case of that ship.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 16TH DAY OF JULY, 1910.

MAHAJAN

versus

RAMGOBIN.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who on a claim made by the appellant (1) for the sum of $51.07 being the amount of a certain judgment and costs obtained by one Albertha Williams against the appellant and paid by him in consequence of the sale by the respondent to the appellant of adulterated milk subsequently sold by appellant to the said Albertha

Williams unknowingly, (2) the sum of $7.50 incurred by appellant in defence of the said action, (3) $20 as damages for sale of said milk, and (4) costs, gave judgment for respondent with costs and fee to counsel of $7.85.

The Magistrate, in his reasons, states that had he been able to hold that the appellant had a right of action against respondent he would have given judgment against the respondent for the amount of the fine, but in view of Hammond & Co. v. Bussey (L.R. 1888, 20 Q.B.D., p. 79) and the non-notice to defendant of his having been sued the plaintiff in his opinion would not have been entitled to costs.

The sole reason for appeal is that the Magistrate was wrong in holding as above inasmuch as it was not necessary for the appellant to give the respondent notice of the previous action filed by Williams against him (the appellant) in order to entitle the appellant to succeed in his action against the respondent.

The authority referred to by the Magistrate is Van Leeuwen, vol. 2, p. 143, where it is said "if any "legal steps be taken against the purchaser by a
"third person who has any right or claim in the said
"property, the vendor having received timely notice
"hereof, will be obliged to contest the right on "behalf of the purchaser which we call warranty and "guaranteeing. If such notice be not made in time "to the vendor the purchaser will not have any right
"to compensation, except where the right of the "claimant clearly appears and that the vendor had "no right to the thing sold and the purchaser takes "it upon himself to prove this, in which case the "vendor will likewise without any previous notice
"be obliged to make compensation." It is submitted by counsel for the appellant that what the author here refers to—as requiring notice to be served on the vendor—is warranty of title to and not warranty of the quality of the property sold.

That this is so is shown by Voet's treatment of the latter subject in Book 21, title 1 (Berwick's translation, p. 486) where no reference is made to service of notice and his treatment of the former in title 2, p. 506, where it is specially required that notice must be given to the vendor that a suit for eviction had been commenced (p. 526 paragraph 20).

It is argued by the solicitor for the respondent that the present action is one of eviction. There is nothing to warrant this Court in so holding. There was no claim for the recovery of the milk at the suit of its true owner but a claim for the amount of a fine imposed on one to whom the appellant had sold adulterated milk obtained from the respondent the quality of which was warranted by the respondent.

On the question of costs this Court cannot hold that it was reasonable on the part of the plaintiff to defend the action brought against him by Williams and therefore it agrees with the Magistrate that the plaintiff ought not to have the costs of that judgment.

This appeal is allowed. The decision of the Magistrate is reversed and judgment entered for appellant for $42.72 with costs including fee to counsel of $4.27.

BOYCE

versus

LARROUY.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the Demerara River Judicial District who, in an action for false imprisonment brought by the appellant against the respondent, dismissed the same.

The reasons for appeal are: (1) that the Magistrate exceeded his jurisdiction inasmuch as his decision is not in accordance with the defence set up when defendant made his plea, viz., he did not plead that he was acting within the scope of his authority in ordering the removal of the plaintiff. (2) the admission of illegal evidence as to a conversation between defendant and a police constable in the absence of the plaintiff and no proof that the Superintendent had power to depute anyone to act for him in his absence. (3) that the decision is unwarranted by the evidence, as it was proved that plaintiff was a tenant of Sprotons, Limited, and had a right to be where he was and as a tenant he could not be arrested for wilful trespass, and that plaintiff was so deemed a wilful trespasser because he sold pork and that it was fully proved that he was arrested for such wilful trespass on the instructions of the defendant. (4) that the decision is erroneous in point of law as the Magistrate was wrong in not admitting the charge for wilful trespass prepared at the instance of the defendant and that as station-master the defendant was responsible for his illegal act, it being proved that the steamer stelling is a station.

With regard to reason 1, it is specially pleaded that respondent was acting Superintendent for Sprotons, Limited. It must be clear, however, that the respondent is not limited in his defence to his answer to the plaint read out to him in Court by the Magistrate.

With regard to reason (2) the conversation referred to could in no way affect the real issue and it was not necessary that the respondent should be deputed by the Superintendent to act for him. As a servant of the owner of the property he had a right to call on the police to assist in the apprehension and detention of any wilful trespasser. (Sect. 49 of Ord. 17 of 1893).

With regard to reason (3) although the Magistrate has not specially so found it would seem that the appellant sublet from one Joseph Ward who was a tenant of Sprotons, Limited. There is nothing on the evidence to show the terms of his tenancy and although he might claim ingress and egress to his land the Magistrate was correct in holding that he could not claim as a matter of right to be entitled to place himself on the stelling, the private property of Sprotons, Limited, and carry on the business of a butcher. Having so placed himself and being lawfully required by the owners' servant (the respondent) to depart therefrom he became a wilful trespasser by remaining thereon. (sect. 38 (5)). And as such was liable to be apprehended and detained at the instigation of the respondent.

With regard to reason (4) the facts deposed to show that although the respondent intended to sign the charge no such charge was signed owing to what passed between the appellant and himself in the interval and the admission of the charge drawn up by the police would not have strengthened the evidence on this point. The latter part of this reason is already dealt with under (3).

On the grounds of appeal urged by the appellant this appeal must be dismissed and the decision of the Magistrate confirmed with costs.

NOTICE.

IT is hereby notified that all vehicles conveying passengers to the Race Course in New Amsterdam on the 15th August, must proceed along Strand or Main Road, then through Essex or Vryheid Streets, and approach the Race Stands from the North, and deposit their passengers at the gates leading into the Race Course, after which they must not turn round on the Backdam, but may proceed down any of the side streets south of the stand.

No vehicle will be allowed to remain on the Backdam road during the races. Vehicles must form up on the Backdam facing north awaiting their passengers, but not until 5 o'clock, and they must be south of St. Ann's Street, keeping to the west side of the road; in succession they will come to the gates for their passengers, and then depart north turning west into Essex or Vryheid Streets.

It is to be hoped, that all owners of vehicles will give every assistance in carrying out these Regulations so as to avoid confusion which would otherwise result owing to the very narrow backdam and roads approaching the Race Course.

These Regulations are made by the Inspector General of Police under Section 160 of Ordinance No. 17 of 1893, this 4th August, 1910.

TENDERS FOR THE SUPPLY OF MEDICINES AND MEDICAL APPLIANCES FOR THE PUBLIC SERVICE OF THE COLONY.

ALTERNATIVE Tenders are invited for the supply of Medicines and Medical Appliances for the Public Service of the Colony:—

(a) For the period 1st January to 31st December, 1911. (One year.)

(b) For the period 1st January, 1911, to 31st December, 1913. (Three years.)

Tenders must be sent to the Officials named hereinafter, not later than 12 o'clock, noon, on Tuesday, the 6th September, 1910.

2. Printed Forms of Tender containing Schedule of Articles, with Terms and Conditions of Contract, may be obtained from the Treasury, Georgetown, and New Amsterdam, and from the Post Office, Suddie, on payment of 24 cents per set, of original and duplicate and paper of conditions, &c., and no Tender will be considered unless made on such Forms.

3. The Forms will be in duplicate, machine numbered. The original will bear the name of the Tenderer and the particulars of the prices tendered, the duplicate only the particulars of the prices tendered without any mark or sign except the machine number to identify the Tenderer.

4. The original of every Tender must be accompanied by the names of two responsible persons who are willing to become bound together with the Tenderer to execute the Contract, to be drawn up in the Registrar's Office, in the terms of this Advertisement, and in accordance with the conditions and specifications set out in or attached to the Tenders, for the due supply of the Articles named in the Tender. The address of every surety must be given. No Firm can be accepted as surety.

5. The Tenderer will enclose the original bearing his name and the names of his Sureties in the prescribed Form, in a sealed envelope addressed to the Government Secretary, on the outside of which there shall be written the words:—

"Name of Tenderer enclosed"—

"Tender for supply of Medicines, Medical Appliances, &c.," and at the same time send the duplicate of his tender, containing the prices tendered, in a sealed envelope addressed to the Auditor General as Chairman of the Committee, and only marked on the outside "Tender for the Supply of Medicines, Medical Appliances, &c."

6. Tenderers are advised to send these documents by Post registered.

7. Any Tender sent to the Chairman bearing on its duplicate or on the sealed envelope any name, note or mark by which the Tenderer can be identified will be rejected.

8. Every Tender must state distinctly the respective prices or rates of the supplies tendered for. No Tender dependent upon a sliding scale of prices or upon the "Market Rate" will be considered.

9. Tender may be made to supply the articles comprised in this class to all or to any one or more of the Institutions or Departments of the Service.

10. The Government does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any Tender, or the whole of any Tender, but may accept part only of any Tender and the acceptance of a Tender or any part thereof, will be conditional on security being given to the satisfaction of the Governor.

11. Any Department or branch thereof may be excluded, partially or wholly, from the operation of the Contract at the discretion of the Government, at any time during the continuance of the Contract.

12. The Government retains the right of rejecting any Tender without assigning any reason.

13. The names of the successful Tenderers will be published in the "Gazette."

14. Contracts must be duly executed on or before the 31st January, 1911, at the Registrar's Office, at the expense of the Contractor, and no account will be paid under any Contract until its execution. The Contractor must also furnish a copy of the Contract to the Auditor General if required.

15. All articles are to be supplied on requisition from the Institution or Department requiring them. They are to be of the specified quality or pattern and subject to the approval of the Officer in charge or the Head of the Department concerned. Any Articles not in accordance with the Contract will be returned, and if not replaced within a reasonable time by the Contractor by an article in accordance with the Contract, the article may be obtained elsewhere and charged to the Contractor.

16. The Contractor will also be liable, on the approval of the Governor, to a fine of five dollars for every day on which he neglects or delays to supply any such article.

17. Supplies are to be delivered in such quantities, at such places, and at such times, as may be required.

All goods are to be delivered free to the different Institutions, except the Potaro Dispensary, in which case the Contractor will only be required to pay the freight as far as Wismar.

18. All articles, unless otherwise sanctioned by the Surgeon General, are to be supplied in the original packages with the name of the manufacturers either stamped or printed in some conspicuous place on the package.

19. All official preparations are to be of the Standard strength of the latest British Pharmacopœia.

20. Detailed accounts are to be rendered monthly; and in duplicate or triplicate, as required by the Head of the Department supplied.

Before the close of such financial year notices will be published in the "Official Gazette" and local papers calling upon Contractors to render accounts and to collect the sums due to them, on or before a certain date to be fixed in such notice.

Sums not collected before the date fixed shall be liable to postponement of payment for six calendar months from that date.

21. In case of a dispute arising as to the quality or otherwise of an article delivered under this contract, the decision of the Head of Department is to be final, and binding on the Contractor, who shall be bound to remove goods so rejected after he shall have received notice of rejection.

22. In the event of a Contractor failing to remove rejected articles and to replace them with others of approved quality they may be returned to the parties and others purchased elsewhere, deducting cost thereof over and above the contract price if any, and all expenses incurred, from any money that may be due or may become due to such Contractor.

23. Should the Contractor fail to execute any order for any of the articles contracted for by him, within such time as may be fixed by the Head of the Department, whether such order be sent by the Head of Department or by any person duly authorised, he will not only be liable to the penalties incurred by breach of Contract, but the Head of Department or his Deputy shall be at liberty to procure such materials elsewhere, and any excess in cost over the contract price, may be deducted from any money or moneys due, or that may become due, by the Colonial Government to the Contractor.

24. All articles supplied at or on account of any Department, Institution, Prison or Police Station, will on their delivery be weighed, or their respective quantities otherwise ascertained and duly noted and accounted for, and any article delivered by the Contractor which on examination after delivery, may be found to be inferior in quality will be returned at the expense of the Contractor, and he shall immediately replace it by a similar article of approved quality, and should he fail so to do, the article will be at once procured at his cost: Further, should any article in exchange for that required to be replaced as above stated, be not delivered before indispensable need for its use arise, or should the Contractor after having received an order to deliver any article within his contract fail to deliver the same, the said article shall be at once procured at his cost.

25. A priced invoice, setting out in detail the quantities, rates, and prices of all articles supplied, shall be delivered to the officer in charge of the Department, or Institution, with each delivery of goods; and in case of the non-fulfilment of this requirement, the quantities ascertained on their reception by that officer shall be held to be final.

26. At the same time the Colonial Government reserve to themselves the right to purchase in any market, at their discretion, any article that is not mentioned in the contract, or the supply of which may not have been tendered for, or the tender not accepted, or any article mentioned in the tender but against which no price has been placed by the Contractor; and also the right to purchase and obtain through the Crown Agents for the Colonies instead of through the Contractors any goods for which the Contract may be accepted; and any such purchases shall not annul or invalidate the Contract.

By Command,

Acting Auditor General.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 5TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1910.

BALLI et al. Appellant
versus.
GAMBLE, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the acting Stipendiary Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who, on the complaint of the respondent, a Sub-Inspector of Police, charging the appellants with playing in a common gaming house, convicted the said appellants and ordered each of them to pay a fine of $10 and in default of payment to be imprisoned for one month with hard labour.

The reasons of appeal are (1) that the decision is erroneous in point of law ; (2) the admission of illegal evidence ; and (3) that the decision is unwarranted by the evidence.

It appears that on the 26th June, a warrant was obtained under section 12 of Ordinance 42 of 1902 to search a room occupied by Francis Dick which there was reason to suspect was used as a common gaming house and that on such search being made the appellants were found therein and further that on the said Francis Dick being charged as the occupier of this room the charge was dismissed.

It is submitted by counsel for the appellants that inasmuch as proceedings were taken under the Ordinance as detailed above and the person mentioned in the warrant as the occupier of the room having been acquitted the detention of the appellants was in itself unlawful so that they were not legally before the Magistrate and were entitled to be discharged, and (2) if they were liable to be tried for a breach of section 5 (1) there is no evidence apart from the special provisions of the Ordinance to prove that the house in question was a common gaming house or that the appellants were playing therein.

The Solicitor General concedes that there was no entrance under the Ordinance and that therefore the onus of proving the charge—which it is submitted is properly laid—lies on the prosecution, there being no presumption against the defendants, but he submits that there is evidence on which the Magistrate could arrive at the conclusion he did and that therefore this Court will not disturb the decision.

In Fenton versus Watson (19.8.1904), Watson was charged under section 4 (a) that he being the occupier of a house did use the same as a common gaming house. The warrant was issued to search the room of Beckles and in the subsequent prosecution of Watson it was held that his room was not entered under the Ordinance and that therefore the onus of proof was not shifted to him. It is clear from this decision that if the evidence before the Magistrate has satisfied him that the house had been so used and he had convicted Watson on appeal his decision would have been upheld. On the authority of this case therefore this Court holds that the present charge is properly laid. There remains to be considered the evidence (if any) on which the Magistrate has found that the room in question was a common gaming house and that appellants were playing therein. The evidence on these points is to the effect that on the arrival of the police there appeared to be a panic in the house; the light was put out and some of the appellants endeavoured to escape; a pack of cards was found on the floor and 1 dice on a shelf and 12 cards on a ledge above the door. The house consisted of two rooms which would seem to have been used in common by the appellants on that occasion. One witness says, "I see gambling there", and another that he saw people going in and out on 16th June. This may raise a strong suspicion but in the absence of what is meant by "I see gambling" or that the play (if any) in which they were engaged was one of chance for money or money's worth this Court must hold that there is no evidence to warrant a conviction. This appeal is allowed and the decision of the Magistrate reversed with costs.

M. J. BERKELEY, Acting C.J.

SUMONDARIE.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the South Essequibo Judicial District who, on the complaint of the respondent, convicted the appellants for that they did on 22nd June, 1910, unlawfully make use of abusive language to the annoyance of respondent.

The respondent does not appear.

The reasons of appeal as set out in behalf of Kawalpathy are:—(1) That the decision is erroneous in point of law because (a) the words alleged by complainant to have been used by the appellant are not words of abuse within the meaning of the section under which the appellant was charged and convicted; (b) there was no evidence of any abusive language having been used by the appellant; (c) there was no evidence to prove that a breach of the peace was or might have been occasioned by the use of the alleged abusive language to the complainant; (2.) The Magistrate's Court has exceeded its jurisdiction in the case because it was not competent to the learned Magistrate to have tried as he did the appellant at the same time and jointly with another person, the offence not being of the nature of a joint one; (3.) The decision is unwarranted by the evidence.

The reasons of appeal as stated in behalf of Sooniah are the same as above with the omission of (a) and (b) of reason 1. The case relied on in support of these two reasons in behalf of the appellant Kawalpathy is that of Gibson v. Lutchminea (21.1.10). It differs, however, from the present case. The charge there was brought under section 142 (1) of Ordinance 17 of 1893 for the use of insulting language whereby a breach of the peace may have been occasioned. The present charge is brought under sub-section (2) for the use of abusive language to the annoyance of the respondent. In that case the words used were "if you don't make your husband pay that money I will plant a kick in your behind" and the learned judge held that these words in their ordinary signification were not insulting but conveyed a threat and that there were circumstances proved to show that they were not used in their ordinary signification. The alleged abusive language in this case is "I will push a bamboo up your vagina." This is clearly a threat and without expressing an opinion as to the decision arrived at by the learned Judge in Gibson v. Lutchminea as the evidence may have disclosed acts not appearing in the decision, I should be prepared to hold that the language used by the present appellant is insulting and might have occasioned a breach of the peace. That, however, is not the charge and it cannot be held to be abusive which is the offence for which the appellant was convicted.

It is not contested that the language used by the other appellant Sooniah is abusive. Reason (c) is unavailable as the charge does not allege that a breach of the peace was or might have been occasioned and therefore the respondent was not called upon to prove the same as stated in this reason.

With regard to reason 2 it is admitted by counsel to be technical and it cannot be allowed to prevail. Both appellants were charged with committing the same offence at the same time and place and therefore their names could be legally inserted in the same information or complaint.

Reason 3 has been dealt with in the course of this decision.

The appeal by the appellant Kawalpathy is therefore allowed and the decision of the Magistrate so far as it relates to him is reversed.

The appeal by the appellant Sooniah is dismissed and the decision of the Magistrate so far as it relates to him is confirmed. No order is made as to costs.

M. J. BERKELEY, Acting C.J.

JINGUR AND SEETUL, Appellants.

KING, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the North Essequibo Judicial District who, on a charge of larceny brought by respondent, the County Inspector, convicted the appellants and ordered each of them to be imprisoned for six months with hard labour.

The proceedings show that the appellants with four others were charged with the larceny of sugar value $25, the property of Hubert Jackson, from the sugar store of Taimouth Manor plantation on the night of 5th June last.

The reasons of appeal are (1) that the decision is erroneous in point of law, and (2) that it is unwarranted by the evidence.

The evidence shows clearly that the hole in the partition of the wall of the sugar store—through which the carrier belt passed—had been enlarged by the removal of a board which made it large enough to admit the body of a man and that on the night in question sugar was missed from the sugar store of the same quality as that produced in the Court below and traced to three of the defendants. The circumstantial evidence on which the appellants were convicted shows that they were both watchmen, Jingur the watch about the entrance and the front of the buildings, and Seetul the watch over the platform next to the sugar store, that from about 8.30 to 10 p.m. Jingur on the pretext that he had fever exchanged duties with watchman Ramadhin who was in charge of the "boilers part" of the building that two filter bags which Jingur had asked for and which were placed by the door of the buildings were found shortly after the larceny in the neighbourhood of the platform with traces of sugar on them, that he told one Watson to sleep away from the sugar store by the pan loft, and that both appellants were seen away from the sugar store side, Jingur with his sleeves rolled up and no jacket on.

To constitute larceny there must be evidence connecting the appellants with the taking of the sugar which taking must be either actual or constructive. With regard to Seetul the only facts proved are that he is a watchman of the estate and was seen in the company of Jingur shortly after the larceny had been committed. With regard to Jingur his conduct is suspicious, but suspicion is not enough. This suspicion may amount to proof that he failed to discharge his duties satisfactorily but this Court can find no evidence that would warrant it in holding that the Magistrate had evidence before him on which he could come to the conclusion arrived at.

The appeal must therefore be allowed and the decision of the Magistrate reversed with costs.
